Overseas moves aren't foreign to us.

At Despatch Moving & Storage, we're as experienced at moving you across the Atlantic or across the Island. (In fact, we recently won a Customer Quality Achievement Award from Atlas Van Lines.)

We know the language. The tariffs. The legalities. The subtle nuances of overseas moves. We have to. Because not only do we move complete households, we move decorators, interior designers and international art collectors. You'll find that we're as sensitive to your possessions as we are to your specific needs.

If you're considering an overseas move, consider Despatch. In fact, the thought of using someone else is foreign to us.

ASK GAEL

I'm in the Hamptons and need a reality check.

Crank down a few decibels with lunch at The Fish Farm. Get Marie Valenti to dish up her marvelous, peppery swordfish chili (a pint is perfect for two) and a couple of honest lobster rolls, barely mayo'd and sporting a big chunk of tail meat on top. Coleslaw is a must. Potato puree and just a dab of cream thicken the New England clam chowder and the lobster bisque. Marie cooks salmon farmed or wild, served with local corn. A crab cake on a bun is skinny but full of crabmeat. Husband Bob does the Key-lime tart. Thirty years ago, the Valentis came here to raise pan-size striped bass. "But no one was eating whole fish back then," she says. They switched to stocking local lobsters and fish, then started cooking eight years ago. Pick up to go, or settle at an umbrella'd picnic table overlooking the water. BYOB if you wish. You'll forget you ever heard of the Hamptons. Noon to 7:30.

South O' the Highway (and the North too)

Hamptonites were out in force at the 2005 Tony Awards last Sunday. Edward Albee of Montauk won the Lifetime Achievement Award and his play Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf was nominated for Best Revival of a Play. Producer Marty Richards of Southampton won Best Revival of a Musical for La Cage aux Folles. Joe Mantello was nominated for Best Director for Glengarry Glen Ross. Alan Alda of Mecox and Kathleen Turner of East Hampton were up for acting awards in Glengarry Glen Ross and Edward Albee's Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf, respectively, but lost out to Cherry Jones in Doubt and Liev Schreiber in Glengarry Glen Ross. Others present at the awards (but merely as spectators) were Matthew Broderick, Kate Burton and Nathan Lane.

Mark this as another feather in the cap of Hamptonite Henry Schleiff. The Chairman and CEO of Court TV has just inked a deal for his channel's "Psychic Detectives" will air on NBC on Wednesdays before Law & Order. Moves such as this one, where cable TV jump to network television, are very rare.

* * *

Martha Stewart, the Post reported Monday, is selling Turkey Hill, her Connecticut home, for $10 million. It was on this property that she began her career as a domestic diva, after a stint as a stockbroker. This will be Stewart's second unloading of real estate this year, after recently selling her Georgica Pond property designed by Gordon Bunshaft. Perhaps this means we'll be seeing more of her this summer, since she still owns a home on Lily Pond Lane.

* * *

Ignoring the fact that the last thing we need is another reality TV show (or more of the supremely overexposed Hilton family) Southampton resident Kathy Hilton's new series, "I Want to Be a Hilton" premieres on June 21st on NBC. One episode of the show was filmed in the Michael Perez Art Gallery in Southampton.

* * *

Duncan Biscotti (star of Betty and Michael Paraskevas' "The Cheap Show" on Plum TV) was spotted at B. Smith's in Sag Harbor, on a rare night out on the town. The producers usually don't let the puppet out much since he's still filming the current season of "The Cheap Show" in Southampton.

* * *

Anne Hearst of Southampton will host a dual benefit for Hudson Riverkeeper and Peconic Baykeeper at her home, Ash Grove Farm, in Water Mill on Saturday, August 13th. Amanda Hearst, Riverkeeper's junior committee chair, will co-host and Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. will be among the featured

A Village Moves

Southampton Village Line Moves 30 Feet West. The Ramifications.

By Dan Rattiner

Harold Steudte built a home for his wife and children on Tuckahoe Lane in Southampton in 1987. He liked the community and the community liked him. A young builder, he would do quite well.

At the time, the Village of Southampton had a Mayor and Trustees that often were at odds with one another. They still are. The issue involved the constant pressure put on the local administrators of that community by the residents who are constantly pushing for more privacy and bigger houses on whatever lots they own. It's not an unreasonable thing for them to do. And it is up to the Trustees to decide what the limits are. Some were for tighter restrictions, some were for looser restrictions.

Steudte was soon courted, back then, as someone who should be on the Board. He held strong views for tighter restrictions and budgetary restraint.

The problem was, during those early years, Steudte did not believe he was in the Village of Southampton. You have to be a resident of the Village to hold office there. The Village line, he believed, passed just on the other side of his property. Certainly there were no Village taxes he was paying. The tax bill for his property only came from the Town of Southampton, which extends from Westhampton to Bridgehampton and includes all the property that is not within the confines of any Incorporated Village, such as the Village of Southampton.

What happened after this is a mystery. And nobody is talking. But a good guess is that the Board members who wanted him to run for office told him that they had found out that his property WAS in the Incorporated Village.

Steudte said he would run for office if the Village Attorney said it was so. The Village attorney at that time was David Gilmartin. Gilmartin spoke to Steudte. Yes, he'd seen the village line. And it was okay to run for office.

And so Steudte did. He ran for the office of Trustee in 1991 and he won. And he also received a tax bill from the Village for the first time that year, for the prior year. And he paid it. With only a few years as an exception, Harold Steudte has been a Trustee of the Village of Southampton ever since, for a total of fifteen years in office. He is a Trustee today. And he is often the third vote in favor of stricter laws involving what you can build and not build in the Village, with two votes opposing. He is a member of the Good Sense Party. The other party is called the Citizens with Integrity Party.

There are many advantages to being a resident of the Village.

You can get a beach parking sticker for just $10. You can drive on the beach for another $20. These things cost ten or twenty times more, if you are a non-resident, if they are available at all. And there are other advantages. Better snow plowing. Shorter waits for police, fire or ambulance service, because those providing the service do not have to come from

They produced a survey from the Building Department and showed it to him. The dotted line of the Village clipped the back yard of his property. This wasn't on the deed when you bought the property? Well, there had been a re-jiggering of the school districts. And that moved the line. Now there was a triangle in the corner of the back yard that was in the Village that made him eligible.

as far away. And of course you are eligible to run for office.

In recent years, the battle in Village Hall between the two parties has heated up. A lawsuit was threatened. For tighter restrictions were Steudte, Bates and McFarland. For more liberal laws are Romanosky and Britt. Up came a proposal to cap the size of homes being built. Three to two in favor. Up came a proposal for limiting attic usage and it was three to two in favor. This past Friday, subpoenas were served. The lawsuit to rescind these laws, in the belief that they unfairly restrict property rights, was going ahead.

This November, three of the five Trustees have to run for office. Steudte was among them. And so money was raised by the opposition — I guess you could call it campaign funds —and a lawyer was hired to look into Steudte's residency evidence. Also hired was the Riverhead survey firm of Young & Young to exactly find where the Village line was. The surveyors went out, found old stone monuments that indicate the exact property lines of the village and made the measurements. Steudte is not, and never has been, a Village resident, they reported last week. The Village line misses his property by seven feet.

Or does it? The Good Sense Party said they have a survey that says he IS a Village resident. And so they went to State Supreme Court late last week, and with the matter on a very fast track since Steudte's candidacy needs to be put onto campaign posters and ballot forms, got before Justice Mary M. Werner late last week. There were lawyers on both sides. And both sides were asked to present their surveys and bring in as witnesses the surveyors who made the surveys. The anti-Steudte forces brought in Young & Young, and their survey. And the Steudte forces said Steudte was a tax-paying member of the community and a Village Trustee. The judge repeated her request. Bring in the surveyor.

And attorney John Leo declined. He would rely on the Village Tax records.

And so, one wonders, who it was that got an old survey performed by a local Southampton surveyor years earlier and drew a line showing the Village line going through Steudte's back yard? It remains a mystery.

According to an observer at the trial, Steudte was then asked on the stand if he ever believed his home was in the Village. He said he didn't.

"You are the only person I have ever met," the judge said to Steudte after making her ruling, "who has voluntarily paid taxes to the Village of Southampton for fifteen years. You don't have to do that any more."

Steudte cannot not run for re-election this November. He will have to turn in his beach stickers, I guess. And his Village Resident parking stickers. They'll rip the chevrons off his shoulders, his medals off his chest and send him packing off into the night.

What a strange story.

Two days ago, the long held secret about who was Deep Throat was revealed. Now there is another secret. Somewhere, deep in the bowels of Village Hall, there is a man who knows, or who actually did draw that Village line all those years ago. There was testimony at the hearing about whether the concrete markers had been moved before the Young & Young Surveyors had gotten there. They hadn't. Ah, it is details like these that bring down the high and mighty and change the course of history.

And what of all those laws passed by three to two? An interloper had provided that third vote. But what is done is done and there is nothing to suggest that without the name Steudte on the ballot, the good people of Southampton Village might have elected anybody other than another candidate of the Good Sense Party.

A decision on this will have to await the results of the lawsuit.

If they'd had any sense, those Good Sense people should have gone out one night with a shovel to that concrete marker in 1990 and, oh well, such is hindsight.

How about we have a new rule that says if you live outside the village but close enough so that if someone inside the village can see you and wave at you, and you can wave back, you can run for office?

* * *

As we go to press we have learned that Judge Werner had ordered Steudte off the board. His replacement on the board is Bonnie Cannon, who is expected to vote with the new majority, the Citizens With Integrity Party.

Bluetooth Goes Wild on Ferry. Blackberry Goes Wild in Pocket.

By Dan Rattiner

About three weeks ago, I took the Orient Point ferry to New England to attend my son David's college graduation in Boston. At the time, I had just gotten a Blackberry telephone with a Bluetooth device you could stick in your ear. That trip to Boston was my first outing with this contraption. In addition to walking around looking like an idiot talking to people in my ear, I had something very bad happen.

I suspected later, when it happened again as I crossed the Sound on the ferry a second time coming home, that it was caused by the Bluetooth but I couldn't be sure. No manual comes with the Blackberry. They give you a CD to put in your computer and, of course, I did not trust myself to do that. So I wasn't sure. But what seemed to happen both times was that as I hooked up the Blackberry to the Bluetooth, which you do by turning on its radio waves by pressing a button, various car alarms went off on the ferry.

As I mentioned, this happened both going over and coming back. I do not know about the coming back, but when I went over, I was hooking up the Bluetooth while in the belly of the ferry with the other cars, and I specifically saw that the car it set off was a Mercedes Benz SUV. Coming back, it was a sunny day and I was up sitting on a bench outside sunning myself on the top deck when several car alarms went off below in the hold.

But what it seemed to me when I thought about it later — in the moment people were running around trying to find the owners of the cars to get them to turn the alarms off while I sat there as if nothing had happened — was that the cars that went off were probably very expensive cars equipped with car alarms and blue teeth for the phones inside. Somehow when I had pressed the button to get my pushed the button to connect the Blackberry with the Bluetooth, and it didn't set anything off. But then it occurred to me that this was a fairly ordinary shopping center and there were not many expensive cars around. Furthermore, the range of the radio waves, I had been told, was just forty feet.

That night, I attended a fundraiser under a white tent on the lawn of an oceanfront mansion. Valet parkers took away the cars, locked them up in a nearby field I could see not far away and kept the keys on a wooden rack with hooks on it by the front entrance to the tent. When the people came out, they gave the parking tag to the valet who would run off and get the cars. And I got an idea. Much to the embarrassment of the people I was with, as we came out of the tent, I ran off with one of the valet parkers, telling him I'd still give him the tip but I needed the exercise, and when we got to the Blackberry to call out with its radio waves for some telephone to hook up with, the bluteeth in these expensive cars responded and the car alarm reacted by making all hell break loose. Hey! We're locked up and there's somebody in the car messing with the Bluetooth! Help! Help!

Well, I experimented with this when I got back from Boston. I went to the KMart Shopping Center in Bridgehampton and field, I found the button that fires the radio mating call from the Blackberry to the Bluetooth and sure enough, two car alarms went off. I pretended it was not me doing this. How could it be me? And I shrugged and walked to my car with my valet, and we returned to the tent, the wailing of the luxury cars slowly fading in the background.

But now I have come upon another problem. Which I have turned into a perk. With most cell phones, if you want to silence them, in a theatre or a lecture hall for example, you can press a silence button or simply turn the phone off. With the Blackberry, doing this is a pretty big deal. You have to continually press this wheel button to get to the main menu, then twirl the wheel—it's like a sort of mouse—until the cursor points at the LOCK icon, and then you press the wheel once to get it to lock up. Then it's a big deal to get it to unlock, involving menus and selections and more wheel twirls and pressings.

I'm sure there is a shortcut for this, but I have no idea where. That information is etched in the CD that resides in its plastic baggie in my desk drawer. And I just don't want to go there.

I have a life.

As for turning it off, there is a way to do it with a secret button but, as the guy at Verizon explained to me when I bought this thing, you are only supposed to do it in an emergency. If you do it anyway, the whole device has to reboot.

And so, in recent times, I have decided to put the Blackberry in my pocket and just hope, in the same way that somebody with a burglar alarm on his house decides it's just too much trouble to keep setting and unsetting and nobody will rob him anyway. So the Blackberry sits in my pocket and, very occasionally, it calls people.

What the new problem is is the speed dial. I'm sure you know what this is, if you have a cell phone. You can press one key and the phone dials that person. Here on the Blackberry there are all these keys on this keyboard and you lean forward and without even touching it, it dials the letter J which is my mother, Jen. Jen answers, and I hear her in my ear—I have taken to wearing my Bluetooth as a fashion accessory—and I know exactly what has happened.

"Hello?"

"Hi, Mom." (I have recognized her voice.)

"What's the matter?"

"Nothing's the matter. Everything's fine. I was just thinking about you and so I called."

"How nice of you," she says. She is in Florida. "How's the weather up there?"

In Florida, the weather is always pleasant. Here in New York it is either too hot or too cold. It gives my mother something to say about how good a time she is having down there.

Another time, we were deadlining at the office and I was driving home to my house in East Hampton at two in the morning and it called my girl friend at her apartment in New York.

"Hello?" she said sleepily.

I hung up.

"Did you call me at two in the morning last night?" she asked the next day.

"My phone called you. We had just closed the newspaper. I leaned forward to put the key in the ignition of the car."

"Oh."

One day, I was driving in my car listening to "Maybelline" by Chuck Berry on my iPod very loud (the iPod attaches to the car radio with a cable that goes to the cigarette lighter—I am real up on everything) and my Blackberry

Wife Tries to Pass Husband to Win the Annual Bridgehampton Race

By Dan Rattiner

The 27th annual Dan's Papers Potatomampton race was contested early last Saturday morning. Participants assembled in back of the Bridgehampton Presbyterian Church for registration and warmup (with Jim Wharton, who has worked with the Yankees, the Rangers and the American Olympians), then walked over to Ocean Road just south of the Bridgehampton Monument for the start. The police were everywhere, keeping traffic clear of the runners and, for a brief time as the runners headed down this main street before making a left onto Hildreth Lane, closing down Ocean Road briefly. There were children with balloons, dogs, family, friends and well wishers, and the race was led for the duration by a police car with flashing lights, this reporter in a 1959 red Triumph TR3, and Peter Mole, in his beautiful silver 1954 Jaguar XK-120 convertible.

It was not a good day for a race. For those that stayed up late partying on Friday night and slept till noon on Saturday, well, you missed it. Until the skies cleared around 11 a.m. during the awards presentation, it was a rainy morning. A storm had settled into the area during the night and about 7 a.m., when most people in the area got up and looked out the window to make the decision whether to head on over to the registration area to make the effort, the rain was coming down.

You know, serious runners will compete in just about any weather except floods and hurricanes, so we did not have a rain date. At 6:30 a.m., as the founder of the race, I went downstairs to my computer and fired up Accuweather.com to have a look at this part of the earth from a satellite. An angry yellow blob hovered over just about all of Long Island and Manhattan. There was no rain in New Jersey, Connecticut or anywhere west until Iowa. It was just over Long Island. God's thought for the day. But, with three hours to the starting gun, wouldn't it move out? I clicked on the animation button, which gives you the movement of the weather in the prior hour and a half. It was moving to the east slowly. Surely it would be out by nine thirty. It wasn't.

Both Peter Mole and I, in our forty-year-old English sports cars, waited for the starting gun with all the runners in a big pack behind us, sitting determinedly with our convertible tops

GOOD PEOPLE DOING GOOD THINGS IN THE HAMPTONS

By Dan Rattiner

Newspapers (not Dan's Papers) always bring you bad things to read. Here are some Dan's Papers good things, all of which happened during the last two weeks.

The first is an extraordinary donation to the public good, made by Cablevision. It is extraordinary not because of its magnitude, but because Cablevision has not done anything like this before, as far as we know. And so we want to pat them on the back and encourage them. It is this sort of behavior that could turn them from the most hated public company in the New York Metropolitan Area into, well, at least an ordinary corporation that helps out here and there once in awhile.

What Cablevision has done is offer to waive a $10,000 fee to help in the creation of an oceanfront museum in Westhampton Beach. The situation is this. The historic Double Diamond House, a gem of modern beachfront architecture from the 1950s, has been offered to the town of Southampton for $1. It is a small house, just 650 square feet, but the Town, along with several private citizens, wants to move it to some beachfront property they own. There it will become a museum of photographs and models of mid-century beach architecture.

To make the move to the new property, however, numerous telephone poles and lines have to come down, and there is an effort underway to raise funds privately to make this happen. Verizon charges $15,000, LIPA charges $15,000 and Cablevision charges $10,000 to do the work. But now Cablevision says it will donate the service for free. We hope the other utilities soon agree to follow their example.

Then there is the action of the Order of the Dominican Sisters, whose home base is in Amityville. They own Villa Maria, the exquisite bayfront mansion in Water Mill visible down, getting soaking wet. Festive is festive. You gotta do what you gotta do.

The gun sounded, and a cheer went out from the 140 runners leaving the starting line. This was the smallest turnout we've ever had for the race in all of its 27 years, but it was still a good crowd. And they thundered silently behind us as we turned at the old colonial Beebee Windmill at the corner of Ocean and Hildreth, and headed off into a morning of rain slicks, umbrellas, vacation homes, water stops and farmland. It was going to be a beautiful run, anyway.

I should say at this point, that a running race is hell on an old English sports car. It has to do with the gear ratios and it actually is something of a sacrifice on the part of us owners since we all know when we make the decision to join the race, our cars could suffer serious damage as a result.

The problem is the speed at which runners run. If humans ran at the speed of cows, we could keep ahead of the runners entirely in first gear. If humans ran at the speed of horses, we could shift into second and then third gear and carry on with them at that. But humans, from an old sports car perspective, run flat out at a speed that is just too much for first gear, but not quite good enough for second. So you are constantly shifting up and down, going too fast and pulling ahead or too slow and having them catch up. There's no way around it. It's hell on the gears of old sports cars. And the cooling systems. And so if you get a chance at the end of any race they lead, give their owners a pat.

We led the runners down Highland Avenue, right on Bridge Lane (after which the village is named), then left on Ocean Road again heading down toward the beach. In the rain looking through my rear view mirror, I could see that one powerfully built man was opening up a lead over the pack, but he was being pursued by a small pack of four people, one of whom appeared through the rain to me to be a woman. Soon, as we turned onto Mecox Road, one of the three followers had broken loose from the other two. It was the woman.

There has never, in all the 27 years of this race, been a woman who has won it. But in recent years, with women's times in running races all over the world closing the gap, it could happen. A woman had finished fifth in a pack of 400 runners at our race a few years ago. Here in a much smaller pack, could it happen?

We proceeded along Mecox Road, parallel to the ocean, passing the Corwith Farm with the flower festooned farmstand and apple trees there. And we turned onto Paul's Lane, now heading back toward the start, to the finish line. We were past half way. In the long stretch on Paul's, these two led the runners, the man maintaining about a twenty-yard lead. And then, coming through the potato fields that line Halsey Lane heading for home, the woman made her move. The gap closed, and closed further until she seemed to be right behind him, but then with just a mile to go, she began to fade. Joe Amato, of East Quogue, crossed the finish line in a very slow 40:04, with his wife Karen Cotty Amato, who had chased him all the way, 37 seconds back. In the last hundred yards, she had been passed by Mike Bottini of Springs, so she finished third, 4 seconds back of Bottini.

I might note that during the final mile coming down toward the finish, my TR3 began to fade. Looking through the rain at the gauges on my dashboard, I could see the water temperature begin to rise and the pressure gauge beginning to fall. It was because of the low wa-

Amagansett Stable Approved. Park in Springs Proposed for Horse Riding

By Emily J Weitz

Green pastures and white fences unfurl on Montauk Highway in Amagansett, but only the ghosts of grazing horses have dotted the fields in the past four years. The twelve stalls in the immaculate timber-frame stable have stood empty and sterile, void of the familiar, earthy smell of shavings and manure.

The Principi family has been trying to fill their stable, Ocean View Farm, with horses for a long time, but the application has been in limbo for all this time. Richard Principi built this gorgeous stable from the ground up, but his dream has remained unfulfilled, entangled in slow bureaucracy. The town stated that the stable did not have a Certificate of Occupancy, making it unfit for horses. The family worked to finish all the construction that the town required. Richard said they have been walking up and down the quiet aisles, keeping everything "Principi perfect." Dolores Principi, Richard's mother, called East Hampton "the town of no" in reference to her application. But the town of no has finally said yes, finally granting the Principis a C.O.

Within the next few months, the whinnying call of horses will be heard from the warm stalls. Sleek necks will bow down to chomp on green grass behind the fences which have, for so long, stood purposeless. There are twelve stalls available, where people will be able to board their horses. Richard has a few horses himself, but he is currently leaving his options open. He has met with people who are looking to buy or rent the stable.

And in addition to the rolling paddocks that are available at Ocean View Farm, horseback riders may potentially have another outlet.

Horseback riding trails, also known as bridle paths, snake through the woods and open onto the beaches throughout the Hamptons, unbeknownst to those of us who travel over pavement. Once in a while we'll catch a glimpse of someone on his/her sunset ride. Often along

WATERGATE: A BRIEF HISTORY LESSON

By Dan Rattiner

Watergate was so long ago. And Woodward and Bernstein said they would only reveal the name of Deep Throat after he died. Unfortunately or fortunately, he has lived a very long time. He is now 91 and losing it. So it was time.

The trouble is, he lived so long that only the older generation today remember all this very clearly. So for everybody else, I thought it might be a good time to briefly review all that happened.

The year 1972 saw Richard Nixon conducting a campaign for his re-election to the Presidency.

The Democrats had nominated George McGovern. At the time, McGovern didn't seem to stand a chance. The War in Vietnam was raging, Nixon was trying to extricate us from it, but he was very much the Hawk. He'd leave under his own terms if he could. (In the end, he couldn't.) And it was very serious business.

As for McGovern, he wanted to withdraw right away. It had been the wrong war at the wrong time. People were dying. McGovern and his followers—war protesters, Democrats, union members, hippies and liberals — thought it was time right then to get everybody home.

If McGovern and the war protesters were a jolly lot, with headbands, brightly colored clothes, flower power and poetry, Nixon was a narrow tie, three piece suit member of the Industrial Military Establishment. And so he thought the future of America was at stake, and there was no way that George McGovern could be allowed to win. I might note, that after Watergate happened, I wrote in this newspaper that this was going to prove to be the single worst thing that had ever happened to American Democracy. At the time, after some initial revelations that were utterly shocking in suggesting what our President did, the whole thing died

Horse (continued from previous page)

Abraham's Path, I'll slow down for a palomino with platinum mane and tail as his hooves clop across the road. I find myself envious as I watch the horse and rider disappear into a cloak of trees. It's moments like these when I forget about my cell phone, my iPod, my deadlines, my obligations, and remember that even here, in the fast-paced frenzy of a Hamptons summer, there is a simpler life.

In the Springs area alone, there are more than 300 horses living in people's backyards. These horses are exercised on the roads, trails and beaches. But now there is a new park called Springs Park, a 42-acre site off Three-Mile Harbor Road that may turn into a playground for both horses and their riders.

This property was once the Springs Nursery, and its destiny is up in the air. A group of horse lovers in the community, though, has formed a committee to petition that the open space should be dedicated to equestrian use.

Have you ever been to a doggy park?

Particularly in cities, where many people don't have backyards to accommodate the overflowing energy of their dogs, these meeting places have sprung up. Owners are seen lining the benches as their puppies play fetch and tug o' war.

Out here in the country, horses are relatively common. But if a dog needs an acre to run around, then a horse needs many times that. If you board your horse at a major stable, then you have the use of their paddocks and pastures, so your horse will have plenty of space. Many people here have horses on their own smallish property, but they exercise their horses religiously on the trails and beaches.

This proposal would benefit all horse owners and horses in the area. The 42-acre site would be devoted to the exercise and play of local horses and riders. No lessons or rentals have been proposed: it is only for people who have their own horses. People could either transport their horses to the park by trailer, or ride there.

In the proposal, which was submitted by Bernette Schoenster and signed by 150 people, the issue of horse manure is discussed. Manure is a natural fertilizer, and the Natural Resources Department would have a composting area to utilize this.

For those who are always worried about the East End losing its rural identity, this is certainly a step in the right direction. How many options are there for an empty space in East Hampton? This property will be put to some use for the town, regardless, as it was bought in 2001 for $1.6 million from the Community Preservation Fund.

The equestrian culture thrives here, and the fact that horses and riders aren't relegated to their own private properties creates a community that we can all enjoy. Granted, I wish I could be on horseback as the sun slips behind the clouds on Abraham's Path, but I still feel comfort just having to slow my car down and watch a horse's tail swish back and forth as it disappears into amber woods.

ter circulation around the engine caused by struggling at low RPMs in second gear. I leaned forward and imagined myself flying a bi-plane with smoke coming out the tail but now with the dirt airstrip in sight. I'd make it, and I'd give the old girl a rest. I did.

After the finish, I spoke briefly to the Amatos. He is a schoolteacher in the East Quogue School District where they live. She works in her home developing software for Misys Computer Systems, a British firm. They met at the Rotations Cycling Shop in Southampton and have been married five years. She's never beaten him.

"I really gave it a shot," she said. "But it just wasn't happening."

"It might have happened," her husband said, "but then I saw Mike Bottini coming up and didn't want to lose to HIM."

Ah, chivalry.

College Memories

The Tru Blu, Panty Raids, Playboy Bunnies, Surfing and Keene's

By Alan Michael Braveman

On a bright sunny day forty years ago this June, I took my first drive from Roslyn, Long Island to Southampton College. The Long Island Expressway did not go beyond exit #50 or #51 at that time. The most direct route was along Sunrise Highway to Montauk Highway, which was a meandering road through tiny little towns that seemed to be almost non-existent except for a traffic light and or a candy store selling "Hoagies and Subs." I made that first trip to the far reaches of the East End of Long Island not knowing what to expect. Southampton College was brand new, small and looking for students and I was looking for a college to attend. I stopped at what is now "Slow Jacks" in Westhampton and I remember having a hamburger and Coke to settle my increasingly nervous stomach as I checked my map and got closer to Southampton. No one at the Drive-In knew anything about the College but they told me to keep driving and I would sooner or later arrive in Southampton (they knew where that was) and to "just ask around town." As I meandered along Montauk Highway I suddenly noticed a large gated entrance and a sign that said "Southampton College." I drove up what seemed an impossibly long driveway and stared at what then appeared to be ominous looking steps. I parked in a spot marked "Visitors" and went up the steps to Southampton Hall and began a journey that was to last more than 40 years.

I remember the admissions interview and the magic words "you're the kind of student we want... Unfortunately we don't have sufficient Dormitory space..... you will have to find accommodations off-campus. There is a place

But not at the "Blu." The Blue was pure fantasy for a hormone driven young man. A sawdust covered floor, cheap but sustainable food: beer, pretzels, an occasional burger or Pizza, great rock and roll, coeds galore, a few female townies and a room up the stairs. If you lived at the Blue it was always "magic time." The rooms all had linoleum floors and they were cold and drafty with small single beds that often collapsed in the middle of the night due to unknown stresses.

Classes were mostly taught in Southampton Hall or, on a nice day, out on the lawn under a tree. There was a free and liberated spirit to the campus. We had professors we loved, professors we feared because "they graded too hard" and professors we never wanted to fail. These wild men of academia were all different but they shared a single purpose. They wanted to impart their knowledge of the world and open our minds to learning, no matter what the subject.

We had our meals, mystery meat everyday and lots of chewy macaroni and cheese in the cafeteria in Wood Hall. We were encouraged to carve our names in the wooden tables in the Rathskeller for posterity. We had Sweetheart Contests where fraternities sponsored Sorority down the road, many of our other male students live there, it is called the "Tru Blu." Ask for John and tell him you will need a room for the fall."

The adventures began.

The War in Viet Nam raged on, there were Peace Marches, Racial Equality Marches, Pickets and Protesters and we had a man from Texas as president sharing the white house with people called Lady Bird and Linda Bird.

Sisters and you could vote by putting a penny into a big glass jar under her picture. We went and listened to "the Ramsey Lewis Trio" when they came to entertain us and danced to the Rascals at the Canoe Place Inn. My fraternity, Sigma Alpha Mu, sponsored the very first East Coast Surf Contest and Sports Illustrated came to cover it. Murph the Surf was the star. He was the guy who stole the Star of India, the world's largest sapphire. Later we talked the Playboy Club into sending their "basketball team" of Playboy Bunnies out to Southampton College so we could raise money for the Heart Fund. We charged anyone who wanted to "Play with the Bunnies" $50.00 per minute and loads of previously hostile "townies" were suddenly converted to "friends." The townspeople gawked in amazement as the White New York City Stretch Limousine filled with laughing bunnies drove through town followed by a cavalcade of horn-blowing student filled cars with banners and the Playboy flag flying. We packed the gym with people who never attended a college event before. We had love-ins and be-ins and we covered the campus with soap bubbles and watched the flagpole to see if the girls were allowed to wear pants to class. We had panty raids in the girls dorms and Fraternity parties at the Canoe Place Inn and drank our beer at John Jakes "Hansom House" or at Todd's Anchorage on Main Street where you could get great pizza but no clean silverware. We bought our pipe tobacco and sweaters at Silvers and hung out at Bob Keene's bookstore and listened in awe as Bob Keene and Dr.

Levisohn argued philosophical points of view. We filled all the seats at Sip and Soda and waltzed into Crutchleys for sweet empty Crullers. We never bought any clothes at Harry Franks but Abercrombie and Fitch sold us our first Safari Jacket. John the Barber cut our hair on campus and that condom that never came out of the wallet was quietly bought in town at one of the drug-stores.

I was the first College student ever to address the Southampton Rotary. I asked the business owners to help themselves by advertising in the Windmill, the college paper. They said yes and we had a commercial and artistic success filled with the best cartoon advertising and writing on any campus. We had a great mentor and friend in Dan Rattiner, who was just starting his own paper in those days. We had great days on the beach and boring afternoon classes on the theory of volleyball because we had no gym of our own. Long Island University tried selling its Brooklyn Campus and we bused in our students and faculty to protest and helped keep it alive. They did not lift a finger, though, 40 years later to help keep Southampton alive.

Some of us took jobs in town as waiters, bus-boys, or stock boys in Bohacks and cooks in local restaurants like the ActIV. Some of us ran off to get married and some, never graduated, a few came back years later to finish up. Some of us stayed in school to avoid the draft and some of us got arrested for smoking pot or not paying enough alimony. We held traffic court on campus and snuck our girlfriends out of dorms through back windows.

We were a whole fraternity of food testers in the cafeteria who somehow ate for free. We paved the college parking lot with Student Government money. We had Skeet and Trap clubs, a Cinematography Club with one member but lots of equipment and the curious Centurions club for Viet Nam veterans. We had an amazing basketball team that kept winning against all the odds but no gym of our own. We watched the Scotch Mist Inn burn to the ground. We went up and poked around the ashes the next day and took some pictures to memorialize it. The fire was a small harbinger of the future outside our cloistered world of classrooms, textbooks, exams, getting an early tan at the beach, yearbooks, class rings and graduation plans.

We lived that way until Martin Luther King

Beach Bus

Go For It, Southampton, Charge a Few $$, and Make People Happy

By David Lion Rattiner

Locals don't realize how good they have it. At any moment, at any time of day, they can get in their cars and drive to any beach in the town they live in. They can do this without any fear of getting a parking ticket from a man in a brown outfit. City people, on the other hand, have to get crafty. They have to drop their kids off at the beach, then drive miles away to a parking spot at a hotel or a restaurant, then walk back all the way to the beach. Some smart city folk will put a bicycle in their car then pedal to the beach and some, the most desperate of all, will call a taxicab. Some just park at the beach parking lot and pay the penalty. Sometimes you can pay for parking on the weekends and sometimes, there is no parking at all.

The business of parking without a beach sticker is an intellectual battle between the rich and the local government. It is a special battle, because it frustrates the renters that come out for the summer. The locals ostracize them. To the renters, seeing a beach sticker in someone else's window reminds them that they are not allowed the freedom that so many others have. A beach sticker to a tourist in the Hamptons is bacon on the dining room table to a pooch. Well, the Town of Southampton is considering throwing these people a bone.

Town Supervisor Patrick A. Heaney said last Friday that he would like to fund a summer project, with around $25,000, to provide a shuttle service to the good people that come out to the town and spend their money in the shops. The shuttle program is a service targeted for people that want to hang out at the beautiful beaches at Saggs Main in Sagaponack and Flying Point in Water Mill.

The idea is relatively simple. Have people park at vacant lots, such as the Bridgehampton School. Naturally, a school parking lot is not very busy on the weekends or at all in the summer. Once parked, they will

MONTAUK RUGBY GOES FOR NATIONAL TITLE JUNE 11

By Joe Werkmeister

By day, they are carpenters, landscapers and bartenders – a group of everyday guys, ranging from 17-year-old to 50-year-old men. By night, they bond around a common desire, a craving for competition, in forming one of the top rugby teams in the nation.

"For some reason, they discovered rugby and they love it," Paul Cleary said of the Montauk Sharks.

Cleary, coach and player for the Sharks Division III rugby team, is the man largely responsible for the team's recent resurgence, which includes a 5 p.m. date Saturday, June 11th with Pearl City in San Diego's "Little Q Rugby Complex" in Qualcomm Stadium for a national championship.

After nearly folding last year, the rugby program, which started in 1973, is at a near zenith. With a win Saturday, the Sharks can cap off an undefeated season with what Cleary believes might be the first of any local team to win a national championship.

The Sharks defeated the Cleveland Rovers and Stanislaus May 21 and 22 in Omaha, Nebraska, respectively, to win the Elite 8 of the U.S.A. National Championship tournament and advance to the championship game.

Just getting to San Diego won't satisfy these guys.

"We're going there to win," Cleary said. "We're not traveling 3,000 miles to lose."

San Diego seemed like the last place in the world the Montauk players would end up at this time last year. The team struggled to maintain the program as the number of players kept decreasing and morale slipped. Fewer players forced the team to drop from Division II to III. Cleary said Division II requires teams to play two games on Saturday and Division III only requires one game, and the Sharks couldn't get on a senior transportation bus, kind of like those buses that you hop on when you want to rent a car in Florida, and get shipped to the beach. The bus would run back and forth all day, making it possible for people to enjoy the beach without any worry of getting a ticket, their cars safe and sound at a high school parking lot.

The Town of Southampton seems to have it all figured out. They conducted a study, that's right, a study, to determine if the beaches have a parking problem. The name of the firm that was hired to conduct the study to determine the elusive question, "why do beaches not have enough parking spaces and which ones have the fewest spaces available?" is called Abrams-Cherwony and Associates. They are a Philadelphia transportation and planning consulting firm. Using complicated analysis techniques, such as trying to park at a beach on the weekend, they determined that there was a problem with parking at beaches due to the fact that there were not enough parking spaces. They also figured out which beaches were the most difficult to find parking spaces at. Why a firm was hired to answer these questions is also an elusive question in itself, considering that any idiot could have told you that Sagg Main and Flying Point have parking problems. It is unimportant to think about how the town figured out that there is a parking problem at the beaches; the point is they figured it out.

They also figured out how to run this bus service on the cheap using buses that they already have but do not use, and parking lots that they already have but do not use. The buses are going to come from the town's small senior transportation buses, which can carry 12 to 14 passengers and a wheelchair. These buses are very rarely used on the weekends and holidays. All that is left to worry about is paying a staff, fuel and maintenance cost of the buses. All of this at a cost for the summer is around $15,000. They are predicting that marketing the project could run them $8,000. The buses would run on fifteen to twenty minute intervals and would only be available while lifeguards are on duty.

This is good news to the summer people, bad news for the one or two seniors that want a bus ride on the weekends and also fairly bad news for the lifeguards that work at Sagg Main and Flying Point. The lifeguards at these beaches, who already make rescues on average once a week, are going to be responsible for more people. This is also going to be bad news for the guys that have to empty the trash bags at the beach, because more people mean more trash. However, it is a great idea because getting to the beach is important, and the summer people are important to the town as well. There should be enough beach at these beaches to go around, for everyone.

It shattered the silence.

Again.

After the pain of President John F Kennedy's assassination in 1963, here it was again. Deadly and awesome, reality stuck its ugly head up. The America we knew was under assault and we were in the middle. Assassination conversations filled the classrooms and our days and nights. When it was finally receding, a little, and we were getting ready to celebrate our graduation it happened once again.

Robert Kennedy was assassinated.

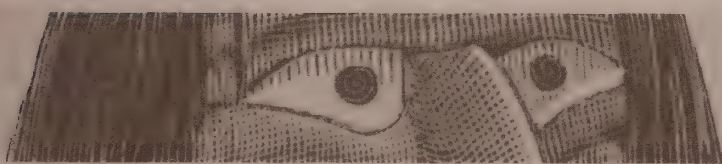

We graduated a few days later but for many it was bitter sweet. We were leaving the sheltered environment of the classroom and campus to enter the real world and nothing would ever be the same again.

When I walked up those front steps to Southampton Hall many years ago I never envisioned my school closing. I thought like many other that it would always be here.

Yet here I am, forty years later, the President of the Southampton College Alumni Association, having just presided over what could have been the last reunion on our campus. It was a great success with almost 140 people in attendance. I am now supposed to lead an alumni, 7500 strong, into the future without a college to call home. It is a daunting task but I have been well prepared. I went to Southampton College...

Schneiderman's Solution

Legislator Proposes Daring Plan to Solve Pesticides Problem

By Mark P. Greenstein

Suffolk County uses two times more pesticides by weight than any other county in the state based on the Department of Environmental Conservation's latest report. Suffolk uses an estimated three and a half million pounds per year of pesticides.

"The County has the power to take action to protect its groundwater and the health of its residents including the potential exposure to toxic chemicals," legislator Jay Schneiderman (R Montauk) says. "Chemical pesticides are the number one contaminant found in Suffolk County's drinking water."

"There are certain chemicals from pesticides that are breaking down in the soil," says Prudence Carbine of the East Hampton Environmental Committee, "Or that have broken down and we don't know exactly how or why but we suspect that they come together in a combination with other chemicals that are, perhaps, toxic. We want to make the public aware that these dangers."

Legislator Jay Schneiderman wants to pass bill, IR2102-04 to prohibit and control the use of suspected carcinogens as well as neurotoxins, endocrine disruptors and reproductive toxins. These pesticides, which include insecticides, fungicides and herbicides, all work in different ways to eliminate and kill pests such as insects, fungus, and weeds. By attacking the pests' endocrine systems, reproductive and or nervous systems, these pests can be destroyed.

Jay Schneiderman's bill would also prohibit unlicensed applicators, including homeowners, from applying these pesticides to their own lawns. His bill would not affect farmers or commercial use such as use against ticks, mosquitoes and poison ivy.

"However, these pesticides will not be used preventatively but only selectively for spot treatments. We don't want people to cover their entire lawn with pesticides so they never get a dandelion. The health of our children is

BAGS OF GIFTS FOR EVERYONE ON THE HAMPTON JITNEY

By Dan Rattiner

At two forty five on the afternoon of June 1, I took the Hampton Jitney from Bridgehampton to New York. On board were the driver, the steward and about ten passengers. This is the top of the line Amabassador Service at that hour, and with ten passengers each in a comfortable black leather armchair, we were about half full.

Ordinarily, this is intended as a rolling oasis of tranquility. They even tell you that — or the video on the screen overhead does. It comes on to explain everything about your trip, and right after the part where they tell you to silence your cell phones for the duration, they even use that word, tranquility. People read, sleep, listen to music on earphones or talk quietly to one another. The steward offers snacks or sodas or water from a galley in the back by the bathroom.

On this particular trip, however, as I was settling in but still before we departed, I noticed them bringing bright yellow goodie bags on board, the sort that you are given as you leave a party. I counted them. Ten. What was this all about? I soon found out. After we left the Omni in Southampton, with just the Airport Connections and Manhattan ahead, they were handed out. One to each traveler.

As the steward, Christian, gave me mine, he asked if I would like a sip of complimentary champagne. I said sure. And he brought it. This never happened before.

"Is this some kind of occasion?" I asked.

"Nope," he said. "Just a little surprise for our customers. We expect to be doing this every once in awhile for the Ambassador customers."

As we rolled along, I inspected what I had gotten. The bag, bright yellow, was from juli b. Inside were all sorts of goodies. Mostly which women would like. I got a box of Vichy Thermal from the highway just as you come into town from the west. It fronts on the south onto Mecox Bay, and its main entrance is on the north, facing onto the Village Green with the big windmill. Now the Sisters have put the place up for sale, and, any day now, they are expected to announce the winning bidder.

But there is something quite remarkable about the way they have gone about this sale. They put the mansion up for sale for $25 million. Last week, they announced that they have received ten bids for more than that amount. But they are not necessarily going to choose the highest bidder. They have decided that the mansion must never be subdivided. (Twelve condominiums could be legally built on the property, in addition to the mansion.)

And so they have asked each of the high bidders to make a pledge not to subdivide the property, but to keep the 23 bedroom, 13 bathroom mansion intact well into the future. The bidder making the highest bid with that pledge, in writing I presume, is the one they will accept.

A third good thing this past week has been the announcement that Southampton Town is studying the idea of operating a shuttlebus between downtown Bridgehampton and Sag Harbor Main Beach, and between downtown Southampton and Flying Point Beach. In both cases, near the center of the towns they are looking at high school parking lots, completely unused in the summertime, in the hopes that they can arrange with the local school districts for people without town beach parking stickers to park there and then shuttle down to the ocean during the summertime for lifeguard protected ocean beach swimming. The shuttle should go back and forth at twenty-minute intervals from 9 to 5. There certainly are miles and miles of beach really pretty vacant except for a few areas. It is owned by the public and the non-bicycle riding public that owns it will this way be able to get there to use it.

It's important to note that when people say they can't go to the beach because they don't have a sticker for it, they really mean they can go to the beach, but they can't park a car down there. The bus solves the problem.

The fourth nice thing is an offer by one of the richest men in America, billionaire Robert F. X. Sillerman to financially help out all employees of the former Southampton College who are now out of a job and without an income. It is believed that about a dozen people fit into this category, and some who have been contacted say they appreciate the offer and they will take him up on it.

Ordinarily, charity is a good thing. But this offer is as a gift, not charity. Here are the interesting considerations. Mr. Sillerman, for ten years, was the Chancellor of this college, its guiding force and largest private donor. On another level, however, he worked at the discretion of the Board of Directors of Long Island University, which had built this campus. After Mr. Sillerman had spent $20 million of his own money to renovate the campus, which it badly needed, LIU said they couldn't raise the matching $20 million Sillerman had them agree to. As a result, since funding was needed at other LIU campuses in Brookville and Brooklyn, in June 2004, LIU announced the closing of the 1,400 student undergraduate program at Southampton campus, as of June, 2005.

Although it does seem likely that this campus will shortly be taken over by SUNY Stony Brook University (for about $35 million) and reopened with an undergraduate program a year after this coming September, there has been the issue of the administration that either quit early or stuck by LIU Southampton to help make an orderly transition. Many people in the administration quit and left for other jobs. But about 20 stayed to the end, which was graduation this past week, and about half of those have been unsuccessful in making new plans after the paychecks stop, which is this week. They are not disabled or indigent and they will soon be all right. But in great appreciation for their sticking it out, the Chancellor — who himself is out of this academic job — has made this offer. It is a fine offer and we feel just fine with those who take him up on it.

As for Mr. Sillerman, he is not without work. He recently bought the marketing rights to the late Elvis Presley for $300 million. And two weeks ago he bought the TV show American Idol for another staggering sum. He'll do fine, because entertainment marketing is what he knows best. We salute him.

Other good news this past week has been the news that the Town of East Hampton is looking into ways to give commercial fishermen in this area a tax break. Also that the Hayground School is going to be offering its students this September courses in Cooking, taught by regional chefs.

The final piece of news worth mentioning was the throwing out of the lawsuit intended to tie up the proposed West Side Stadium next to the Javits Center. It was brought by the firm mentioned for doing a good thing at the start of this article, because the creation of this Stadium, although it could bring New York City the 2012 Olympics with its windfall of several billion dollars, it might impact Madison Square Garden, a firm owned by them, and cost them some bucks. We are all for the throwing out of this ridiculous lawsuit. Let the fate of the Stadium be decided based on its merits.

By Alex Roosenburg

Teacher turned model turned actress? A life showered with success, love, and 7 children? You may think this sounds exhaustingly impossible, but to Kate Capshaw that just sounds like life.

Born in Fort Worth, Texas to an airline worker father and a beautician/travel agent mother, Kathleen Sue Nail was no stranger to hard work and dedication. After working as a waitress at Coco's restaurant in St. Louis during her high school years, Kate Capshaw went on to the University of Missouri for her undergraduate degree in History. She also traveled to the south of France to study French at the French Institute. After earning her Master's Degree in Special Education, also at the University of Missouri, and spending two years teaching exceptional education classes, Kate Capshaw's life took a "dramatic" change.

In your classic "move to New York in pursuit of an acting career" scenario, Capshaw jumped right into the world of the dramatic arts.

She started with small roles in commercials and soap operas before making her film debut in 1982 in A Little Sex. Perhaps her most famous role was that of Willie Scott in Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom in 1984, for which she beat out 120 actresses for the female lead.

"I'd often thought how much I'd like to meet him [Steven Spielberg] because I admire him so much," Capshaw has said, "But when I realized it was actually going to happen, I thought 'What can I say to him that he hasn't heard before? Gee, I loved E.T.' That would be ridiculous. So when we finally met I said nothing. When the meeting was over, he got up and said, 'Thanks for not saying anything about E.T.'"

It has been said that Capshaw's roles and acting talent improved as she continued to be cast in films — in 1995 she was highly praised for her performance in How to Make an American Quilt, starring Winona Ryder and Anne Bancroft. Kate Capshaw has also been seen in made-for-TV movies including "Missing Children: A Mother's Story" (1982) and "Her Secret Life" (1987). More recently, Kate has been in smaller, quieter roles, in Black Rain (1989), Love at Large (1990), and My Heroes Have Always Been Cowboys (1991). She also was a regular on the brief but funny TV series "Black Tie Affair" (1993).

Capshaw's role in Indiana Jones was not just a landmark for her professional career, it also marked the beginning of her life with her current husband: Steven Spielberg. While busy producing and directing Capshaw and Harrison Ford in the adventure flick, Spielberg still found time to fall in love with the disarmingly beautiful leading lady — they went on to marry in 1991.

Arguably the most commercially influential director of all time, Spielberg boasts several films among movie history's top ten biggest moneymakers. At the fresh young age of 21, he launched his professional career with Universal, signing a seven-year contract. With the phenomenal success of the now infamous thriller, Jaws, Spielberg became an overnight sensation, going on to direct and produce more films than this paper has room to recognize. In 1995, Spielberg made worldwide headlines in joining up with famed executives David Geffen and Jeffrey Katzenberg to form DreamWorks SKG, the renowned multimedia empire.

As for Kate Capshaw herself, a former model for the Ford Agency, she remains busy supporting charities such as the Blue Heron Foundation. She also co-hosted a fundraiser program that is held yearly at celebrity houses, recently at Kate Hudson's home, to aid the Children's Action Network and Westside Children's Center.

This is all well and good, but what does this successful and talented couple have to do with us out here in the Hamptons? In a 2001 issue of

New York Magazine, Kate Capshaw and Steven Spielberg were listed amongst the "6 Most Gracious Hosts on the East End Hamptons Living." With a gorgeous 12-acre retreat at Georgica Pond in East Hampton, the family is famously gracious to guests including Gwyneth Paltrow, Ben Affleck, Brad Pitt, Tom Cruise and Hillary and Bill Clinton. A cavalry of nannies watches over the kids, all of whom have their own rooms on the property, while guests may enjoy the private stables and riding ring, boating on the pond, an in-house chef, and high-speed Internet connections in every room. Interestingly, there is no screening room in the house.

The family is also known to take their guests for weekend dinners at Nick & Toni's and Sunday brunches at Babette's. The family themselves enjoy hiding out at Rowdy Hall for a comfortable dinner of great American food.

Spielberg and Capshaw boast seven wonderful children: Max Spielberg and Jessica Capshaw, both from their first marriages, and Sawyer, Theo, Destry, Mikeala, George and Sasha Spielberg. The name of their estate in the Hamptons is "Quelle Farm."

Quelle Farm? Quelle Famille!

So when we finally met I said nothing. When the meeting was over, he got up and said, 'Thanks for not saying anything about E.T.'

book review: the sky's the limit

By Eunice Miller

Steven Gaines' entertaining narrative, The Sky's the Limit: Passion and Property in Manhattan is a prequel and sequel to the film The Age of Innocence. It is a social history of old and new New York. It is the tale of two sides of the city, the co-operatives and condominium buildings that exist there, the people that desire to sojourn in them and the masters over them. The "passion" is an expression of the drama of seduction, solicitation, acceptance and rejection. The main characters are the exclusive apartment buildings of East and Upper West Side Manhattan and their stories. Gaines has made the walls talk and we are all ears.

Anyone who lives in Manhattan knows the names of these buildings, among them 820 Fifth Ave, One Sutton Place South, San Remo, and The Dakota. New York is peculiar in that it is the building that defines you more than the neighborhood.

The people Gaines tells us about are the rich and the powerful who are part of the Manhattan triangle. These are the people who also inhabit the Hamptons and Palm Beach. The celebrities that we know are: Ralph Lauren, Jerry Seinfeld, Calvin Klein, Billy Joel, Steven Spielberg and Ronald Perelman. Gaines has a handy index so you can quickly check on their stories of acceptance and rejection.

The building that is first up in this tale is 820

Fifth Avenue. "It is a vortex of desire in Manhattan..... a stately fortress of glistening gray limestone crowned with a modest copper cornice." Some of the most powerful people have lived here, including Robert Goelet, who was the owner of land that became Rockefeller Center. At 820 Fifth Ave. the arbitrator over whom to "accept" is Jayne Wrightsman, "the elegant, small boned rara avis of society."

It was of great import that Tommy Hilfiger, a man in the "schmata" business, who created ghetto clothes that would have been prohibited from the closets of 820, was accepted. Gaines unwraps for us the machinations that Alice Mason, "the doyenne of all the carriage-trade brokers" went through to have this happen. Unfortunately, Hilfiger had business reverses, got divorced and never occupied the $13.5 million, fourth floor, apartment.

Do not be misled, Hilfiger's acceptance did not mean that the rules of acceptance and standards were in abeyance. Quite to the contrary, consistent with old New York, the co-ops are a world of rules. Gaines cleverly weaves them into the fabric of his narrative.

Murder and suicide are against the rules. Dogs can be a status symbol and welcomed, although there might be a restriction on height and weight.

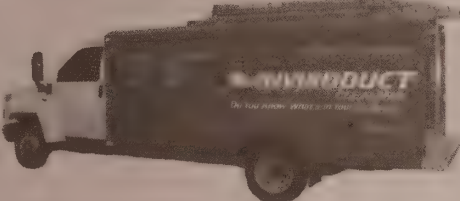

Renovations is the word that sends shivers through the delicate Herrera-clad inhabitants of the Beresford. The Beresford has a six-member board. Jerry Seinfeld bought an apartment there from Isaac Stern in 1998 for $4.35 million, and when a promised four-month renovation plan turned into two years, he was fined $500 a day. Subsequently, after Seinfeld purchased an adjoining apartment, the Beresford made tougher rules — all the work had to be completed in ninety days.

Gaines changes the pace and we empathize with the hard life of the Ansonia, built in 1904. It was fathered by Will Stokes, a man who fantasized about young women and his dream hotel. The Ansonia was compared to a "Parisian whore" and a "wedding cake." It was home to opera star Eleanor Steber, baseball player Babe Ruth and then the Gay Continental Baths, with entertainers such as Bette Midler appearing there. Its final low point was reached when it was home to Plato's Retreat, a swingers' hangout. Ironically, earlier, Stokes hit his low when two showgirls shot him in the leg. Stokes recovered. Later, so did the Ansonia. Jesse Krasnow, head of Lefferts Fore, the "Salvation Army" of distressed buildings, came to the rescue. Recently an apartment sold for almost $4 million.

Gaines has succeeded in stirring our "passion" in a tale about "property." The sky is the limit in this book!

Who's Here

By Gordin & Christiano

Ask around the New York theatre community about Manny Kladitis, Founder and President of Niko Associates located in the Sardi's Building, and you will quickly learn everyone knows him, the consensus being that he is a really nice guy; a mensch, to use an old Jewish expression. Since 1983 he has been listed as Executive or Associate Producer on 19 Broadway shows. Rudolph Nureyev, a notorious perfectionist, called him the Impresario. He has been described as a compulsive worker, a dream maker, and a good friend.

I met with Mr. Kladitis several times at the end of the summer last year in hopes of finding out what makes him tick. Our first meeting was at his new home in East Hampton, where he was still completing some of the final details. The approach to his house was up a long winding drive past an enormous gate. Greeting me at the door, Mr. Kladitis, a sturdy imposing figure, was surprised to learn the workmen had allowed me to use the driveway, which only that morning had been newly graveled. He graciously showed me into his dramatic home, but was clearly distracted. He was concerned his dogs might leave the grounds, as the electronic gates were still not working.

Excusing himself to roust them into the house from the front gates where they were loudly guarding the place, Manny returned with two powerfully built alert dogs that I would estimate weighed in at close to 100 pounds each. I learned they were Alpha Blue Blood Bulldogs, a rare breed from England that make loyal companions and are fiercely protective of their owners. They were named Clarence and Alabama after the two characters played by Christian Slater and Patricia Arquette in the 1993 Quentin Tarantino film True Romance. Although magnificent animals and apparently friendly, Manny quickly picked up that they intimidated me and I was somewhat apprehensive of them. He ushered them out back by the pool, where they decided to go for a swim.

I was offered a cool drink and given a grand tour of his new home. The house was characterized by oversized furniture and rooms with an impeccable attention to details. Everything gleamed and was in perfect order. The master bedroom was most impressive and his summer residence boasted a home office as well. We finally settled into some new patio furniture in a screened room overlooking the pool, where I could see Clarence and Alabama had made themselves quite comfortable. Having just returned from their swim, they had draped themselves rather human-like over separate lounge chairs to take some sun.

As we began talking I discovered he was indeed a hard working man, whose now deceased Greek immigrant parents would return to Greece every winter. With three older sisters, Manny was the baby of the family. His youngest sister is 7 years his elder. He grew up watching television during the 1950s and early 1960s, which was magical to the young boy. At the age of 16, while still in high school, he took a summer job working with the Kenly Players, which was the largest summer stock company in the United States. Working with them he would often be involved in mounting a show a week. That job would affect the rest of his life.

The following season, working as prop boy with the Kenly Players on a tour of Call Me Madam with Ethel Merman, he created a hatbox for her out of jessup board, which she complained was too heavy. She tried to have him fired, but he would not only survive her, but triumph. He advanced to stage managing shows. Attending Miami College, he decided to change his major to Theatre, and there was no turning back. The magic he had experienced on television would now be found on the live stage of the theatre.

Soon after graduating from college Manny worked as company manager for the John Houseman City Center Acting Company, in 1971 and 1972. This was his first experience touring and at that point he was in his twenties, the same age as many of the actors. Patti LuPone and Kevin Kline were members of the company, which was trucked around in one truck with one driver. Manny said, "Moving shows is like making magic." One of the seven shows they did in the rotating repertory was The Time of Your Life directed by Jack O'Brian (Dirty Rotten Scoundrels). The knowledge and skills he gained in this period would continue to serve him for the rest of his career. Manny said, "Touring is a very complicated circumstance. You have a group of people who go into alien communities, that basically stick together, and live together." The truck driver is someone that everyone relies on for a lot of extraordinary things outside of just trucking the shows around, which you would not suspect or expect. Sometimes the truck drivers are even psychiatrists. Producing is very similar. If you can get everyone to rely upon you and come to you with their problems, you have the opportunity to be an outstanding producer.

Manny further honed his skills working with the press agents for the Broadway shows A Little Night Music and Pacific Overtures. Working under Gene Wolsk, who currently lives in Montauk, he quickly made the transition from company manager to general manager on Sly Fox with Jackie Gleason in the late 1970s and learned the wisdom of knowing everything that is going on in every area of any production he was involved with. He credits that period as instrumental in his development as a manager and pushing him towards producing.

He grew quite fond of Jackie Gleason, and would often find himself being called upon at more important than a dandelion or two."

Schneiderman is opposed by "a multi billion dollars industry that refuses to allow any regulations of its products. I know the industry is lobbying against my bill," he says.

Even though the bill includes an exemption for agriculture, The Long Island Farm Bureau's President, Joseph Gergela said, "Suffolk County does not hold statutory authority to regulate pesticides." Gergela is in favor of education and training for appropriate pesticide use rather than regulating it.

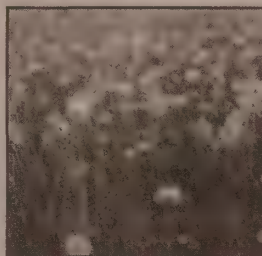

However, according to Samuel Jackling, from the State Department of Environmental Conservation, located at Albany, "When used according to the label these pesticides should have no unreasonable risk to humans and the environment."

Some alternatives to harmful pesticides are organic and natural pesticides like BT (Bacillus Thuringiensis) "which has been used for more than 20 years by organic growers," says Dale Moyer, the Agricultural Director of the Cornell Research Program which is located in Riverhead.

"BT can be used to control gypsy moths, caterpillars on cabbage and many kinds of beetles. This has little or no impact on the environment and is used by organic growers. We prefer pesticides with little or no impact on the environment. Other alternatives are sulphurs, pyrethium, which is an effective natural pesticide that comes from the chrysanthemum flower. We are trying to look at alternatives to pesticides by looking at new varieties of biological materials and trying to develop strategies to minimize pesticide use."

Farmers or commercial applicators all now have to be trained and licensed in Suffolk County to use pesticides for nurseries, vineyards, gardens, farms and homes. Every three years they need to take required classes to renew their license.

For lawn care, Moyer suggests, "Make sure you have thick grass since it will compete with weeds and will minimize your weed problem especially against dandelions and crab grass and make sure to get the right grass seed whether for shady or sunny areas.

Although labor intensive, digging and pulling weeds by hand is an acceptable way to rid your lawn of dandelions and weeds."

Some of the groups who have signed in support of Legislator Jay Schneiderman's Pesticide Control Bill include: the Neighborhood Network, Citizens Campaign for the Environment, Group of the North Fork, Suffolk County Water Authority, Amagansett Springs Aquatic Protection, East Hampton's Environmental Health Committee, the Long Island Breast Cancer Coalition and many others.

down. I felt like a lonely voice in the wind as we approached November and the elections. Then Nixon won in a huge landslide on Election Day.

Watergate was a building in Washington where the Democrats had their Campaign Headquarters. On June 17, 1972, just five months before the election, a security guard at the complex noticed there was a piece of tape on a door connecting a basement stairwell and a parking garage. Thinking it was something left there by a long departed cleaning crew, he removed it. But on his next rounds, it was back. He called the police, and they arrested six men who were busy bugging the phones in the Democratic Campaign Headquarters.

"Just an ordinary burglary," said Nixon's Press Secretary. It didn't seem like it. Soon it was determined that one of the burglars, at his arrest, had a little address book in his wallet that had the phone number of a man who worked as a special agent for the White House. Another burglar on the property, was found to be the Chief of Security at the Committee to Re-elect the President.

It was at that point that I wrote what I did. However, somebody — it turned out to be Nixon himself — kept everything hush hush. He was the President and our Commander in Chief. He said nobody should say anything. Soon, however, the police investigating the "burglary" also found that a large five-figure check written to one of the burglars had been from the Nixon Presidential Campaign. Still nothing happened. And so the election was held, and Nixon won with the largest majority ever in a Presidential election to that date.

After his re-election, two fine reporters for the Washington Post, Carl Bernstein (who lives in these parts) and Bob Woodward were assigned to try to find out the truth. After a few false starts, a man in a high place stepped forward to help them with a series of riddles and clues, meeting up with them in the shadows of a basement parking garage. They called this man Deep Throat, after a popular pornographic movie making the rounds at the time.

Deep Throat, it now turns out all these years later, was a man who had been passed over for the top job at the FBI. He remained as second in command as Nixon came to power and appointed someone above him. It rankled him. Mark Felt had complete access at his job to all the files at the FBI, and he made the decision that he owed his allegiance not to his Commander in Chief but to the United States of America. The Commander in Chief and his advisers had tried called, in order, my brother-in-law at his law office in Mineola, my friend Eric who works at the Sag Harbor Library, my brother in law at his law office in Mineola and my brother in law at his law office in Mineola. Then it called my mother in Florida again.

I had no idea it was doing this, of course, because the music was so loud, but each of them told me later how much they liked hearing "Maybelline." And they had figured out what happened.

In recent weeks, my Blackberry has learned how to call people in my computer telephone directory, which has been downloaded to the Blackberry. I suppose you know you can get your email on a Blackberry and go on the Internet and download your phone directory to a Blackberry, highlight an entry and call the number with one push of a button, and, well, now it had learned how to do this.

And it was soon after it learned how to do this that I realized that this was not a design flaw but a perk. My telephone directory has over 2,000 names. I've been adding to it for twenty-one years and I never remove anybody. And my Blackberry is now renewing old friends for me.

"Hello?"

"Who's this?"

"This is Joel Kraemer. Who is this calling?"

"Joel Kraemer! This is Dan Rattiner. Hey, we went to Millburn High School together. Remember?"

"Of course I remember."

"I was wondering..." I am struggling for words here "if you ever heard what happened to Lois Silverstein. I was thinking of you and I was thinking of her and hey, she just sort of disappeared from the face of the earth and..."

And so I have taken to simply enjoying what my Blackberry is doing for me. It's amazing.

"Hello?"

"Allison, is that you? My God, I recognize your voice."

"You called me."

"Jeez I haven't talked to you in, it must be ten years. Remember Venice? That big sheepdog? The night we took off all our clothes and jumped off the Mallory Square dock in downtown Key West?"

"I'm married."

guarantee having enough players to play two games in one day.

That's where Cleary stepped up.

"Showing up to games with eight or nine guys, that's just frustrating," he said.

Cleary started with the Sharks in 1993 and left in 1999 after getting married and buying a house. He said he saw the team falling apart and several players asked him to come back to help. So he did. The problem was clear. The team lacked organization.

"We decided to form a committee that would want to do the work," Cleary said, "and keep players on the field." With that, the Sharks now have a treasurer, secretary and manager, among others, to shoulder the burden of the everyday administrative tasks.

"It's all about organization," he said.

Cleary's intention this season was to only coach, but he decided to step back onto the field. "It helps when out on the field to correct something. I obviously have a lot of experience," he said.

The Sharks have visited San Diego before, in 1998, for the Division II championship. They finished third in the Final Four tournament. While it's difficult to compare this team to the '98 squad, Cleary said he feels this team has a closer bond. The team is committed to practices and puts in all the necessary work. And after the bone-crunching work, it's a different type of work. "It's great," Cleary said of the team's camaraderie." We all go out for a few beers after the game."

Two Sharks players will not be a part of the game Saturday, but for a noble reason. Chris Carney started Soldier Ride last year where he biked from Montauk Point to San Diego to raise money for wounded soldiers. This year, teammate Tek Vakalona is riding with him from California (Marina Del Ray where they departed on May 21st) to NYC and finally to Montauk (arriving, July 18). Vakalona considered leaving the ride for a break to play in the game, but Cleary said as of Monday it seemed unlikely. Players from around the world make up the Sharks' roster, including players from New Zealand, Ireland, England and South Africa. It's more about local players, though, for Cleary.

"In the last number of years, my thinking is to develop the game locally," he said, adding that local players will tend to feel more a part of the team as opposed to someone coming in from another country and taking their spot.

Regardless, Cleary's policy is, "if you come to train, you play," he said. Anyone can join the team. As for actually knocking off Pearl City, he said, "I think what's going to win it is our defense." He said the team is practicing a specific type of defense, which is hard to play against, and utilizes the team's strength at tackling. "They're a big forward pack and forwards tend to dominate," Cleary said. He added that Pearl City also has a good scrum.

"We're up against some stiff competition, but I think we'll do well," he said.

The team is certainly used to doing well. In its first four games, the team outscored its opponents by an eye-opening 278-10, including a 99-0 demolition of Springfield April 9.

But, Pearl City has posted just as awkward scores, such as 70-5 and 65-0.

If the Sharks can win, the reward will be in the accomplishment. Cleary said he didn't even know if there were any financial awards for the championship. "It would be nice for some sort of trophy," he said.

The Sharks maintain the program through sponsors and fund raising. All the players work regular jobs in addition to playing. In advancing to the Elite 8, the Sharks knocked off South Shore and Syracuse in the Northeastern Championships. And now it's on to San Diego. "It's all or nothing," Cleary said.

BREAKING NEWS

A Quogue man was charged with DWI after crashing his Ford sport utility vehicle in Napeague Sunday, June 5, leaving a Belgium woman dead and three others injured, East Hampton police said.

Keith Kalmus, 39, was driving alone at around 4 p.m. on Route 27 when police said he veered into the eastbound lane on the Napeague strip near Old Montauk Highway, smashing head-on into a Subaru.

Eva Bertuccioli-Krapfenbaur, 65, was taken to Southampton Hospital, where she was pronounced dead. The driver, Claudio Bertuccioli, 37, of Brooklyn, and passenger Margot Krapfenbaur, of Austria, were taken to Stony Brook Hospital. A hospital spokeswoman told Newsday Monday that Bertuccioli was in stable condition and Krapfenbaur was in critical condition. When reached Tuesday, a spokeswoman said she could not release any other information.

A fourth passenger, Rebecca G. McMillin, 34, of Brooklyn, was transported to Southampton Hospital with severe leg injuries. As of Tuesday she was listed in good condition.

Kalmus, a lawyer and former Queens assistant district attorney, is also the cousin of Daniel Pelosi, who was convicted of murder in 2001 for the death of East Hampton millionaire Theodore Ammon. Kalmus is scheduled to appear Thursday in East Hampton Town Justice Court.

The road was closed for four hours after the accident causing huge tie ups. Some motorists desperate drove around the accident by going out on the beach.

also runs the Millrose Games) and the organizational end, by Jean Lynch of Dan's Papers and a host of volunteers, including her husband, her son, and Harriet Edwards, the proof-reader at the paper, and many others. Mary Landy, the CEO of our charity, the Foundation for the Advancement of Cardiac Therapies, was on hand to help, having driven out from headquarters in Manhattan.

A host of businesses showered all the runners with gifts to take home in a goodie bag — everything from baked goods to pretzels, and Hain carrot chips to Fig Newtons, health bars, shirts and hats, Dan's Hampton Sports magazine, gift certificates and brochures. The bedraggled winners — in twelve different categories — standing on the lawn of the church, got trophies and ribbons just as the sun came out. A leading Manhattan cardiologist, Dr. Jeffrey Moses, spoke briefly about all the good works that FACT does in research and education.

Interestingly, though because of the weather this was our smallest turn out, we raised the most money for charity ever, and that was because of large cash donations made by the largest array of sponsors we have ever had, including presenting sponsor Prudential Douglas Elliman and other noteworthy sponsors including the Hain Celestial Group and the Bridgehampton National Bank. Donations in kind, which were given as gifts, included product from Adrienne Vittadini, Bodywedge 21, Pepsi Bottling Ventures, World Gym, Sen, Clearvision Optical (it was not a day for their cool sunglasses), J. T. Tortorella Custom Gunite Pools and Cucina Di Baldi Baked Goods.

We'll see you next year.

all hours of the day and night to soothe the star's wounded ego. That challenging tour would put him in the position of playing mediator between the producers and the tempestuous Gleason. His unique empathy for people and understanding of business combined so that he became the glue that kept the tour together against the greatest odds.

Working with Mitch Leigh, whom Manny described as an enormous talent and a brilliant marketing man, he truly moved into the arena of Associate Producer. They did the Yul Brenner tour of The King and I from 1980 to 1986. During this time he was Associate Producer for a revival of Mame with Angela Lansbury. From there it was a quick jump to producing and in 1991 he was part of a team that mounted an Off-Broadway production of Charles Busch's Red Scare on Sunset. Producing for Broadway now loomed as a cornerstone of his future, but he also continued to function as the General Manager to major Broadway shows.

Niko Associates, Inc., the theatrical management company Manny founded in 1988, currently manages Billy Crystal's 700 Sundays, which won a Tony Award for Best Theatrical Event. At the Drama Desk Awards, the show brought Mr. Crystal an award for Outstanding Solo Performance. I Am My Own Wife, last season's Pulitzer Prize and Tony Awarding winning play, is among Kladitis' New York credits, which include Amour; Arturo Ui starring Al Pacino; Jekyll & Hyde; Saturday Night Fever; The Ride Down Mt. Morgan; Fascinating

Rhythm; The Life; I'm Still Here.....Damn It! Starring Sandra Bernhard; Victor/Victoria starring Julie Andrews; The Gin Game starring Julie Harris and Charles Durning; The Sunshine Boys starring Tony Randall and Jack Klugman; Carol Channing's Hello Dolly!

On the road his company has managed National Tours of The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas with Ann-Margaret, Cabaret, Evita, Fiddler on the Roof, Big, Dreamgirls, Annie, West Side Story and Man of La Mancha starring Raul Julia and Sheena Easton.

As producer for the 29 city tour of The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas starring Ann-Margaret in 2001, Manny helped Peter Masterson, the co-writer of the musical's book; realize a dream he had since 1983 of having Ann-Margaret play the role of Mona. Carol Hall wrote new music and lyrics especially for the star and her costumes were done by Bob Mackie.

After the events of 9/11 Mr. Kladitis decided to scale down his life and made concentrated efforts to work differently. To that end he reduced the number of employees he keeps on permanent payroll and sold his penthouse in South Beach. Producing is more important to him than ever, and he has a project he is working on that is dear to his heart. He still visits South Beach occasionally with the dogs, but his New York City apartment as well as his new home in East Hampton is clearly his base.

I recently had lunch with Manny at Sardi's one afternoon. Afterwards we went upstairs to his offices to continue our conversation. He was animated about the current revival of Bye Bye Birdie, which he is planning on bringing to Broadway in 2006. The musical, which won the Tony Award for Best Musical in 1961, hasn't been seen on Broadway since the original production. For those who don't know, Bye Bye Birdie is satiric spoof of the pop music world about an Elvis Presley-like singer that has been drafted into the Army. His manager-songwriter plans a farewell show, and the musical is about the ramifications that show and the hip swiveling singer have on the naive residents of Sweet Apple, Ohio. The show, featuring 16 songs by Charles Strouse and Lee Adams launched their careers.

Manny is currently in negotiations with a major star, but was unable to divulge any of the details at this time. He indicated more specifics would be forthcoming before July 4th. We will just have to wait and see, but this promises to be a major Broadway happening. As we spoke Clarence was sprawled on his back with his head on the arm of the sofa in Manny's office, and Alabama was lying on the floor nearby. I was reminded of a pillow I had seen in his East Hampton home, embroidered with "A life without dogs, I think not," and realized how true it was. I remembered Manny had said the dogs had calmed him down. Maybe they had, but he was still a man on a mission.

Health Food Store Fables

By Dan Rattiner

When the woman first came into the store, Tim could see that there was going to be trouble. The woman looked to be one half flower child and one half bag lady, an odd combination that didn't make any sense whatsoever. She was about thirty-five.

Tim's store is the Provisions Health Food Store on Mail Street, Sag Harbor. There is a small café in the front and the lots of bins containing rice, almonds, flour and granola near the register in the back. The store specializes in "natural" foods.

The first thing the woman did was spend a lot of time feeling the food in the bins. She'd reach her hand in, move it around, then take it out.

"Please keep your hands out of the food," Tim said.

The woman looked up. A peculiar look.

"Why?" she asked. "This is God's food."

"Indeed it is. You know what you can do? You can use those metal serving scoops right next to each bin. Pick up the food and look at it."

I wonder what she's on, Tim thought. She must be on something or other.

The woman walked around the store and took some things off the shelves for purchase. There were paper bags around so the customers could put things in paper bags themselves. Then she walked over to the front of the store, to the café, and sat down. She ate.

Tim presented her with the bill. The woman picked up the bill, put it in the paper bag with her purchased and walked out the door onto the street. Tim ran after her.

"Hey, there's a bill. Aren't you going to pay?"

The woman blinked. Then she continued on her walk, heading down the street in a southerly direction.

"Look, it's sort of a game. The game is that when you take something, you have to pay for it. How about that?"

really had no trouble shepherding the woman in the front door. It was inside the police station, when the woman began taking off all her clothes, that Tim realized he was dealing with a loonie. A police officer came over.

"Don't you know about this lady, Tim? She's staying over at the motel."

It turned out that the lady was not only a loonie, she was also very, very rich. At the motel, she had left with the owner a blank checkbook with all the checks signed. Merchants would keep tabs on all the things she took, bring the lists over to the motel, and get paid for the purchases.

What a weird idea, Tim thought. But then, it was a small town, and things like this go on in to rig the election, had gotten caught at it, and were now covering it up.

On the other hand, he was only giving hints and leads. So maybe a part of him believed he wasn't abusing his position.

Day after day, Woodward and Bernstein followed up these leads and published articles from clues given them by Deep Throat that would move the story along. Congress became unsettled and appointed an investigator. But according to the law, the investigator could be fired by the President if he didn't like him. He did fire him. And then fired the next chief investigator. Finally he got one who did what he wanted. Robert Bork.

During this slap on the wrist investigation, one security guard for the President was undergoing a routine interview (they were all on TV) when he casually remarked that the President actually had a tape system that was in use 24 hours a day in the Oval Office to record for posterity everything that was going on. Suddenly, Congress wanted this tape. The President said no. The Supreme Court ruled in favor of the Congress, but still the President said no. Finally, after erasing parts of certain tapes, he turned over some but not others. One of those tapes, which Nixon undoubtedly thought he had erased, had recorded a conversation between

Metallic Life

While many Hamptonsites were in their backyards cookin' up homemade BBQ this past weekend, celebrity chefs David Rosengarten and Lidia Bastianich were at the Wolffer Estate, feasting on a gourmet dinner prepared by Christian Mir, chef and owner of the Stone Creek Inn in East Quogue, for the annual Pride of New York (PONY) Award party which raised more than 70K benefiting Maryhaven Center of Hope. This year's honoree was author and chef Jacques Pepin, whom Julia Child has hailed as "America's best chef."

Paris Hilton's younger sister Nicholai Olivia, a.k.a. Nicky, isn't exactly living the "Simple Life" this summer. The dark haired, blue-eyed model, actress and working Heiress to millions, is busy promoting her new clothing line Chick, which is named after her childhood nickname. Now before you judge her fashion sense, don't forget Hilton briefly studied at the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York City, and then landed a job designing handbags for Tokyo-based Samantha Thavasa. The bags quickly became favorites and were soon on the arms of famous faces including Britney Spears, Tara Reid and Pamela Anderson. This past weekend, Nicky was convinced it was a good idea to throw a fashion show at club Tavern, Saturday night, but it turned out to be a stressful experience for the young designer. Nicky didn't seem happy throughout the show, constantly rolling her eyes with discontent at the organizers. But this is one tough socialite who was ready for the unexpected, "I went to school for this. I always wanted to be a designer. I started with handbags when I was 17." The couture conscious crew at Tavern didn't seem to notice the drama, as they gawked at the models who donned jeans, mini skirts, hoodies and tank tops adorned with rhinestones and metallic. Thanks to Nicky's fashion philosophy, "I wanted to have high fashion without the high prices. I wanted (the clothes) to be accessible", you can buy an entire Chick outfit for less than an annual summer beach parking sticker. Unlike the Olsens, Nicky may actually wear her chic yet affordable fashions adding, "My fashion philosophy is that if I like it, I wear it. I'm not a snob about which looks are 'this season' and which are 'last season.' It wasn't too long ago that Nicky was rumored to have been feuding with big sis Paris, who insisted they use her name for all joint business venture products with Nicky. Paris feels the public is interested in her and the products should be called Heiress Paris. Regardless, Nicky still has big plans to create an empire. "I want to design shoes, accessories and a cosmetics line."

After the show, Nicky's boyfriend, since September of 2004, HBO's "Entourage" star Kevin Connolly, headed over to Star Room to meet Kevin's costar, Jeremy Piven who was at a VIP table next to "Touching Evil" star Jeffrey Donovan, Rachel Krupa and

25 Years Ago In Dan's Papers June 6, 1980

Elaine K.G. Benson, Her Column

Walking into the Dan's Papers office is a bit like descending into Wonderland, as Alice describes it. Not that I want to assign such roles as the Mad Hatter, Queen of Hearts, etc., but "if the shoe fits....."

The welter of back issue of the variety of Montauk this, Block Island that, and Westhampton the other is a formidable foyer introduction. Now the Guide Book, Magazine and Dan's Books and the new Fire Island edition add to the complexities of responsibilities of the small, valiant staff that tries to keep things straight, knowing that after the Potato Minithon there will be a Kite Fly, and then who knows what?

Dan, whom I have known since he was a sprout, has a Jack in the Beanstalk spirit. (Sorry to mix my literary metaphors.) His puckish megalomania knows no bounds!

Among my favorite things in Through The Looking Glass world of D's P's are the bumper sticker that reads "I Believe Dan's Papers"; the t-shirt with the picture of the windmill and the legend, "Hamptons Power and Light Co."; the little car window sticker that makes it seem as if you have joined a club if you have one on your window; and Dan's Dog, whose pink, broken leg cast has a raffish and improbable air about it.

There are always a great many young people (and one or two older ones) running around the rooms on the first floor of Dan's Papers. They have a common expression of perplexity, slightly harassed and preoccupied, as if keeping a hold on reality is as much as they can handle at the moment.

Upstairs, where Dan holes out in his charming, messy space, there is another crew of sitting down types, who must be the money men, since their mouths are pursed and they hold pencils in their hands and seem to be looking at ruled columns most of the time.

And down in the basement there is still another crew. Dan's quick copiers, as I understand it. Banished from the castle? Working their way upstairs? Who will ever know?

I visit Dan's Papers almost daily whether I need to or not. There is something comforting about its zaniness and the fact that it works!

Garden of Eden Arrives Here

By Dan Rattiner

A brand-new restaurant is opening on Springs-Fireplace Road in East Hampton on June 19th. It is called the GARDEN OF EDEN and it is a dazzlingly beautiful and romantic spot on the site where the old Pipe Dream used to be.

The Garden of Eden is the brainchild of Michael Eden, who has been summering aboard a 54' houseboat in East Hampton for the past three years. Together with his mother and his brother Lloyd, he has transformed the old place into a world of plants, flowers, mirrors, indirect lighting and romance.

"We will be providing the type of service not generally seen around here," Michael says.

Dinner, by David Pynn (formerly of the GINGERMAN in New York and Horatio's in Coconut Grove) will be French and Continental, but it will also be unusual and quite inexpensive. Priced between $6 and $12 are items such as Saddle of Lamb or Chicken Katherine, which is a boned chicken stuffed with ground beef and vegetables and cheese and covered with a sauce Mornay. There will be a light supper menu from 11 p.m. until closing with such items as tempura, salads, burgers and fondues, and there will be late night dancing on the dance floor and entertainment. (Lou Stevens and his remarkable act will open this coming weekend). Opening Thursday, June 12th, when all dinner items on the menu will be $6.95, regardless of the regular price. The offer will be repeated Friday as well.

ANNE BANCROFT, 73

East End resident Anne Bancroft, stage and screen legend, died at the age of 73, a spokesman announced Tuesday. She won the Best Actress Academy Award in 1962 for The Miracle Worker, playing Annie Sullivan, the teacher of Helen Keller. She had created the role on the Broadway stage, winning her second Tony Award for that performance. She is best known, however, as Mrs. Robinson, the cool mother who seduced her daughter's boyfriend, Dustin Hoffman, in the 1967 film The Graduate. The role earned her an Academy Award nomination, and the song "Mrs. Robinson" was written based on the character she created.

The actress died of uterine cancer on Monday at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York, said John Barlow, a spokesman for the producer Mel Brooks, her husband of 40 years. She is credited with influencing her husband to work on the stage production of The Producers.

Born Anna Maria Louise Italiano, she began working in television as Anne Marno. She was given the glamour star treatment when she moved into movies in 1952. She changed her name to Anne Bancroft because she felt "it sounded dignified."

On Broadway she was a huge success in Two for the Seesaw opposite Henry Fonda winning her first Best Actress Tony Award. She has been a star ever since.

She was the veteran of dozens of films, and won four more Academy Award Nominations for her work in The Pumpkin Eater 1964, The Graduate 1967, the ballet stage drama The Turning Point 1978, and playing a nun in the thriller Agnes of God in 1985. She moved successfully into television and won six Emmy nominations for her work there since 1992.

She complained in a 2003 interview "I'm just a little dismayed that people aren't beyond it," referring to her fame as Mrs. Robinson in The Graduate. Yet the cool elegance she displayed in that movie will always define her. Someone once said that she is the thinking man's fantasy.

Nixon and his chief aide about finding $100,000 to pay a jailed Watergate burglar now to keep him quiet. Nixon said "I could find that kind of money," and the deck of cards collapsed. Nixon was abandoned by his supporters, Nixon's top aides were jailed, the Congress began impeachment proceedings. And so, Nixon resigned and went into seclusion in San Clemente, California for two years. After his Vice President, Gerald Ford, who now became President, pardoned him, he led a more outgoing life. Memories were fading and the times were changing. He died in disgrace, but still as an important figure in the history of our country.

small towns.

"Why didn't you tell me?" Tim asked. Now he felt left out.

The woman, meanwhile, had telephoned relatives up the island to ask them to pick her up. It was an upsetting experience being in a police station with no clothes on, she said, and she wanted to leave the area. She'd been in town for about two weeks.

Indeed, a few hours later a car arrived, picked up the lady and, after settling accounts, drove back out of town in a westerly direction. She is now, perhaps, in Central Islip, somebody speculated.

Tim, incidentally, is involved in one of the few bits of street theater in the Hamptons. He and seven other people – all anti-nuclear advocates – performed the street theater two weeks ago Saturday in front of the Sagaponack General Store on Sagg Main Street.

A pickup truck came down the street carrying a large five gallon drum of "nuclear material" strapped rather loosely on the back. The straps broke and the "nuclear material" fell off and rattled loudly around, rolling in the street. The pickup stopped and some workmen got out. They had hard-hats, overalls, brooms and shovels and without further ado they began pushing the five gallon drum all over the street in a very ineffective attempt to put it back in the truck. The drum banged around noisily. Some other people handed out leaflets.

EMERGENCY EVACUATION PROCEDURES, the leaflets said on the outside. There was a drawing of Long Island showing the location of the nuclear power plant going up at Shoreham and the town of Sag Harbor to the east. You opened the leaflet up.

Inside, the leaflet read as follows: "We just wanted you to know that if there was a nuclear accident on Long Island, there is no feasible way to evacuate the eastern end." The leaflet was signed S.P.U.D. or Social Pressure Until Dismantlement.

A handsome authority figure appeared on the scene. He stood for a minute watching the workmen push the nuclear material around with their brooms and then spoke to the crowd.

"Don't worry. Everything will be taken care of," he said. "But I have to leave."

He left.

Four men in tuxedos appeared on the street. They wore faceless and expressionless masks and had the letters N.R.C. (Nuclear Regulatory Commission) printed on their backs. They also carried signs that read THIS CAN'T HAPPEN, and paraded around for a while singing a song entitled "Ain't It Great To Evacuate." The banging five gallon drum made a nice accompaniment.

Finally, the men from the N.R.C. took out a large sheet with the slogan NUCLEAR COVERUP printed on it, threw it over the five gallon drum and lifted it back into the pickup. As they drove off, some small children appeared on the street and sang a final song, stating that they couldn't leave their homes and their farms and their pets. THE END. •

The Sheltered Islander By Sally Flynn

Sheltered Islander #352

"...and they're all made out of ticky tacky, and they all look just the same."

I was thinking of all the poor smokers who stand around outside the bars on the Island just to have a cigarette. They smoke outside in the cold, the rain, the heat. It's just not right. I can't recall who said it, but I agree: political correctness is just fascism with good manners.

I'm not a smoker. I can't stand it. But I think it's deplorable that smokers have become second class citizens. They have to apologize for having a lousy cigarette. They pay outrageous taxes for their little pack of smokes. I know it's a bad habit, but who's perfect? We all do things that are bad for our health. If I were a smoker, I'd organize other smokers and restaurant owners to repeal the law that prohibits smoking in bars and add a law for ventilation. What's next on the PC hit list? No drinking in bars?

Now that the PC Machine has gotten away with beating up smokers, they're coming after overweight people. All of a sudden, the whole country has to lose weight. Some people, like me, really do need to lose weight. But most people are being made to feel terrible about an extra twenty pounds. It's ridiculous. There are other things to worry about. Like Jay Leno said, "You can't take nail clippers on an airplane, but 10,000 illegal aliens can cross the borders every day. So much for Homeland Security!"

Based on what the PC Machine did to the smokers, I predict this for the future of my kind...

Fast Food staff will not to sell anything to us but salads.

We'll have to stand outside of Dunkin' Donuts to eat our apple fritters where everyone can see us and know that we are bad.

Doctors will save time diagnosing us by attributing all ailments to weight.

Obesity will be an allowable cause to file for divorce.

The on screen warnings in the movie theaters will be: No smoking; Remember to turn off your cell phones; No talking during the picture; No eating unless you are height /weight proportionate.

Stores will add a hefty fat tax at the register for any sweets or snacks being purchased by a chubby.

Someday I'll be in the car with my skinny friend Charlotte who eats so frequently, she even keeps food in her car! My luck, I'll be the one driving when the cops are doing spot checks for carb abuse. If you're caught illegally eating, you get put in the tank overnight. But you don't get bread and water, you get celery and water.

"Quick, Charlotte! Peel off the label from the Krispy Kreme box and give it to me."

"What for? Why are you sticking it on your forehead?"

"Shhhhh..... Yes, officer?"

"Good evening ma'am," the officer says as he shines a flashlight in my face. "You appear to be a carbo. Have you had any illegal carbs tonight?"

"No officer, as you can see, I'm on the patch."

After the chubbies, I predict the PC Machine will go after the computer people. They are too sedentary and that's not healthy! Studies will suddenly hit the media about clots in their legs from sitting, eye fatigue from Solitaire, heart stress from excessive Coke/coffee intake, social devolvement from working with the same small group who get excited by a new screen saver. Anything linked to sitting in front of a computer will become a crisis. Soon they will have to work on a treadmill with their computers in front of them. They'll have to get a physician's note to sit more than one hour per shift. Workers who continue to sit in a comfortable chair to do their work will get the fish eye, like a smoker with a cigarette or a chubby with a donut.

After the computer people, it will be people who commute too many hours in a day. Their increased stress aggravates their medical conditions. They tire and cause accidents. They get road rage and kill people. They use more than their fair share of gas, which drives up prices, and they produce extra pollution from their long commute. OnStar will track your movements and notify DMV if you are a commute abuser. After all, it's for your own good....

Laugh now, but everyone's turn will come. Something you're doing right now is not PC approved, and you will have to stop it or face legislation to protect you. If we tried, we could stop the PC Machine by heightening our esteem for personal freedom. It would be like...uh....like living in America!

East End Teens Take To The Red Carpet

North Fork Teens Receive Honors At The Teeny Awards Ceremony

By R. B. Stuart

I am a new transplant to the area and someone unfamiliar with this third annual award show and in my naiveté I assumed the event was a special awards show for the small-in-stature actors of Hollywood, i.e. Gary Coleman. Once I was embarrassingly corrected and learned that it was an acknowledgement of theatre work by teenagers from the North and South Fork, I attended the event with fresh eyes.

This elegant, formal event held Saturday evening at the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center was a red carpet of teenagers from the ages of 14-17 (most above 5 feet tall), hosted by the Riverhead East End Arts Council. This collaborative effort of sponsors was brought together by the visionary Patricia Snyder, director of the EEAC and a former art teacher. She, they say, "is the heart and soul" of the event and a resident of the North Fork.

The Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center was converted from an old movie theatre seven years ago. Built in 1932, it maintains the old movie theatre charm. It has one balcony and seats 425, making it a small house in regards to Broadway standards, but the crisp sound and manicured esthetics are as good as any Broadway theatre.

Prior to the event, the reception could barely contain the excitement of the kids, never mind the supportive and proud mamas and papas standing fixated, waiting for the ceremony to commence. Wondering if at the end of the evening they'd be consoling their brokenhearted child or carting out the next star struck kid with dreams of Hollywood, they waited patiently. In lieu of an open bar, the anxious parents chomped on goodies provided by the EEAC, Schmidt's of Southampton and North Fork Water.

Stars reflected off the theatre ceiling as the sound system echoed show tunes, and the stage swirled with a Kaleidoscope of colored lights, all awaiting the accolades of the fresh-footed stars of tomorrow.

In anticipation of the event, cell phone cameras were propped in the hands of some of the nominees. This jovial, well-heeled crowd listened to the exuberant presenters as they introduced the 68 nominees. Since only 22 would go home with awards and a $300 scholarship, each nominee was given a gift bag filled with mementos from the night provided by the Bridgehampton National Bank.

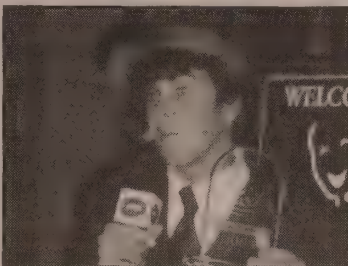

Watching the girls awkwardly prance across the stage wearing their "big-girl" shoes as they tried their best not to tip over, and watching the boys donn suits and hats (attempting to fit into the mans world) made growing up look fun. A few of the winners set themselves apart with their flamboyant dress and articulate speeches. Chris DeRosa from Hampton Bays High School won best

Best Lead In Drama: Dana D'Ambrosia

Best Lead In Drama: Matthew Martin

Best Supporting In Drama: J.P. Kennedy

Supporting Actor in a Musical, Anything Goes, wearing white shoes with his suit. He spoke with great eloquence, thanking his grandparents, parents, voice teacher and everyone else important in his life, expressing love for them all. With his apparent comfort with speaking on a stage, you might very well see him in Hollywood at the award shows. Jessica Goldstein from Pierson High School in Sag Harbor won Best Supporting Actress in a Musical, Damn Yankees, speaking with such articulation she commanded the stage. Her red chiffon scarf draped backwards across her neck, trailing behind her, was reminiscent of early Hollywood. As was with A.J. Lebenns from Eastport/Manor High School who won twice, as Best Lead Actor in a Musical, Guys and Dolls and Best Lead Actor in a Comedy, Moon Over Buffalo. A man with many hats donned an Eroll Flynn style hat at the end of the evening, sans the feather. He gave an energetic performance with Jillian Nannery in a scene from Moon Over Buffalo with a dual of swords, both impressively wielding the shiny blades with great precision. Possessing such an unusual skill will be an asset on their theatrical resume. And J.P. Kennedy from Westhampton Beach High School, who won Best Supporting Actor in a Drama, Our Town, took no time getting an on air interview with Plum TV. Wearing a candy apple red baseball hat, his glass trophy in hand, balancing a microphone in the other hand, he reported on what it's like to win.

There was general enthusiasm for what these kids were involved in and are passionate about. Winning with grace, the kids shared genuine warmth and congratulations to one another. This showed they were all winners to me. To see them wholeheartedly enjoy the closing music from the Chorus Line, singing and bouncing to the words as they bid goodnight to their peers, made me see that it's still possible in this day and age to have good, clean fun.

The following are the 2005 Teeny Awards winners who received a scholarship and an elegant glass trophy.

From Shoreham-Wading River High School: Matthew Martin, Best Lead Actor in a Drama, Diary of Anne Frank.

STONY BROOK UNIVERSITY

Long Island's best-kept secret for seeing and hearing blues music has to be the University Café officially known as the Graduate Student Lounge on the Stony Brook University campus. The acoustics were great and the music was unbelievable. On Friday night, June 3rd, the University Café presented The Wallace Hartley Project.

The five member band consists of Frank LaTorre on guitar, harmonica and vocals, Mike Scalzo on drums, Bill Marino on guitar and vocals, Drew Davis on guitar, harmonica and vocals, and Bob on Bass. Sitting in jamming with the band were Doug Varady on guitar and Tony Delledonne on guitar.

This was not a band with individual egos; each of the members were highlighted as one after the other led the band in song and music. Some of the tunes they played were "Who Do You Love," "Pretty Baby," "Hey Joe," "My Baby is Rough," "Shake Your Money Maker," and "Makes a Man Go Crazy." The guitar riffs these guys played were exceptional, if you closed your eyes you would almost think that Eric Clapton and Stevie Ray were playing on stage instead of these talented musicians.

The University Café is a great spot to meet and greet friends, sit and have a good time!

BABY BOOMER HOUSING BOOMS

Baby Boomers looking for alternatives to the empty nest are actively buying homes across the country. Many active adults born between 1946 and 1964, now aged 41 to 59, have decided that they don't want to wait for retirement to move. Inspired by the catalyst of children leaving home, they are embracing the opportunity for a creative lifestyle change. Baby Boomers who plan to work after age 65 are looking for homes that will work for them during this new phase of their lives.

This segment of the American home buying population favors a wide variety of housing options. Popular choices are custom-designed residences bordering 18-hole golf courses, luxury condominiums, loft apartments, single-family homes in resort destinations and houses remodeled to include offices, media rooms and gyms. Newly constructed suburban housing communities in the Southwest, Colorado, and both the East and West Coasts are popular destinations for relocating boomers. They are shopping for homes in hamlets that are undergoing revitalization, condos that offer a low-maintenance lifestyle and come loaded with amenities and resort communities that offer amenities like those on the North Fork - golf, boating, less dense population and safety. A large percentage of the 85 million Baby Boomers currently living in the United States are looking forward to maintaining a highly active business and social life during the next ten to thirty years. This Baby Boom housing demand is one of the reasons for the growth in demand, it's not a "bubble" but a population "bulge" that is going to influence the housing market for the next 5 to 10 years.

Diliberto-A Truly Individual Winery

In a recent issue of Wine Spectator, columnist Matt Kramer wrote a thoughtful piece discussing large wineries versus smaller ones, concluding (convincingly) that smaller really is better. Though Kramer doesn't define what a "small" winery is, you can take my word for it - most, if not all, Long Island wineries qualify. Of course, being a small winery doesn't automatically mean your wines are good. Anyone who has tasted wines from some of our lesser local wineries can attest to that. After all, doing the wrong things in the vineyard or in the cellar will lead to poor wines, regardless of how big your operation is.

Salvatore Diliberto, owner and winemaker of Diliberto Winery in Jamesport, is doing all the right things-and doing them himself. He's truly a one-man wine-making show. He planted his first vines in 1998 and first harvested fruit in 2001, a locally well-regarded vintage and one that led to two of the three gold medals he won at last summer's New York Wine & Food

Classic. Diliberto isn't new to Long Island fruit, however, having used it to make wine in his Queens basement since 1986. I tasted all four of his current releases, all reds, and found each of them appealing and extremely food friendly. The Diliberto Winery 2002 Merlot ($20), one of the gold medal winners, is a charmingly soft and straightforward wine with plum, cherry and light raspberry flavors. It's medium bodied with fairly low tannins and a slightly lingering finish that offers faint hints of vanilla. I'd serve this with pasta and red sauce and similar Italian fare.

While still relatively simple, the Diliberto Winery 2001 Merlot ($22) is richer and more extracted in the glass. Rustically elegant, it is fuller flavored and offers more intense cherry and raspberry flavors with earthy notes in the background. The tannins are firmer than in the 2002, but still well integrated. This wine, another award winner, has better aging potential and can stand up to more serious meat dishes. This was my favorite of the lot, getting a B+ in my notes.

The last of the gold medal wines, the Diliberto Winery 2001 Tre ($25) is a Bordeaux-style red blend that offers a bit more complexity. Though still offering black cherry flavors, this wine shows a spicy, black pepper character that makes it stand out. I think this blend would benefit from another year or so in the bottle to round out its flavors and tannins.

The Diliberto 2001 Cabernet Sauvignon ($25), while maybe overpriced, is another enjoyable, food-friendly wine. I enjoyed its nose, which offers raspberries, blueberries and vanilla. On the palate, it's fuller bodied than Diliberto's other wines and while nowhere near a California Cabernet, it out-flavors many local bottlings. Until their tasting room opens in early 2006, you can contact Diliberto directly to set up an appointment to taste and purchase the wines. Call 722-3416 or email diliberto1@msn.com.

Bayview Inn & Restaurant

10 Front Street
South Jamesport
722-2659

South Jamesport may not immediately come to mind as a place to visit but it is a beautiful, serene place, really so evocative of what all of Eastern Long Island used to be and what so many of us wish it could still be. Down by the tranquility of Peconic Bay, the Bayview Inn & Restaurant is so fully in keeping with this ambience that you immediately feel relaxed and at home. The welcome you get will just intensify the feeling, for the restaurant is warm and welcoming both in terms of the elegant décor and the wonderful waitstaff.

But ambience and staff are only part of what comprises a really top class restaurant because, after all, you will have made the journey because you like to eat good food prepared by a top class chef. The Bayview is truly a "destination" restaurant in that you almost certainly know where you are going to eat before you set out.

We knew, based on previous visits, that we would not be disappointed, for Executive Chef Tom Lopez has built up a considerable following of diners who appreciate his use of local, fresh produce and his restless imagination, which compels him to supplement his already very wide-ranging menu with weekly specials. These specials reflect either what may suddenly be available and fresh or simply because of his urge to create something different for his regular clientele to enjoy.

Tom offered us a tasting menu, which we were delighted to accept. We asked Melanie, our very knowledgeable and charming waitress, to ask him to keep the portions really small, for ordinarily his portions are such that many "doggy bags" leave the restaurant to provide meals on a later day!

Tom Lopez's cooking style is not easily categorized. He is big on subtle tastes and likes to have an Asian theme when it is relevant, but he also will happily serve a perfectly cooked ribeye steak, succulent local duck or fresh local flounder. It is in his weekly specials that he spreads his wings and we were delighted to accept his offer to eat from specials that will be offered during the week that you read this review.

We started with a dish that would be hard to beat. Crisp quesadillas filled with delicate pieces of lobster and Brie, accompanied by a fresh pineapple salsa that Tom really ought to bottle and market. It really is that good. We have enjoyed many appetizers at many restaurants both here and around the world and frankly we both agreed that this ranked at the very top of our best ever list. After that it could have been downhill but in a very different mode, what could beat his next offering of superb local asparagus sautéed in white wine and served with melted Parmigian Reggiano?

In a total change of mood, melt in the mouth beef carpaccio on a bed of arugula with pine nuts and a delicate roasted tomato vinaigrette was excellent. Duck dumplings were more elegant than the name, with a succulent filling in a light dumpling. The accompanying ponzu dipping sauce had all of the intensity that you would look for, with one slight criticism, that it was a little on the salty side even for me, an inveterate lover of salt.

Scallops are one of our favorites, and Tom served divers sea scallops that were so perfectly prepared, tasted so fresh and went so perfectly with the accompanying roasted squid ink fettuccine that we wished that we could have cleared the plate. However, room had to be left to taste some full-bodied baby back ribs with a tomato and molasses barbecue sauce served with a grilled sweet potato.

Desserts at the Bayview are prepared by owners Bob & Pat Patchell's daughter-in-law, Gail. Based on the wonderful caramel topped cream cheese flan with fresh berries and dulce de leche we tasted, we determined it to be a perfect finish to the meal. The wine list at the Bayview is well chosen and sensibly priced. They have excellent red and white house wines blended specially for them by Lenz Wineries. Wines by the glass are $8 and bottles range from $24 upwards. Appetizers range from $8 to $12; main courses from $21 to $28 and desserts are $8.

As we sipped our espresso coffee, we reflected that there are many more fashionable restaurants on the South Fork, but if any diners at these establishments enjoy food as well thought out, prepared, cooked and served as we did at the Bayview, then they are extremely fortunate. Last time I reviewed this restaurant I commented that Tom Lopez stands high among the ranks of the top chefs on Long Island. I can only say that this visit more than confirmed my previous views.

The Washwick Agency Health Insurance Made Affordable

What happens when 2,000 self-employed business men and women, freelance artists, writers and other sole proprietors are brought together? They get group insurance rates that are far more affordable than they could ever get on their own, thanks to The Washwick Agency.

"Due to New York insurance laws, sole proprietors do not have the same access to affordably-priced medical and dental insurance as larger businesses," explained Karl Washwick, president of the Riverhead, Long Island-based agency. Many independent contractors, freelancers, and small businesses and their employees find insurance costs so exorbitant, that insurance expenses drain an excessive portion of their bottom line or, more frequently, they go without coverage all together.

With medical expenses soaring, people are taking high risks operating in business without proper insurance coverage. Many feel they have no choice.

"I am a small business so I understand the problems of small businesses," said Washwick, who founded the agency 25 years ago to meet the medical and dental insurance needs of an underserved, but significant population.

The Washwick Agency formed and acts as administrator of the Peconic Bay Business Association. By joining the association, the self-employed and their employees are eligible for group rate plans. Although based at the eastern tip of Long Island, the Peconic Bay Business Association provides its services to people working or residing in all of Long Island and all five boroughs of New York City.

By specializing in medical and dental insurance, Washwick feels his agency's efforts to get clients the best possible rates should stay undiluted." I don't do car insurance," Washwick laughed.

The Washwick Agency works closely with each client to best understand his or her insurance needs, and then helps choose the best of many available plans for that client. Each plan can offer a variety of baffling choices, such as HMOs, In-and-Out-of-Network plans and options for hospitalization and prescription co-pays, vision plans, and dependent child coverage. The Washwick Agency helps cut through the confusion. "I'll tell you the plans that are available, and the pros and cons of each," Washwick said.

The Washwick Agency also offers such "business solutions" as oversight of employee benefit plans and retirement savings plans.

The agency's mission is to provide clients with the best possible plan at the lowest possible cost. They promise to listen to your needs, sort through the maze of products and services available and help you choose what is most appropriate for you.

The Washwick Agency is located at 860 East Main Street in Riverhead, New York. For more information on their services call 369-0888 or visit their website at www.Washwick.com.

North Fork Dining: Dan's Papers Critics' Choices

Bayview Inn & Restaurant—Culinary fireworks from a new sparkler facing Peconic Bay. The historic Bayview has undergone many identity changes since its inception as an 1860's boutique hotel. Owners Bob and Pat Patchell have restored its original spirit, with seven guestrooms and the North Fork's most exciting new dining room. Thomas Lopez creates separate specials menus, complementing his regular card of winners like spinach pasta with chunky lobster, Asian-style breast of duck, and marinated lamb chops in mint demi-glace. Scrumptious desserts and a kid's menu ensure everyone goes home (or upstairs) happy. South Jamesport Ave. and Front Street, South Jamesport. 722-2659. Entrées, $18-$26. (Trueman-Honey, 8/1/03).

The Clubhouse at Indian Island—Along the pretty Peconic River at Indian Island Golf Course, this restaurant offers quality cooking at realistic prices convenient to diners from both forks. New proprietor Russ Moran transformed a drab dining room to one of warmth and comfort with soft lighting and smartly laid tables. His eclectic menu features gently pan-fried oysters and clams on the half shell, which you'd swear were just plucked from the bay. French onion soup is deep in flavor. L.I. duck in a pepper cherry sauce and calves' liver with bacon & onions were tasty and will leave no one hungry. Riverside Drive & Route 105, Riverhead. 727-0788. Entrées, $11.95-$16.95. (Bradbrook, 4/16/04).

Cooperage Inn—With a beautiful new look emphasizing the cooperage theme, this charmer continues to carry the banner of North Fork cuisine. Chef/owner Jonathan Perkins, along with chefs Laimo and Hegeman, produce inspired appetizers such as rare sesame tuna carpaccio and pan-seared fresh mozzarella, and don't miss the sesame-crusted calamari served over field greens with a soy vinaigrette. Steaks are steakhouse worthy, and the rigatoni ala vodka continues to dazzle. Fish here is always pristine and cooked with a light hand. Off-premises catering a specialty. Entrées $15.50-$30. 2218 Sound Ave. Baiting Hollow. 727-8994. (Simm, 1/10/03).

Desmond's Pub & Restaurant at the Inn at East Wind—The North Fork's new destination hotel hosts an elegant and restful dining room serving excellent a la carte dishes and classic pub fare. Executive chef Richard Laurelli's daily specials are consistent standouts, as evidenced by his chilled vegetable soup with lobster meat, as well as the Andalusia-style beef and chicken tapas. Pub favorites like crisply battered cod and chips hit the mark and familiar entrees like grilled lamb chops are perfectly prepared. The wine list is sensibly priced, though short on local vintages. Blueberry crème brûlée was an inventive and winning update on a classic dessert. Entrées, $16-$26. 5720 Rt. 25A, Wading River. 929-3500. (Bradbrook, 8/29/03).

La Place—A glowing beacon along the Sound coast for sophisticated diners. The stellar reputation of chef/proprietor Wayne Wadington derives from cutting-edge combinations of difficult-to-secure ingredients. His creations fly off the menu as quickly as off the plate, but if you have the chance try the lightly seared scallops with blue crab mille feuille in a kaffir lime/sweet pea sauce or yellow fin tuna paired with chorizo sausage and butternut squash. Desserts range from decadent (chocolate cake with an espresso mousse) to delicate (Tahitian vanilla crème brûlée.). All are mind boggling. Top wine list, too. Entrées $22-33. 131 Creek Road, Wading River. 744-9200. (Bradbrook, 2/04).

Modern Snack Bar—Home-cooked meals away from home await you at this charming family-run restaurant operating since 1950. The Wittmeier brothers' time-honored menu contains dishes too good to go out of style. Delectable sauerbraten is perfectly tender and the stuffed cabbage is very good. Duck breast salad, recently introduced, is another winner. Crab cakes and lobster salad are real treats, but the big surprise is the world-class shrimp and crabmeat quiche. Home-baked desserts are splendid and their take-out pie business is brisk. Wines are mostly limited to local vintages. Reservations not needed, but day or night, it's always a crowded house. Entrées, $9-$17. Rt. 25 Aquebogue. 722-3655. (Bradbrook, 10/4/02).

Pepi's—Highly popular Northern Italian with dazzling views of Peconic Bay from inside tables and those on its patio. Tantalizing appetizers include calamari sautéed in a pungent marinara sauce and an inspired combo of roasted red peppers and anchovies. Entrées like cod marechiale, with fish and shellfish in a rich tomato cream broth served with pasta ensure no one goes home hungry. Pepi's is at the forefront of the organic food movement and recently has incorporated international organic wines, vodka and beer to the dining experience. Tiramisu tops the dessert list. Good selection of local wines. Entrées, $16-$20. Old Main Rd., Southold, 765-6373. (Bradbrook, 5/27/05).

Red Door—A quintessentially North Fork restaurant: Manhattan-caliber cuisine paired with an ambience of low-key charm. The Mediterranean-influenced American regional menu always offers a panoply of pastas as well as meat and fish dishes. Perhaps their winningest recipe occurred by accident. Ask genial chef/owner Stephen Mazzella for the story behind his remarkable porterhouse pork chop with honey, capers and cayenne. A true instance of luck being the residue of design! Dessert lovers have their vocabulary stretched by such wonders as raspberry crème brûlée and Godiva chocolate cake with Tahitian vanilla bean ice cream. Ample wine list. Entrées — $16-$28. 13560 Main Rd., Mattituck. 298-4800. (Trueman-Honey, 12/03).

Scrimshaw—Chef/co-owner Rosa Ross, whose culinary credentials are carved in many a menu from Hong Kong to Italy to Manhattan, brings her latest invention to Greenport. Nestled at the end of Preston's Dock, there are dazzling views of Shelter Island. The slightly crammed dining room is made intimate and warm by sophisticated lighting and subdued music. The menu is full of interesting tastes, starting with excellent duck confit-stuffed spring rolls and hearty fish chowder. Especially good among the eclectic entrées are tamarind lamb shanks with lemon risotto and the supremely comforting seafood in a sweet, tangy kaffir lime coconut broth.

Interesting wine list. Preston's Dock (at end of Main Street), Greenport. 477-8882. (Simm, 06/04).

Soundview Inn—Picture windows overlook the Sound from every table. On the elevated outdoor deck, however, the tables actually hang over the Sound! Rachel Levin Murphy's restaurant takes in some of the best sunsets on the East Coast and also serves tasty fare in a relaxing environment. Plump and succulent steamers make a great starter as does chicken liver crostini for more adventurous tastes. Chef Kevin Rushkoski's leg of lamb in a rosemary reduction came up tender and flavorful, without a trace of gaminess accompanied by expertly wilted spinach. Desserts are collectively incredible. The somewhat abbreviated wine list is well selected and agreeably priced. Entrées $19.50-$27.50. North Road, Greenport. 477-0666. (Bradbrook 5/20/05).

Stonewall's—Haute cuisine in a tranquil setting, at the Woods Course at Cherry Creek in Riverhead. Step into the warm and inviting dining room, however, and your thoughts will happily shift from golf course to main course. Many superb entrées, including the delicate halibut in a mustard-nut crust, are worth savoring long after the meal has concluded. Duck a l'orange on a bed of wild rice is another standout, as is the deeply flavorful lobster bisque. Rigatoni with roasted tomatoes, mozzarella, capers and olives is exquisitely al dente. Fine wines and creatively fruity desserts complete a dining experience par excellence. Entrées $15-$27. 967 Reeves Ave., Riverhead. 506-0777. (Bradbrook, 9/12/03).

Tuscan House—Your table is yours for the evening at this elegant, upscale Italian restaurant. Authentic, classical dishes bear the deft touch of chef William Oster. His fish is exceptionally fresh and his osso bucco masterly. But his virtuosity lies in the care with which he pairs his 16 pastas and his sublime sauces. The results range from delicate to intense. Pappardelle with a purée of beans dressed with sopresata, fresh chilies, garlic and parmigiano reggiano is typically adventurous and winning. The dessert tray is filled with excellent choices. Well-chosen wines, emphasis on regional Italians. 673 Osborn Ave., Riverhead. 727-2330. (Bradbrook, 9/7/01).

Tweed's—Owner Ed Tuccio parlayed his interests in history, Americana and the bison to create this unique eatery. The décor puts one in mind of an expensive turn-of-the-century men's club, but with a romantic twist. Notable appetizers include Oysters Portland, enveloped in sautéed leeks and crisp bacon, and the Bistro Salad, redolent of blue cheese and roasted beets. Besides Tweed's excellent specialty of the house, succulent farm-raised bison, also recommended are the Sashimi Sesame Tuna, carb-free vegetable lasagna, and Duck Two Ways. Don't skip dessert: the pastry chef is a graduate of the Cordon Bleu in London.

Entrées $19-$26. 17 E. Main St., Riverhead. 208-3151. (Trueman-Honey, 7/04/03).

Guy de Fraumeni's Hollywood In The Hamptons

Good artists, those myopic, far-sighted visionaries, have been able to see the future, and they are terrorized by what they see. In the 1950s Ray Bradbury, the fantasy writer, foresaw television as the consuming monster we are now being gobbled up by. In a short story he wrote of walls covered with TV screens that pictured anything the mind imagined. A little boy's bedroom walls were soon covered by a lush jungle. One morning the parents found only the boy's bones.

Who'd a thunk then that one day (like today) that folks would be able to conjure up in thin air-rarified cyberspace a computer generated animated movie that tells pretty much, the same tale. Madagascar is a dazzle-dazzle cartoon of animals tamed but gone wild again. Madagascar is a sort of Nascar for kids. In fine pixilated form, four almost-domesticated critters in residence at the Central Park Zoo decide to leave the retirement home-like confinement of New York's hospitality with bars (the iron kind) for less restricted environments. Their wacky adventures are delightfully same-old corny jokes, sight gags and, mascara'ed lashes over big-goopy eyes as familiar as all the previous cartoon creatures known to us on a first name basis. This quartet, right out of F.A.O. Schwartz (and about as bankrupt) includes: Alex the Lion, a Ben Stiller sound-alike who seems content with his precarious mane-bolstered egomania. Marty the Zebra is his black and white best friend who can't figure out if he's black or white. He is voiced by Chris Rock so you might be able to decide. Marty is the one who wants out and, when he does break out, Alex goes along. With them in copy cat style are Melman the Giraffe, type cast as a nerdy hypochondriac David Schwimmer. So as not to have an all-male Great Escape casting, Jada Pinkett is the voice behind the big behind of Gloria the Hippo, an adorable big (and we do mean big) sister tagalong. The fans – avid followers of this type of animated feature length short film know and love these characters well. I know these characters all too well and my love of them has been rather stifled by their over-colorful, overly cute, stereotypical creatures who seem too prone to flatulence.

Wit is confined pretty much to the visual trickery of its imagery that continues to inch up to a remarkable Nth degree. Turning Manhattan upside down as their own concrete and monkey bar playground is as noisy as midtown gets in traffic tie-ups – except that this one is aggrandized by Hans Zimmer's swell orchestral music. That is to say, it swells every ten minutes to ear deafening overbearance. The New York State of Mindless Mania is the most interesting portion of the adventures. Once the law deports the quartet to greener pastures, the movie goes to seed. You see, they are packed off to a wildlife preserve in Kenya. A nice idea but, too tame for this scenario. A storm gets them shipwrecked on Madagascar. As recreated by this creative batch of inkless animators, Madagascar looks more like glamorous Hawaii. However, its hip, hip swaying, party animals are lemurs. They are ruled by Julien, whose voice by Sacha Baron Cohen encompasses about 20 dialects, the most prominent of which is "annoying." So stressed is his delivery, one thinks he is going for two or three Oscars. I was hoping that the menacing creatures called "fusa" would drag him off to their lairs. No such luck, but he sends the New York visitors to a lovely secluded part of the island away from the insanity. Oh, yeah? Not so lucky again.

All this luscious island, wildlife living awakens the carnivore in Alex the Lion. As in Bugs Bunny cartoons, he sees his loving pals as juicy steaks. New York strip steaks anyone? Which takes us full circle – where we came in. We're living in a "you-know-what" eat "you-know-what" world. By churning out these cash cow animations (Ka-ching)-(Ka-ching) like the ravenous python, in the end they are ready to devour themselves.

Guy Jean de Fraumeni is the producer/writer/director of award-winning European and American feature films. He has been a judge at major film and TV award competitions, including the Oscars, the Emmys and various film festivals. He is assisted by Sarah Halsey.

review: hamlet...by jan silver

Josh Gladstone, artistic director of the John Drew Theater at Guild Hall, loves Shakespeare – and with good reason. The Bard's plays are like a great treasure – they contain every plot and human emotion any playwright ever devised and, once the ear is tuned to the rhythm of Elizabethan English, the dialogue is brilliant, witty, clever and so revealing. The downside risk in staging a Shakespearian play for contemporary audiences, however, is engaging them enough to sit through more than two acts.

In Shakespeare's England (1600s), theater was easily a five-hour event. The common rabble stood in "the pit" (orchestra) while their betters sat up in the boxes. The audience often ate and drank during a performance – even taunting the actors – so there is always lots of bawdy dialogue, gestures, music, dancing and onstage action to hold the attention of those in the pit. The Tragedy of Hamlet, Prince of Denmark, is five acts (as are most of Shakespeare's plays) but the production at the John Drew has been condensed into two long acts with little loss of plot, language or character.

At the final preview, Michael Nathanson was luminous as Hamlet. Nathanson makes all the beautiful language Shakespeare gives to the complicated Hamlet come alive with heartfelt emotion and finesse: his shock at his father King Hamlet's murder; his mother the Queen's remarriage a month after the funeral; his betrayal by two friends; his feigned madness to accomplish revenge. This is no mean feat because the rest of the cast's performances are uneven. (Quick note:

Michael Nathanson as Hamlet and Kate Mueth as Gertrude the swordplay in the final scene is very well done.)

Gladstone had a limited budget, so he and his creative team used much imagination designing the set (David Martin), staging (Gladstone and fight directors Dan Renkin and Brad Lemons), costuming (Amy Ritchings), choreography (Kate Mueth), sound (Joe Marchese) and lighting (Sebastian Paczynski). The open set has a matrix at the back holding all the props used during the performance.

Before the show begins, the actors and dancers drift on and off stage, warming up their voices and stretching their bodies. This works well except for King Claudius, who wears his crown and cape during the prologue – and then is first seen sporting a cowboy hat and boots. Richard B. Watson, a good actor, is clear and emotional as Claudius, but it weakens his portrayal to push the cowboy image symbolic of the current President Bush. Just listening to Claudius's big, religious speech ("In the corrupted currents of this world, offence's gilded hand may shove by justice....."), the analogy is quite clear.

Gladstone uses the entire theater as a stage, so actors enter and exit through many doors and up and down the aisles. In several scenes, the audience becomes part of the proceedings and may even interact with the players. The action begins with King Hamlet's Ghost, hauntingly played by Josh Perl, who is aided by creepy costuming, staging and lighting. Perl is also quite malleable and graceful as the Player King, but in this production, a little less of the playing troupe's dancing could shorten the performance time.

Meryn Anders is radiant as Ophelia. She sings well and there is some heat with Nathanson in the scene where Hamlet begins Ophelia's unraveling ("I did love you once.") Kate Mueth as Queen Gertrude does not fare as well. Hers is a dual part – grieving widow needing affection, distraught mother – and she hasn't quite settled into this character. The black slacks worn under her royal robe undercut her dignity as a queen. A long skirt in her private scenes would be more appropriate and elegant.

Jonathan Peters is a perfect Polonius – a bit pompous but not too fawning. Jamie Carmichael plays Polonius' honorable, straight-arrow son Laertes dutifully in the first act but gives Laertes

review: comedy night at stephen talkhouse

Laugh out loud funny. That is the best way to describe comedy night at the Stephen Talkhouse on Monday nights, starting at 8 p.m. The Stephen Talkhouse in Amagansett, which is best known for having live concerts and cold beer, has added a new program to its mix of rock and rollers and reggae legends. The Talkhouse now has standup comedy, featuring comics from New York City, who roll into town armed with excellent jokes and shots of tequila.

The Stephen Talkhouse on Monday nights completely transforms its dance floor in front of the stage into a classic looking comedy club, complete with tables with lit candles on them situated next to one another. The comics, who hail from all over the country, including Ohio, are not shy on stage and are engaging from the beginning of the show.

When I went to last Monday night's performance, the beginning of the show did not have a huge audience. This was a good thing, however, because it allowed for the comics to interact with the crowd and get to know everyone in the audience. "Comics like to feed off the energy of the crowd and then we use that energy to be even funnier," said Dante Nero, a comic from the mean streets of Bed-Stuy Brooklyn. Dante has been on "The Chappelle Show," "Tough Crowd," Showtime, and HBO. His calm and witty humor, as well as his 300 lb size, allowed him to command the room and introduce the next two acts.

The next comic, Becky Donohue, was a tough Irish gal from East Meadow. Her jokes ranged from her personal life to a wonderful rant on politics. She even had the Republicans in the audience laughing hysterically. Her charm on stage as well as her ability to poke fun at the audience (myself included) had me laughing so hard my sides hurt. Her foul mouthed humor (she wasn't the only one) was absolutely hilarious. Of course, I cannot tell you her jokes in this newspaper unless I want to get fired.

Sitting back and taking in the comedy scene was really a treat for me and was a nice change from the same old bar scene. I felt like the other people at the Talkhouse were my friends by the end of the show because the experience is a relatively intimate one. I also never have been to a comedy club live. I watch a lot of standup comedy on television, of course, but I never realized how much fun it is to actually go to a live show and see the comics in person, and also see how the audience reacts to them.

The last and final comedian was the highlight of the show. His name is Jason Good, and his name certainly coincides with his comedic abilities. His original humor was fantastic.

"The name of the Indian that this place was named after is Stephen? What kind of Indian name is that? My cousin's name is Stephen!"

His Ohio background and slight Southern twang made him a comedian that kept the laughs rolling, the audience engaged and this reporter near tears. He is hilarious. He regularly plays routines in Manhattan at all of the clubs there as well as being on XM satellite radio. His brief comments on living in New York and going to the zoo were priceless. "When I go to the zoo I get jealous of the animals there. I always go with some one that feels bad for these animals; I don't get that. They are living in New York rent free! I pay nearly $2000 a month to live there. All they have to do is lie around all day and yell every once in a while and they get a free place to stay in New York, free health care, they even get free food. It's not fair!"

Monday night stand up comedy at the Stephen Talkhouse is a wonderful addition to the already amazing show schedule that the place has to offer. If you are looking for something different and are looking to have a laugh with friends, I would definitely recommend that you check this place out on Monday night. There is absolutely no way you will not have fun; it is impossible.

Hamlet (continued from page 79)

a little warmth in the second act. Shashi Balooja is steadfast and supportive as Prince Hamlet's one true friend, Horatio. Joe Pallister helps set the mood in the opening scene as the palace guard Marcellus, but he's a bit bombastic as young Fortinbras. William Cullinen is quite funny as the Danish courtier Osric and the doomed Guildenstern, and Dan Renkin is fitting as the two-faced Rosencrantz. Minerva Scelza, a good dancer and nimble mime, is the Player Queen.

Hamlet requires a large cast and one suspects the brief, meaty but uncredited part of the Gravedigger is admirably done by Josh Gladstone. Other cast members playing many small parts include Peter Fitzgerald, Geir Magnusson, and little August Gladstone.

Hamlet continues at the John Drew Theater, Guild Hall, East Hampton, June 10, 11, 16, 17 and 18 at 7:30 p.m. There is an adult education performance on Wednesday, June 15, at 7 p.m. and the closing performance is Sunday, June 19 at 4 p.m. Tickets ($15-20) are available at the door, at the box office (631-324-4050), at , or by calling Theatremania (866-811-4111).

review: the tony awards

Edward Albee received a prestigious award for Lifetime Achievement in the Theatre when the American Theatre Wing presented the 59th Annual Tony Awards, broadcast live from Radio City Music Hall on CBS television, this past Sunday, June 5th. The Tony Awards recognized outstanding achievement on Broadway in the 2004/2005 season and spotlighted the theatre as one of the most "engaging and vibrant of the performing arts." Mr. Albee, who maintains a home in Montauk, is part of a huge contingent of theatre professionals here on the East End. Many were featured prominently as winners, nominees, or presenters on Sunday, while many others toiled in the background or went unnoticed just under the radar.

John Patrick Shanley's searing drama Doubt, about a suspected pedophile priest from the Bronx, won the fiercely contested Best Play Award, while the humorous spoof Monty Python's Spamalot took the award for Best Musical. Doubt, which was nurtured by Lynne Meadow's MTC Theatre, where the play began life off-Broadway and received favorable critical acclaim, has won every major award this season including the Pulitzer Prize for Drama.

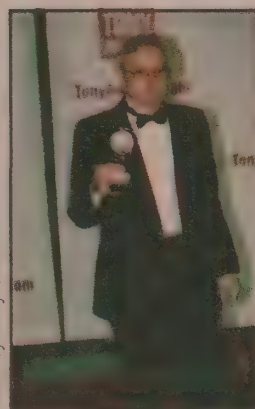

The Tonys were distributed evenly with no show becoming an overwhelming standout like the bonanza Mel Brooks scored with The Producers in the 2002/2003 season, pocketing 11 awards. The Light in the Piazza scored the most awards, six, including best musical score, best orchestrations, best lighting, costume, and set designs of a musical, as well as the Best Actress in a Musical for the show's star, Victoria Clark, a favorite whose work we adored.

Best Play Doubt was next in line with four awards, winning for Best Director Doug Hughes, Best Dramatic Actress Cherry Jones, who predictably triumphed over Kathleen Turner, and for Best Featured Actress Adriane Lenox. The Best Musical, Spamalot, took awards for director Mike Nichols, his 9th award in 17 nominations, and best featured actress in a musical Sara Ramirez, who we predicted would win after seeing her breakout performance on opening night.

The evening's biggest surprises came when Bill Irwin, who plays George in a revival of Mr. Albee's classic play Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf, won for Best Actor in a Play, over three outstanding nominees. He upset the favorite Brian O'Bryne's stirring performance of the priest in Doubt, and sentimental favorite James Earl Jones' impressive portrayal of Norman Thayer in On Golden Pond. Mr. Irwin, a well liked and popular figure in the community, said in his gracious acceptance, "To be spoken of in the same breath as my fellow nominees is honor enough for any actor." He acknowledged his blessings including his supportive family and continued by saying, "With the help of our brilliant director, we speak every night the words of one of our greatest playwrights of this or any time. This is Broadway, we do this every night."

Mr. Albee indicated in his acceptance speech that he hasn't yet achieved his lifetime work, but was grateful to receive this while he was still living. He further said, "I am dedicating this to the memory of Jonathan Thomas, my lifetime partner who died only a month ago. He and I were together for 35 years, and he made me a happy playwright. And you have made me a happy playwright tonight. Thank you."

Edward Albee

The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee took the Best Book of a Musical award for Rachel Sheinkin, who collaborated with William Finn and the company, as well as winning Best Featured Actor in a Musical for an emotional Dan Fogler. Best Actor in a Musical went to Norbert Leo Butz, who scored the lone win for Dirty Rotten Scoundrels, an immensely entertaining musical that went into the evening with 11 nominations and was edged out in several categories. Liev Schreiber won Best Featured Actor for his brilliant performance in Glengarry Glen Ross, defeating amongst others his fellow cast member and friend, Alan Alda.

Billy Crystal's touching 700 Sundays, a huge success and a favorite, won the Tony for Best Theatrical Event. In his acceptance Billy, who just yesterday celebrated his 35th anniversary with his wife Janice said, "The greatest thrill in my career is doing this show....."

In the revival category Glengarry Glen Ross, directed by Joe Mantello, won for Best Drama and La Cage aux Folles, produced by James L. Nederlander in association with Marty Richards and others, scored for Best Musical, as well as taking the Best Choreography award for an ecstatic Jerry Mitchell. Yes, the best of times is now and Sunday will long be remembered as the best of times for everyone involved in the 59th Annual Tony Awards, hosted by Hugh Jackman.

ART COMMENTARY With Marion Wolberg Weiss

KELLY KLEIN'S "EMOTION" AT GLENN HOROWITZ

Kelly Klein's current photographic show at Glenn Horowitz Bookseller is most intriguing, not merely because of its individual images, but also because of the overall impression that the collection conveys. Thus, the whole is greater than the parts. Let's consider, first, single images. The work, "Crawling Christ," recalls for this critic a 1960s Brazilian film, The Confession, which chronicles the efforts of a poor carpenter to deliver a hand-made cross to an urban Church. In the process, he mirrors Christ's own struggles. The movie is filled with a sustained spiritual commentary and a modern sensibility concerning social and political values. Both Ms. Klein's photo and the film suggest a similar allegory.

Ms. Klein's other works do the same, particularly her pictures taken in Cuba, the juxtaposition of religion and poverty/politics becoming a potent statement. For example, there are religious artifacts hanging on walls of impoverished homes, the walls' textures providing a backdrop worthy of a beautiful art piece in their own right.

Yours truly can personally attest to the authenticity of such settings which pervade Havana. Crumbling buildings and cracked staircases all recall better times. Yet, in the midst of the country's decay, there exist permanent residential icons, like a cross or a small shrine or portraits of Jesus and Mary.

Thus, Ms. Klein's work has aptly captured this ambience and contradiction between Cuba's past grandeur and its spiritual remains. Experiencing the exhibit as a whole evokes other contradictions at work. The bookstore's first floor features more distant views; the upper floor contains extreme close-ups of religious figures. Again, one picture reminds this critic of a movie: the famous French silent film, Jeanne d'Arc.

Ms. Klein seems to be well aware of the dynamics exerted by her works: one where we can observe, the other where we can participate.

The longer shots enable us to see details, to be more objective with our impressions. Conversely, the close-ups enable us to become one with the subject, often to the point of discomfort. Such discomfort recalls Alfred Hitchcock, of all people. His films were filled with bird's eye views where the audience felt distanced from the action. Other times, the images were close-ups where we felt part of the action; this disconcertion between the subjective and objective kept our attention and made us feel pretty uncomfortable. Which is how it should be.

Ms. Klein's photographs will be on view until July 4.

HONORING THE ARTIST: PRISCILLA BOWDEN

Priscilla Bowden has a delicate spirit; it's reflected not only in her modest manner and subtle reactions to everyday events, but also in her paintings. Consider this week's cover, "Sagaponack," a bird's-eye-view that spectators surely find arresting. Ms. Bowden has another "take" on this matter: "It's the perfect real estate photo. Did you ever wonder how they get those views from the air anyway?" Actually, we never gave it a second thought. And we never asked Ms. Bowden outright if she or her photographer went up in a helicopter to conceptualize her painting. No matter. You can always count on Ms. Bowden to tell the truth. Subtly.

Take the cover work, for instance: a luscious, spacious panorama; striped fields reminding the artist of France; a signature image connoting the best of the Hamptons. An image we may have seen in a stylish magazine or on TV.

Yet there's something more happening than initially meets the eye: what you see is not what you necessarily get. There's that little, subtle indication, a house perhaps, that civilization is creeping forward. Encroachment in its purest form.

Even so, Ms. Bowden loves it here, although she and her husband (writer Jeffrey Potter) usually spend the summers in Nova Scotia. But hard as we try to paint a bleak picture of a Hamptons' summer, Ms. Bowden would not be budged from her positive feelings for the East End. "It's like a stage set here," she responded. "Layers of trees, layers of light, reflected sea air. Even if I weren't painting it, I'd still love to look at the land and the sky, thinking 'that field reminds me of such-and-such an artist's work.'"

And when Ms. Bowden was asked where she might want to live besides the South Shore, she couldn't seriously think of any other place. While we sense her love for this area, it seems somewhat unusual, considering that Ms. Bowden is well-traveled, spending time in France and Southwestern England, for example, hunting fossils.

There are other aspects that surprise us. For instance, although Ms. Bowden uses her right brain as an artist, especially her sense of spontaneity, she also admits to loving crossword puzzles, a task that is definitely left brain-oriented: orderly and meticulous. This goes to prove that Ms. Bowden is a pretty integrated person.

She's also an honest person who admits to one other penchant: having dreams about packing every piece of clothing she has to go to Paris. We wonder if this dream reflects real life. You bet, Ms. Bowden answers: "I save all my clothes although I have gotten rid of a lot. But I remember every piece of clothing I ever had, too."

Ms. Bowden may be subtle in her art, but when it comes to clothes (and the Hamptons), she couldn't be more upfront.

—Marion Wolberg Weiss

Ms. Bowden's paintings can be seen at East Hampton's Arlene Bujese Gallery upon request.

"Fragrances" at the Parrish

Nothing triggers the memory quite like scent, and what memories are more worth conjuring than sweet evenings in a thriving garden? This weekend, the Parrish Art Museum will explore the relationship between flowers and fragrance, and how we have managed to capture some of the loveliest scents in the world into a bottle, to be opened again and again as a reminder of springtimes past. The weekend will combine lectures by experts in the fragrance field as well as garden tours, which will display some of the most pungent flowers.

On Saturday, June 11, between 8:30 a.m. and 1 p.m., there will be three talks that promise to awaken the senses. The first, entitled "Perfume Hunter," will feature Dr. Robin Clery, who developed a biocaptive technology for Quest International Fragrances. Dr. Clery has traveled to such destinations as Madagascar, Sri Lanka, and Brazil to discover fragrance oils. His technology is, for the most part, portable, and can be transported to the most remote locations to capture fragrances without removing the plant from its habitat. Audience members will be invited to smell some of the ingredients that he captured on an expedition to Sri Lanka.

The second talk is called "Scent in Your Garden" and will be given by Stephen Lacey, author and columnist for Great Britain's Daily Telegraph newspaper. His most recent book is called Real Gardening. This lecture will focus on the role of scent in plants and the diversity of fragrances in flowers and plants.

The third and final discussion of the day is called "From Plant to Perfume," and will be given by Yves de Chiris. The lecture will explore how plants have been the inspiration for perfume throughout the ages. The de Chiris family has been involved with perfumes since 1768 in Grasse, and family members have expanded the firm across the world in search of exotic ingredients. Chiris will detail the process of extracting fragrant oils from flowers and plants, as well as the evolution of the industry. He will conduct a slide presentation and offer the opportunity to sample fragrances.

After the performances on Saturday, there will be a book signing featuring Stephen Lacey's books. Then, benefactors, patrons, and underwriters are invited to a cocktail party at the beachfront residence of Calvin Klein in Southampton.

On Sunday, June 12, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., participants will tour East End gardens to apply their newfound understanding of scents in the garden. The designers of these magnificent gardens, the landscaping, and the plantings will be explored. The tour will go from the former estate carriage house of Ellen Chesler and Matthew Mallow in Bridgehampton to the Cochran home on Wainscott Pond, then to Anne Gleacher's Georgia Association home in Wainscott. Lynn and Noel Jeffrey's Sagaponack home boasts English gardens, and Daniel and Brooke Neidich's Wainscott property has pathways snaking through lovely brambles. The final visit will be Herbert Sambol's East Hampton home, where white oaks accent the sweeping lawn.

Jane Freilicher, "Mallows in Earthenware Jar," 2001, oil on linen, 40 1/4 x 35 in., Private Collection

Tickets for this lovely spring-time weekend are $100 for museum members and $125 for non-members. This includes the symposium and garden tours. Upper level tickets are also available. These tickets will also get you invited to the cocktail party at Calvin Klein's home. Benefactor tickets are $1000, patrons are $600, and sponsors are $300, though sponsor tickets are limited. Buy in advance to guarantee your spot. Call Kendra at 283-2118, ext. 33 or email korarczakk@parrishart.org.

This is a great way to learn about how our sweetest memories can be bottled up and kept lingering in the air forever. The scent of ylang-ylang flowers will always carry me across countries to the rolling hills of Central America, and when I was there I invested in a bottle of the ylang-ylang essential oil. Apparently, it takes the moisture of one entire flower to make only one drop of ylang-ylang oil. My small bottle is precious, and I open it up and inhale whenever I need a reminder of a life I left behind. Bottling fragrances seems miraculous, but now we have a chance to learn about how it really works.

Silvia Lehrer's Cooking Column

Hooray, I just bit into some of the most luscious, sweet local strawberries, which we can now savor here on the East End. Strawberries are unique among berries. They can be cultivated in a broad range of soils and climates so they are harvested fresh, somewhere, every month of the year.

Summer is indeed the best time of the year to enjoy the refreshingly sweet taste of berries, whether for dessert or combined with fresh local spinach for a savory salad.

Perhaps the ultimate strawberry craving is for fine old-fashioned strawberry shortcake. Here is a recipe I adapted from my studies years ago at the Cordon Bleu in London. A simple mixture of flour, butter and confectioner's sugar is combined with egg yolks and vanilla extract and briefly worked to a soft dough. The dough is then sufficiently chilled, rolled out and cut into rounds for baking. The buttery rounds are topped with sweetened whipped cream into which sliced strawberries are incorporated. The dough can be prepared ahead and baked when ready to a crumbly melt-in-your-mouth goodness.

While the air is still a bit cool, grab a bunch of our local spinach piled high in bins at farm stands and with home grown strawberries coloring our fields, get ready to prepare a crinkly fresh spinach salad with sweet berries in honey vinaigrette. Honey from our very own beekeepers, The Hamptons Honey Co., provides the perfect touch of sweetness to this delectable salad.

STRAWBERRY AND SPINACH SALAD WITH HONEY VINAIGRETTE

Local fresh strawberries and home-grown spinach are a perfect seasonal duo for this timely salad.

Serves 4-6

- 1 - 1 1/2 cups fresh strawberries
- 1/2 - 3/4 pound tender baby spinach leaves, washed and drained
- 1 1/2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
- 1 1/2 tablespoons rice wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon honey
- 1 teaspoon Mirin (Japanese syrupy rice wine)*
- 1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
- 1 1/2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
- Pinch salt and freshly ground pepper
- Toasted sesame seed garnish, optional

1. Rinse and hull the strawberries. Rinse and pat dry on paper towels. Halve or quarter the berries.

2. Trim spinach of any heavy stems and discard. Rinse leaves in several changes of luke-warm water, drain and spin dry in a salad spinner. If necessary, roll the leaves in a length of paper towel to absorb excess moisture.

3. In a mixing bowl combine the two vinegars, honey, mustard, salt and pepper to taste and stir to mix.

4. Toss spinach leaves in the dressing. Add strawberries and carefully fold into the spinach. Divide equally on 4-6 plates and garnish with toasted sesame seeds, if desired.

Note: To toast sesame seeds, place them in a small dry non-stick skillet and move pan slowly over low heat for a few minutes until seeds are lightly colored.

* Mirin, a seasoning agent with only 8% (by volume) alcohol, is available in most supermarkets.

INDIVIDUAL STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKES

This is it. It's the real thing! Crispy, crumbly delectable little rounds to sandwich "strawberries n' cream."

Makes 16-18 rounds for 8 or 9 servings.

For the shortcakes

- 1 3/4 cups all purpose flour
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 8 tablespoons (1 stick) unsalted butter
- 1/2 cup confectioner's sugar
- 2 egg yolks
- 2 tablespoons heavy cream
- 6 drops pure vanilla extract

For the strawberries n' cream

- 1 pint strawberries, rinsed and hulled
- Remaining heavy cream (less 2 tablespoons for dough)
- 1 tablespoon plus 2 teaspoons confectioner's sugar

1. Put the flour and salt in a large mixing bowl. Slice and dice the butter and add to the flour with the sugar.

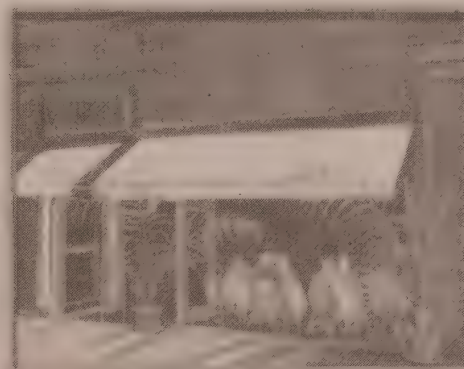

Work the ingredients with pastry cutter or well floured hands until the mixture resembles small pebbles. Make a well in the mixture and put in the egg yolks, cream and vanilla extract. With a large wooden spoon, stir the mixture until the ingredients begin to cling together. Turn out onto a lightly floured work surface and knead two or three times, then gather the dough into a ball. Place the ball of dough on a large square of waxed paper and flatten slightly. Make a criss-cross in the dough and wrap in the waxed paper. Chill in the refrigerator for at least two hours or overnight.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

2. When ready to bake cut the dough in half. (Keep second half chilled.) Flour your pin and roll out the dough on a lightly floured surface to about 1/4-inch thickness. Cut rounds with a 3-inch cookie cutter and carefully transfer to a parchment or Silpat lined cookie sheet. Bake for 20 minutes until lightly golden and crisp. Transfer to a rack to cool. Repeat with second half of dough. Store the shortcakes in a waxed paper lined tin and use within 24 hours.

3. Reserve the number of whole berries you will need for garnish and slice remaining berries. Whip the remaining cream in a cold bowl with cold beaters gradually adding one tablespoon confectioner's sugar until soft, but firm, peaks form. Fold the sliced berries into the cream. To serve, sandwich the cream between two shortcakes and dust the tops of each with remaining confectioner's sugar. Garnish with whole berries.

Dining in the Hamptons

I Want Candy!

I can still remember the thrill of saving up my allowance and walking down to the candy store on the corner of the block where I grew up. My sisters and I lived for the days when our parents would give in to our begging and agree to take us to buy Bazooka gum and Blow Pops. As we got older, we were permitted to make the trip on our own. It was like being in heaven – so many choices, and no one to tell us no. I still have a sweet tooth, but there is no longer as much excitement in buying candy, especially with that nagging voice in my head reminding me that I shouldn't even be eating it. So while I appreciate Hershey bars for their classic unchanging formula, there is something special about those candies that can take me back to a time when candy store day trips were a treat in themselves. Try to think of one candy that you loved as a child. I bet that once you start thinking about that candy, several others will come to mind, and before you know it, you'll be strolling along Memory Lane. It's only logical; candy reminds us of our youth, and everyone experiences nostalgia for childhood every once in a while. Thinking about retro candies is a way of recalling our sweetest childhood memories.

Probably the most classic candy image is that of the Whirly Pop. These multicolored oversized suckers invoke images of children at fairs and amusement parks, with balloons in one hand and lollipops larger than their heads in the other. In fact, the company that produces Whirly Pops, Adams & Brooks, has its origins in exactly those places. Adams & Brooks first began gaining recognition at the Los Angeles County Fair in 1948 and was in charge of the candy concession at southern California's first major amusement park, which opened in 1955. This confectioner also makes Unicorn Pops, those long spiraled lollipops that never seem to end. Without Whirly Pops and Unicorn Pops, any trip to the fair would be incomplete.

In the same way, one of the best parts of birthday parties has always been the goody bags. Few things can compare to the sheer delight of opening up the goody bag as you leave the party. It was always fun to anticipate what kind of candy your friend would find worthy enough to include in these goody bags. There was the classic candy necklace, which I still consider to be one of the world's greatest inventions. For a little kid (and for big kids too), there is nothing better than jewelry you can eat. Candy buttons were always a favorite goody bag pick. You could eat all the pink buttons, then all the yellow and so on, or you could mix it up and have one row of blue, then one row of pink and then a yellow, until only the paper was left. The best goody bags also included some form of pure sugar. Fun Dip and Pixy Stix were every child's dream, and every parent's nightmare at the same time. But even better than those were the giant Pixy Stix, the approximately 2 foot long tubes with enough sugar in them to bake a cake.

If Pixy Stix are a parent's nightmare, then Mary Janes are a dentist's. These candies, made with molasses and peanut butter, are classic nostalgic treats. If you tried one today, it probably would not taste as good as it did when you were a child. Come to think of it, I'm not sure that I even liked them as a child; my strongest memories of Mary Janes involve them as the leftover Halloween candy.

One Halloween candy that everyone did want to get was the Tootsie Roll Pop. These lollipops are as famous for their great taste as they are for their ads. The question – "How many licks does it take to get to the center of a Tootsie Pop?" – first debuted in 1970, and people have been trying to find the answer ever since. Engineering students at Purdue University developed a licking machine modeled on the human tongue to find the answer. They found it took an average of 364 licks to get to the center. A University of Michigan student's licking machine took an average of 411 licks, and a machine developed by students at Swarthmore School needed 144. As the commercial says, the world may never know how many licks it actually takes to get to the center.

Dining in the Hamptons

There are certain restaurants that are considered eating destinations, and 21 Main Steakhouse in West Sayville is such a place. The elegant mansion that is home to 21 Main sits hilltop just steps away from the heart of historic Sayville.

Upon entering this spacious restaurant, you will see a sophisticated wood bar and dining area to one side and a formal dining room opposite that. Tables are draped in gold hued linens to complement the subdued washed wood walls. The dining room evokes a tranquil and relaxing atmosphere, lined with windows that overlook a quaint pond.

After being seated, we were immediately greeted by our very knowledgeable waiter, Ryan, who told us of a few specials. Moments later, freshly baked warm breads were delivered. The basket was filled with an assortment of baked delights courtesy of 21 Main's very own Audrey's Bakeshop (also located in West Sayville).

We began our evening with a glass of Sterling Chardonnay and Cavit Pinot Grigio. General Manager Arthur "Chip" Cheek takes special care when selecting the wine list, which consists of an array of local and imported vintages offered by the bottle or glass. While we explored the menu, our senses were sparked by entrées that were delivered to a nearby table. Chip suggested a few favorites to start, so we tried them all.

The Clams Casino was unusually topped with a delicate light cream reduction sauce and, of course, crisp bacon, while the light Crisp Calamari was tenderly cooked and tossed with sweet cherry peppers and toasted garlic, served with a standout cilantro chutney and spicy pink sauce. The Crab Cake was divine, made entirely of sweet lump crabmeat with a toasted crunchy outside and served with a remoulade sauce. As for the Pork Ribs, the meat fell away from the bone and the smoky seasoning was enhanced by a zesty

Kentucky bourbon barbeque sauce.

Up next was a refreshing large Caesar Salad made with hearts of romaine drizzled with a special house Caesar dressing topped with Parmesan crostini and shaved Parmesan cheese.

21 Main also offers a raw bar with Jumbo Shrimp Cocktail, Lump Crab Meat Cocktail, Little Neck Clams or Oysters on the half shell and Sashimi. Steaks at 21 Main include a 32-ounce Bone in Rib eye, 16-ounce Sirloin, 24-ounce Porter House, 40-ounce T-Bone for two and Filet Mignon in addition to a Veal Sirloin and Double Cut American Lamb Chops (lamb chops offered with a Gorgonzola Au Poivre, Béarnaise or Cabernet Demi-Glace).

Although many famed steakhouses don't specialize in alternatives to meat, for the non-carnivorous guests at 21 Main options include a Swordfish Steak, Pan

Seared Tuna, Linguini Pescator, Free Range Chicken and Butter Poached Twin Brazilian lobster tails, as well as several nightly specials.

And before our eyes, behold a 32-ounce Rib eye and Swordfish Steak paired with sides of Creamed Spinach, Shoe String Onion Rings and Macaroni and Cheese Au Gratin. The Rib eye was sliced in the kitchen, making it easy to serve and eat. After seeing the portions previously, we were thankful. The meat was tender and juicy. Every steak that 21 Main offers on their menu are 28 day, dry-aged USDA Prime, and although the weights are noted, I think the chef tends to cut extra generous portions (which I don't think is a problem for most). Leftovers are always a great treat.

The Swordfish was a fresh, thick cut that was grilled to perfection and dressed with a horseradish lime butter sauce, underscoring the fact that 21 Main offers not only the best quality steaks (which is obviously their focus), but the best quality seafood as well.

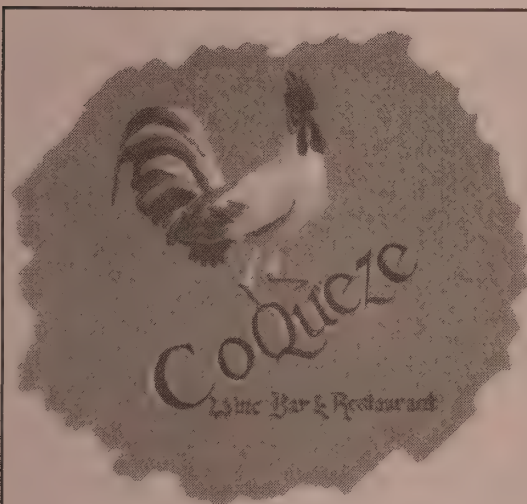

The side dishes at 21 Main are like no other. Executive Chef James Cavorti has added his unique flare to even the most ordinary side such as creamed spinach. Like every dish at 21 Main, the Chef prepares it on the spot. There are no pre-made items in this restaurant. Creamed Spinach here is prepared with fresh spinach piled high and mixed in a light cream sauce and topped with crispy pancetta. The Macaroni and Cheese Au Gratin consists of a velvety smooth blend of cheeses that was sensational.

We wanted to finish everything, but we were reminded to save room for dessert. Dessert? But of course, we could not pass on their homemade Cheesecake, creamy Crème Brûlée and a warm Apple Crisp. They were almost too pretty to eat, but we were glad we did!

After our meal, we walked over to the bar and met Billy, who prepares the freshest Martinis you'll ever have, made from fresh squeezed juices and puree. We'll be back on a Friday or Saturday to listen to live music (piano from 7-11) while we enjoy one or two.

21 Main also offers catering. Catering Manager Jessica Di Lallo, will be happy to assist you with your special occasion. Dinner is served from 5-10 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Friday and Saturday, 5-11 p.m. and Sunday, 4-9 p.m. 21 Main also offers a light bar menu starting at 4.

That's a Wrap!

Some things are constant, no matter what continent you hail from or what language you speak. We all require the same basic necessities: oxygen, sustenance, water.....and, according to its universal presence, it seems that some form of edible wrap is integral to any human existence. Be it the chicken Caesar wrap on a flour tortilla or moo shu pork tightly bound in a sturdy pancake, every culture has found a way to wrap up its meals in a delicious coat. This universal wrap basically consists of a casing of some sort securely wound around any combination of ingredients to create a yummy package. It is then sold on street corners worldwide, in its own manner.

Moo shu is a classic Chinese dish that comes with between 4 and 8 pancakes, in which you pile all the meat (usually pork) and shredded vegetables. Then you roll it up. Moo shu is best when dipped in a sweet plum sauce. The great thing about moo shu is you get to do it yourself, even if you're at a restaurant. They give you the ingredients and then let you do your own wrapping.

In France, you find creperies on every corner. Just like the people who eat them, some crepes are sweet, some salty, some bitter, and some rich. The "wrap" of a crepe is light and fluffy, and the ingredients range from chocolate to blueberries to barbecue chicken.

The United States countered with its own wrap that exploded onto the cuisine scene in recent decades. The Chicken Caesar Wrap is pretty much a salad folded into a tortilla. It's perfect for our fast-paced American society, where we want to be eating healthy but don't even have time to take slow bites from a fork. Wrap it up and take it to go like the sandwich from which it originated.

Did you know that burrito means little donkey? Makes you think..... but don't think too hard, because

Mexico has succeeded in making its wrap one of the most beloved worldwide. Burrito dinners are some of the cheapest and easiest to prepare, and yet you can improvise to make them your own. The classic burrito consists of beans, cheese, sour cream, guacamole, shredded lettuce, diced tomato, and some kind of meat. Wrapped up in a flour tortilla, this is a filling and nutritionally balanced meal - it's your soup, salad, and entrée all in one! But the greatest thing about burritos is that there is so much room for creativity:

you can throw anything in there and wrap it up. A fabulous variation on the classic burrito follows.

Sweet Potato and Black Bean Burrito
(Courtesy of www.homecooking.about.com)

Ingredients

5 cups peeled cubed sweet potatoes
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons canola or other vegetable oil
3-1/2 cups diced onions
4 large garlic cloves, minced or pressed
1 tablespoon minced fresh green chili
4 teaspoons ground cumin
4 teaspoons ground coriander
4-1/2 cups cooked black beans (three 15-ounce cans, drained)

2/3 cup lightly packed cilantro leaves

2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice

1 teaspoon salt

8 eight-inch flour tortillas

Fresh or jarred tomato salsa

Instructions

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees F. Place the sweet potatoes in a medium saucepan with the salt and water to cover. Cover and bring to a boil, then simmer until tender, about 10 minutes. Drain and set aside. While the sweet potatoes are cooking, warm the oil in a medium skillet or saucepan and add the onions, garlic, and chili. Cover and cook on medium-low heat, stirring occasionally, until the onions are tender, about 7 minutes. Add the cumin and coriander and cook for 2 to 3 minutes longer, stirring frequently. Remove from the heat and set aside.

In a food processor, combine the black beans, cilantro, lemon juice, salt, and cooked sweet potatoes and puree until smooth. (You can also mash the ingredients in a large bowl by hand using a potato masher. The result will be a less smooth but nicely textured filling.) Transfer the sweet potato mixture to a large mixing bowl and mix in the cooked onions and spices.

Lightly oil a large baking dish. Spoon about 2/3 to 3/4 cup of the filling in the center of each tortilla, roll it up, and place it, seam side down, in the baking dish. Cover tightly with foil and bake for about 30 minutes, until piping hot. Serve topped with salsa.

Yield: 4 to 6 servings

From China to Mexico, from Paris and back to New York, wraps have circled the world. Whatever your palate is calling for, you can always find a way to wrap it up.

Chicken Soup for the Body

Way to go Grandma! Grandmas across the world have known it for years...doctors are only recently coming to terms with the fact that chicken soup is not only "good for the soul" but good for the body as well. What is it about this wonderful concoction that can make the difference between feeling like a truck ran over you to your feeling somewhat alive and ready to tackle the day? Is it a magic formula? A medicine released with the steam? Or just a wonderful, healthy food that has medicinal qualities?

Two horrible weeks ago my family came down with the worst virus of the century. You know the kind...the knock down, kick you in the pants and drag you through the coals kind of virus where all you want to do is bury your head in the sand. My mother called to check how we were all doing, came over and brought the best medicine around, chicken soup. Hers had an added bonus, Matzoh balls and rice. The minute the hot liquid went down we all instantly felt better. Psychologically speaking, it's better than a chest full of medicine...somehow, somehow the soothing blend of herbs and spices and the aroma of the hot soup, the feel of it warming you from the inside out...just makes all right with the world again. Is it because it was made lovingly by my mom? Or does it really have a medicinal purpose?

According to cnn.com in their article "Chicken Soup is medicine, U.S. scientists confirm." A study was conducted by the University of Nebraska Medical Center to determine whether this "magical liquid" did in fact have medicinal components. His team of scientists specifically study "inflammation and injury and repair mechanisms in the lung as related to asthma and emphysema." They did in fact find that chicken soup helped patients to feel better. Many of its ingredients helped to stop the movement of neutrophils, which are white blood cells that serve to get rid of bacteria and debris and are released extensively in the presence of viral infections. The researchers in this study felt that the steam from the soup or the fat from the chicken itself helped to soothe the airways which often became inflamed as a result of the viral infection.

Chet Day, in his article "Chicken Soup: Nature's Best Cold and Flu Remedy" (www.chetday.com) states that originally, 12th century physician Moses Maimonides gave his patients chicken soup as a cold and asthma remedy. On his site, Day includes two chicken soup recipes, one from a doctor whose view is very similar to the University of Nebraska Medical Center and another that is titled "Sickbed Chicken Soup."

Sickbed Chicken Soup
1 large chicken

- 1 White turnip, peeled and cut into chunks
- 1 yellow onion, cut into chunks
- 2 parsnips, peeled and cut into slices
- 3 carrots peeled and sliced
- 4 stalks of celery, cleaned and cut
- 5 healthy pieces of fresh dill

Put everything in a pot with about 3-4 quarts of water. Simmer until done.

While homemade soup is the ideal, sometimes when you're feeling lousy you just want to get out the almighty can opener, pop the stuff in the micro and sit in your comfy chair in your feety pajamas and inhale the liquid. Doctors and scientists in both articles seem to think that canned soup can be effective as well. So Knorr's, Campbells, Lipton, Progresso and Cup o' Noodles can all have an honored place in your kitchen cabinet.

Chicken Soup has such a relaxing connotation that writer Jack Canfield et al created a series of popular books filled with heart-grabbing, soothing feel good stories that are "medicinal" for the person that reads them. I've personally read Chicken Soup for the Teacher's Soul, Chicken Soup for the Parent's Soul and Chicken Soup for the Mother's Soul. The stories of people's mistakes and what they've learned along with others' successes were just what I needed at the time. A real emotional type of medicine.

As summer heats up, take your vitamins, stay healthy, exercise and eat right. And if all else fails, and you get the sniffles, don't hesitate to invite your grandma over, or find some sweet one that lives in your neighborhood and ask her to make you a pot of the finest soup around. Clip and save the above recipe - you may just need it! It'll have you feeling better in a jiffy!!!!

EAST END KID:

By EMILY HART POST
With a little help from Katlean de Monchy and David
Post

The launch party for the Hamptons Baby Beach Club program was held at Hampton Hall in Southampton. They set up a kiddie fair for us kids so we could play while parents participated and learned about events for families during the summer. From family dinners where families could meet other families, to group trips to nearby places like the L.I. Game Farm or further away trips like those to my total favorite place Sesame Place, to beach and pool parties. Sounds like lots of fun stuff. This was put together by hotel owner and family guy David Waksman.

JUST FOR KIDS

Mommy and Me on the Beach

Unbelievably, we're heading full speed into summer, and families from all over the world are heading to the Hamptons to enjoy our beautiful beaches. It is important for parents to make sure they are fully equipped to hit the hot sand with their children. There are a few essentials you'll need for the sunny days you'll spend lounging on the Hamptons beaches.

Lather your little ones up with plenty of sunscreen about 30 minutes before you venture out. As the day goes on, and your children are hopping out of the water, reapply their sunscreen religiously even when they are under an umbrella. Wide brimmed hats and close-fitting sunglasses can help block the UVA and UVB rays from hitting your tots' little faces. You may feel overly protective, but protecting your children's skin is vital to minimize the sun's harmful effects.

You've battled the element of sun, and now it's on to the water. When your little ones are scampering around in the surf, keep their feet covered. The ideal beach footwear should be able to handle all types of wet and dry terrain. Look for lightweight, fast drying swim shoes with molded rubber soles, to prevent slipping on wet floors.

For babies making a small splash into the pool or beach, one-piece suits are available with built in buoyancy devises. Growing boys and girls have many stylish options available when it comes to selecting swimwear. Aquaswimwear is a unique company that features a hip line of mommy and me swimwear, all specially created with active moms in mind.

Company founder Natalie Walker was a high profile swimsuit designer in Southern California for 17 years before she launched Aquaswimwear. She got the idea to start her mommy and me swimwear line after having girls' swimwear made for her son's school fundraiser. Now, Walker also designs swimwear to flatter mom's post baby figure. These stylish suits are created with high waists and full bottom backs that elongate mom's legs and cover the tummy. Aquaswimwear's tankini top is fully equipped with a built-in soft cup bra and adjustable straps. "Every mom is different," Walker explained. "Some have shed all their baby weight and others are struggling with it. I am very sensitive to this and have engineered the fit to cover the tummy, yet reveal a younger leg line so they can still feel young and hip. Swimsuits should allow moms to look and feel beautiful, regardless of their size."

Natalie Walker soon teamed up with New Jersey resident Lisa Coster, to bring Aquaswimwear to the East Coast. These stay-at-home-moms connected after an article in Parenting Magazine last summer. "I loved the new mommy-and-me approach that Aquaswimwear offered and appreciated Natalie's sensitivity to the post-baby body," said Coster. Coster sticks to the sales and marketing, as Walker goes on designing and producing the fabulous products. "Until now, there weren't a lot of great mommy-and-me products out there," said Walker. "We offer items that mom and daughter find comfortable and hip!"

The gorgeous line of fabulous fitting swimwear and clothing also includes the ever-popular "Mama" line of specialty tees, which were a huge hit when Coster attended the June 3rd Stamford Jewish Community Center's Momathon, which provides services and programs for pregnant women and mothers with children under 5 years. Coster told us, "Moms with little ones need comfortable clothes for running errands, picking up toys and all that chasing. Aquaswimwear ensures moms both style and comfort." Coster, mother of a little girl and two boys, said, "who doesn't love dressing up their little girl? Our swimwear and tees provide options for mother and daughter to dress alike year-round. Or, many of my clients match their daughters in our suits and skirts or dresses for that wonderful Big and Little Sister look."

Aquaswimwear also features a fun "Swim Party in a Box," where fans of Aquaswimwear rent samples for home parties. Coster explains, "The Swim Party offers the best of both worlds. You can view all our patterns and sizes in the comfort of your own home and you can bring your friends over to try on samples too." If you go to Danspapers.com, you can jump right onto the Aquaswimwear.com from the KidsKalendar page. The combination of at-home coast-to-coast service (through private appointments or home shows and on-line shopping), allows Aquaswimwear's clients to shop where and when is most convenient. This line is for well-deserving moms that leave more hours to relax with their kids, while setting a fashion trend on the sand.

TWENTYSOMETHING... By DAVID LION RATTINER

The Man Date

I recently went out on a man date. For those of you that do not know, a man date is when two straight guys go somewhere together that does not fit into the category of sports, violence or drinking, and they have to adapt to the situation so that people don't think that they are together. Not that there is anything wrong with that, of course. For example, going to the movies with your friend could be considered a man date, depending on the title of the movie. If the movie has sports or guns in it, then it would not be considered a man date. However, if it is a comedy or a love story then, well, guess what, it's a man date.

As I grow older, more and more things are becoming man dates. How does this happen? At ten or eleven years old, it was perfectly normal to go to someone's house and have a sleep over. You would order pizza, watch a Jean Claude Van Damme movie, stay up late and sleep in the living room. This was the thing to do at ten years old. It was what I did nearly every weekend. Today, I can't even imagine sleeping over my buddy's house and watching a Jean Claude Van Damme movie. That would be crossing the line. I don't even think that would be considered a man date.

Even playing catch with a baseball is kind of a man date, now that I think about it. It doesn't count if you are actually on a team, but if you are doing it just for the fun of it, then it is a man date. Two guys going shopping together to buy clothes; man date. Going to the gym with another man, as of right now, is not considered in my book a man date. However, looking at the way things are going in this insecure world, it probably will turn into a man date pretty soon. Why is this? Have we all gone mad?

This is how my man date came about. A friend of mine on Friday night decided that we were sick of drinking at bars and that on this night we were going to do something other than that. We had a conversation about it and decided that going to a bar was stupid and unhealthy, at least for that night. We decided that we should do something else. Unfortunately, nothing was coming to mind. What the hell else is there to do? Were we seriously not able to figure out something else to do? Then, my friend had a brilliant idea. He suggested that we expand our minds culturally and go see the play Hamlet which is playing at Guild Hall in East Hampton. I used to be an actor in high school, so I was fairly interested in going, just to see people on stage. I couldn't even remember the last play that I had seen.

And so, we went. Well, it doesn't get any more man date than that. The play started at eight p.m. and it was at an art gallery. Two guys are not supposed to volunteer for this kind of thing. They are supposed to get dragged into it by their girlfriends. Yet here we were, at an art gallery, purchasing tickets to see a play.

When we got in the theater, I was totally starting to over think the whole situation. Should we even sit next to one another? Should I leave a buffer zone between us? I didn't know what to do. I had already committed to this man date, however, and there were not that many people at the show, so instead of a buffer zone, I just sat right next to my old pal.

Throughout the entire show, I found myself thinking about every motion that I made in my seat. If my back hurt and I had to adjust, I thought about how I would move to adjust so I wouldn't look suspiciously feminine in any way. Not that there's anything wrong with that. And if I needed to clear my throat, I did it in the most masculine way possible. High pitched throat clearing squeaks were out of the question. If I needed to go to the bathroom, I didn't whisper to my friend to let him know, I just got up and left.

When the play was over, I was actually proud of myself. I had done something cultural, with a good friend of mine. I had actually taken the time to go out and appreciate the arts in a town that is known throughout the world for being an artistic town. It was about ten-thirty p.m. when the play ended. Neither one of us were tired and neither one of us wanted to go home. We thought a lot about what we would do next, then I had a suggestion. "Want to go to Cigar Bar?"

"Yeah, man, let's go."

"How 'bout them Yankees?"

"They are awesome, man. Just awesome."

And just like that, the man date was over. I better not call this guy for three days. After all, I don't want to look desperate.

OVER THE RIVER AND THROUGH THE WOODS WITH KEN KINDLER

Big Woods

Big Woods is an 87-acre tract of mature forest managed by Southampton Town and The Nature Conservancy (TNC). A sign at the entrance of TNC parking area describes this wildlife preserve as the Marguerite Crabbe Greef Wildlife Sanctuary in honor of a woman whose family made TNC purchase possible. In addition to the forest of oak, beech, and white pine, there are freshwater wetlands and a breathtakingly beautiful view of the Sebonac Creek tidal marshlands.

Big Woods is adjacent to Southampton Town's Emma Rose Elliston Memorial Park and across from the Conservancy's Wolf Swamp Preserve. Wolf Swamp shares the perimeter of Big Fresh Pond with the Town Park. An excellent resource for information (and maps) about the two preserves and the Town Park can be found in The Trail Guide to the South Fork by Mike Bottini. Last Sunday I joined the Southampton Trails Preservation Society (STPS) on a hike that began in Elliston Park and then continued into the two adjacent Nature Conservancy parcels. I had expected to see Howard Riesman, a Marine Biology professor at Southampton College because he has been leading this STPS hike every month for many years. This month, however, Howard was out of town and Dianne Rulnick, the STPS Vice President, was there in his place. Dianne asked me if I knew the hike. I answered with a qualified affirmative; I know all the trails in the area and can tie them together. As it turned out, I didn't have to figure out the route because two of the hikers from East Hampton who regularly walked this hike with Howard knew the way. This was a small group of hikers; there were only eight people (two of whom were from New York City and read about the hike in Dan's

Papers). Small groups are not uncommon for STPS walks, and I would guess this is why hiking with the Southampton group is becoming popular with East Hampton hikers. Some of the popular East Hampton Trails Preservation hikes attract large numbers of hikers. If you want to know more about the Southampton trails group call 631-537-5202 or visit their page on the Hiking Long Island website (www.hike-li.org). If you take the STPS hikes you can become familiar with the trails. This will enable you to go back at a later date on your own and not get lost. Also, ask your hike leader about purchasing a copy of Bottini's excellent trail book, which I mentioned above. Parking at Elliston Park is for Southampton town residents only. To get there, follow County Road 39, then head north 2 miles on North Sea Road. Look for the Emma Rose Elliston Park sign and turn left onto Millstone Brook Road. Travel 0.3 miles and you will find the park on your left. If you are not a Southampton resident, travel a little further down Millstone Brook Road to the Scott's Road intersection. The triangular island between Millstone Brook Road and Scott's Road is where people normally park to visit TNC's Wolf Swamp Preserve. If you look across Millstone Brook Road from this parking area at the apex of the two roads, you will see the entrance to Wolf Swamp. It has a well-marked loop trail. If you look in the opposite direction, across Scott's Road, you will see the entrance to Town Trustee Road. Follow this dirt road and after a short distance you will be greeted by a threatening North Sea Gun Club sign. Don't worry though, this sign is meant to address illegal hunting; hikers will be safe if they stay to the trail. At this sign you can turn left to visit Big Woods or continue straight for a short distance, then turn right (east) to visit the 133-acre Elliston Park. If you continue straight on Town Trustee Road, it will take you to land managed by the Peconic Land Trust. You need permission to visit the Land Trust property (283-3195). If you get back on Millstone Brook Road and travel a little further east, you will find the small TNC parking area for Big Woods. The South Fork Nature Conservancy appreciates when you call before you visit (631-329-7689). If you are looking for an adventure in nature and you are a moderately experienced hiker, I strongly suggest that you explore these areas along Millstone Brook Road. The two TNC loops at Big Woods and Wolf Swamp are easy to follow; however, the other trails connected to them could be a little challenging for the inexperienced hiker.

Ken Kindler is a Trails and Open Space Advocate working to help the trails groups and land managers care for our "Natural Island." If you would you like to learn more about our trails or help care for them, visit the Hiking Long Island website. www.hike-li.org

Six Degrees of Kevin, Tom and Brad?

I think we've all heard about the old "Six Degrees of Separation" or "Six Degrees of Kevin Bacon" bit, but have we incorporated such a thought into the world of fashion? Men's fashion?

Well, when it comes to men's fashion, the word "basic" comes to mind. Most men claim they don't care about fashion. A simple pair of jeans and a reliable T-shirt will do just fine. That's only two degrees of separation if you ask me.

Perhaps if you're Brad, Tom or Kevin, (Pitt, Cruise or Bacon) that's all you need. All three of these leading men can get away with wearing any old outfit. But when it's time to walk down the Red Carpet or show up for a movie premiere, what should they wear? I'm sure their wives have a few thoughts (credit to you Kevin for that rock solid marriage). I think we have a problem in that category for Brad and Tom, unless of course they consider Angelina and Katie their latest accessory.

Father's Day is fast approaching and it's time to start shopping or thinking of ideas. Out with the old and in with the new (I'm referring to the clothes, not the men). This could be the perfect opportunity to make over the man you love so dearly.

Now, let's talk Prada. There are so many high-end designers that offer trendy and sophisticated looks, and Prada offers many options for those who don't like to be too daring. Known for sleek pants, great shoes and tightly fitted Ts, Prada boasts quality and a great reputation, with a hefty price tag to back it up. On the East End, you will occasionally find a bargain or two at Saks Fifth Avenue, in Southampton, but you better scoop them up quickly, for bargains are hard to come by.

Burberry men's line is also a favorite. This year they have expanded their market due to a rise in sales for both men and women. Burberry offers a more conservative line of clothing. This stylish line is slightly less expensive than Prada, but doesn't have that same cutting edge flare. Their signature plaid designs are offered in a variety of subtle color combinations. Burberry's simple button down shirts found at Banana Republic. Banana offers a plethora of casual and dress pants as well as interchangeable shirts and sweaters that can fit into a more reasonable budget. And, of course, there's J.Crew, who has been making waves with their resortwear collection - tennis pants anyone?

And if all that "high-end" "fancy" fashion talk won't work for your man, there are many other alternatives. Men prefer to dress casual these days because the work environment allows for it. The world is filled with successful entrepreneurs making their own rules and dress codes. Forget about those ties and suits, and make way for beach wear.

It should be no surprise that one of the leading men's clothing companies focuses mainly on surf/beachwear. Quiksilver this week reported a 24.7% increase in profit in the second quarter. That's 34.7 million dollars in profit!

Who said surfers aren't smart businessmen?

The bottom line is that sometimes men's fashion doesn't get the attention it deserves. There are so many top designers and trendy stores offering an endless array of choices. For those guys with no sense of fashion, stick to what you know best or ask someone to go shopping with you.

It's no surprise that shows like "Queer Eye for the Straight Guy" have been so successful. When it comes to style and fashion, some of us need more guidance than others.

As for "Six Degrees of Kevin Bacon," here we go; Brad Pitt starred with Tom Cruise in Interview with the Vampire who starred in A Few Good Men with Kevin Bacon. And they all look great in T-shirts!

Calvin Klein

and tapered flat front pants and plaid accessories have become in high demand over the past year.

For quality tailored suits, Hugo Boss and Calvin Klein both offer similar signature styles. With long, lean lines creating a great fit, you can't go wrong. Another favorite of many is John Varvatos. Many men have become "addicted" to his clothing because of the cuts (they find his designs to be extremely comfortable).

More affordable great quality clothing can be

Shop 'til You Drop... With Maria Tennariello

Finally the summer heat is here and here to stay. The towns were buzzing and the beaches were full of sun worshippers. I did a little bit of both. I did some beaching and some shopping. Let's go shopping!

At Porch & Patio on Montauk Highway in East Quogue, there is a "Summer's Here" sale going on. All the in stock Lloyd Flanders and Brown Jordan collections are now on sale. There is such a huge selection, you can take it with you and have an instant patio makeover.

While you're in Westhampton Beach, stop in at Flags and Flagpoles on Montauk Highway for a look at some great stuff at affordable prices. Flags and Flagpoles are the manufacturers of custom flags, banners and burgees. There are so many useful and beautiful things in this store that include U.S. Flags, historic, national, nautical and fun flags, weathervanes, cupolas and so much more.

Accents Backyard Essentials By J. Tortorella on Montauk Highway in Hampton Bays will save you 10% with their annual "Sale Away" tent sale on June 9 through June 12 on sumptuous spas and more. There will be fun for the entire family at this sale; look for some giveaways. Oh boy, I'll have to check this one out in person.

If you are looking for something really special for Dad on his day, or the Grad on his or her day, how about a Victorinox Swiss Army Watch? Rose Jewelers on Main Streets in Southampton and Patchogue have them in stock and ready to wrap. Stop in and pick one out for your Dad and Grad.

At Hildreth's Department Store on Main Street in Southampton, there is a "Vendor Day" happening with free demonstrations and free samples from various vendors on Saturday, June 11.

There is also the annual free knife sharpening of carbon stainless steel knives. And a raffle at 4 p.m. This will be going on all day until late afternoon, when they will be serving cookies and coffee. How cool is this?

In Southampton on Montauk Highway at Fortunoff Backyard Store, the biggest outdoor furniture sale of the season is happening right now. You can save up to 60% on a stainless BBQ grill, 50% on Sunblock umbrellas. Multi-position recliners, which are a beach must-have, are on sale for $69.99 and dining patio sets galore are also on sale.

The Agway Country Gardens at Bridgehampton on Snake Hollow Road is filled to capacity with summer savings. There is something for everyone including BBQs. And I'll bet you didn't know you could pick up pool chemicals here too. I actually went there to buy a birdfeeder, and there were plenty to choose from, including the squirrel-proof feeders. There is also food for your pets at good savings. The sale ends on June 13, so get going – the early bird always catches that worm!

T.J. Maxx in Bridgehampton Commons is having a dress sale that will get you buying at least a dozen. The prices are amazing at $19.99. There is a great selection to choose from and shoes galore to match. Funny thing, I always run into my daughter Michele there. I wonder why? The apple doesn't fall far from the tree!

Heading further east, I found Mark Anthony Rugs on Montauk Highway in Wainscott. There is a tremendous selection of handmade rugs for every room in the house. The prices range from $500 to $50,000. Your choice!

Another great source for great deals on patio furniture and accessories can be found at Treasure Island on Montauk Highway, East Hampton. There is a hot 20% off all chair cushions and beach and patio umbrellas. Not to mention the patio sets that are on sale and are very affordable. The tables are available in many different sizes and shapes. If you are into crafts, there is a large craft department where you will find just what you're looking for.

Do you know the Yard Couple store in the back parking lot off Main Street in Sag Harbor? Well, they are re-locating and are slashing prices from 10% to 40% off everything. Now is the time to stock up on vintage stuff, and save some bucks.

Well, I'm off and running back home to get ready for some beach time. How lucky can a gal get!

Until next week, Ciao and Happy Summer Shopping!

PAMELA FERRARI - EAST HAMPTON

Pamela Ferrari, a painter and designer, is known for her original, whimsical, sophisticated cotton and silk prints. Her Capri inspired collection of dresses and separates is the result of living thirty years in Florence, Italy. She has recently moved to New York, has just opened her shop in East Hampton and is currently producing her apparel line in New York City and Bangkok. Both the line and distribution are in the process of expansion.

In 1990, she began designing handpainted ceramics for an Italian manufacturer. These collections, under the Pamela Ferrari signature, were sold to Neiman Marcus, Bloomingdale's, Nordstrom's and Henri Bendel. Collections of bedding and home furnishing fabrics followed, for Italian, French and Dutch companies.

Pamela is primarily a print designer (with her own Pamela Ferrari label) and her summer collection is printed cotton and silk. For fall she has printed and solid corduroy and velvets, as well as silk. She designs her home furnishing fabrics and they are sold by the yard along with home accessories that include pillows. Exclusive in East Hampton are the Carolina Bucci gold jewelry line from Italy and the M&J Savitt line.

Pamela Ferrari's joyful colors and international background (her collections are inspired by the Mediterranean and Italy) give her designs a special appeal for both home furnishings and apparel.

Pamela Ferrari is located at 23 Newtown Lane (between Catherine Malandrino and the new Calypso), East Hampton. The shop is open every day from 10 to 6. For more information call 631-324-3212.

CANINE RANCH - EAST HAMPTON

It seems to me that the pooch boutiques are popping up all over the Hamptons. I found The Barkery at Canine Ranch in East Hampton, which specializes in the very best for the discriminating dog. Canine Ranch carries all-natural, gourmet doggie treats that are the "bark" of the town. You can take home some tasty dog biscuits, cookies, gourmet treats, and dog chew for your pampered pooch. All are baked fresh using all-natural, healthy and tasty ingredients. For your pooch's next birthday pawtie, you can order one of their human-edible "Woof-Day" cakes.

The Canine Ranch has a staff of experienced and dedicated groomers and, when necessary, can treat allergy-prone or sensitive pets using fine shampoos and conditioning. There is a doggie day camp that offers frolic and fun Monday through Friday, year round.

Capable camp counselors are there to supervise play time, encourage socializing and see that each dog is walked individually three times a day. An "On-Call" vet will make "camp calls" if any dog is in need of medical attention, with the approval of the owner, of course. Overnight boarding will be coming soon.

If you're looking for something special, take a walk on the wild side and check out the puff beds, iron sleigh beds, wood beds and yes, sofa beds. There is also a wonderful selection of collars, harnesses and clothing for your doggie to strut his/her stuff.

Canine Ranch is located at 38 Park Place, East

Hampton. For more information call 631-329-3647 (DOGS). Log onto their website at: www.canineranch.com

TAILOR NEW YORK - SOUTHAMPTON

For fashion seekers, Tailor New York has just opened its doors in Southampton. The boutique sells skirts, dresses, knit sweaters and tops, shoes and accessories. Company president Richard Rosenthal calls the clothing line "capitals of preppydom."

"Our niche is in taking classic fabrications and updating them for the women's contemporary market, producing clothes that are best described as 'preppy cool,'" he said. Clothes are mostly natural fabrics, with an emphasis on lightweight cottons. "Our customer ranges from teenager to that fit, 50-year-old tennis mom. We're working on adding handbags for the spring."

"We try to keep it fun and flirty," said Rosenthal, whose wife, Joy, is the design director of the collection. The clothes are oriented to daytime and casual evening-wear. "We're not heavily into after-five looks," he said, noting, however, that the holiday collection includes several evening dresses. "At the core of the collection is a tailored, traditional look, layered with elements reflective of current trends," said Joy Rosenthal. "It's a colorful, polished look with a built-in life beyond a single season because the base is always classic," she said.

The Tailor New York pieces range from $38 for a simple grosgrain belt to $228 for a fitted Madras blazer with denim detailing. "You can put together a head-to-toe outfit for about $500, including shoes," Rosenthal said.

Managing the new store is Lindsay Klatzko, a retail veteran formerly of Bergdorf Goodman. "Tailor New York was one of my vendors," she said. "I fell in love with the line, which has a great fit and can be dressed up or down according to the occasion."

Tailor New York is located at 58 Jobs Lane in Southampton and can be reached by calling 631-204-5600.

Clippity Clop with Ali Spencer

When ordinary passenger cars crash into one another, EMTs rush to the scene, and are adept at aiding the injured humans inside. When a house catches fire, fire fighters are trained to rescue the trapped inhabitants. But what happens when a horse trailer is involved in an accident? Or when a barn catches on fire?

Until recently, the horses trapped inside an overturned trailer or a burning barn were left without much hope. But thanks to Cathy Springer and the Suffolk Horseman's Association, that is changing.

Five years ago, Ms. Springer attended a class in equine rescue, and in November of 2001 she taught her first class on the subject, dedicated to the first response crews who perished on 9/11. Now, at the request of the Suffolk County Fire Rescue and Emergency Services, Cathy is still training response crews all over the island, and giving them a hands-on understanding of basic horse handling. In the event of a trailer accident, barn fire, or a loose horse running down a road, emergency workers will at least have an idea of how to manage the animals.

A few Sundays ago, I attended one of Ms. Springer's demonstrations at Mecox Bay Farms in Bridgehampton, coordinated by Horses On Trails, a division of the Southampton Trails Preservation Society.

Participants in the class included the fire chief of Bridgehampton, local volunteer firemen, EMTs, members of the ambulance squad, and police officers. People from all over Long Island brought their horses to help give emergency workers experience in handling them. Everything about the demonstration was voluntary. All the people attending had given up their Sunday because they believed the problem was serious, worthwhile, and important enough to deserve their time.

The class began with a video of an actual trailer accident. The images on the video were heartbreaking, but it gave the participants an idea of what they might be dealing with if they were to face a real equine calamity. The participants learned how to lead a horse at both the walk and the trot. They also learned about the different types of halters they would be likely to encounter, and how to create a makeshift halter to control a completely loose horse without anything to lead him.

Dr. James Meyer, a local veterinarian, was also present to talk about locating the major veins and arteries on a horse, in case the animal was wounded. On a sadder note, he also explained how to put a horse down in case of extreme injury and suffering. Finally, he reminded us that the first thing that should be done in an emergency situation is to call a local veterinarian to the scene.

The class also included a very interesting demonstration of how to deal with a scared horse. Needless to say, most horses in a disaster won't be standing around, calmly munching on clover. They will be panicked, distraught, and very difficult to control. To simulate this, Ms. Springer waved a noisy plastic bag in a horse's direction. This caused the horses to spook, shy, or run forward, away from the bag. In this situation, a person's first instinct is usually to pull on the horse's head to keep him in control. But instead of yanking on the horse, Ms. Springer had the participants circle their horses around them. This proved to be a much more effective way of getting a horse back in control.

But suppose a horse can't stand up? Suppose he's trapped in a trailer? It is extremely dangerous to enter an overturned trailer with horses inside. They are often struggling violently in an effort to free themselves. However, it is possible to tie a rope around a horse's tail in a very specific way, and pull the horse out of an enclosed space. Each participant practiced tying the knot, and also received a detailed diagram of how to recreate the knot.

The class took up a good portion of day, and was filled with more interesting and valuable information and instruction. But it struck me that the most important thing to remember from Ms. Springer's effort was the fact that there is likely to be one other individual more frightened, panicked, and desperate than you will be in such a situation, and that's the horse you are trying to help.

Rejuvenations by Christina Poulos

Stretch Marks

Most people shudder at the mention of stretch marks, or striae gravidarum, the pink and purple lines that form deep within the skin and eventually turn into white permanent scars. The most common places stretch marks are seen are on arms, breasts, the abdomen, hips, buttocks, and thighs. Stretch marks may be a dreaded topic, but for many people, they are inevitable. Not a very pleasant thought to those who plan to spend most of their summer in a bathing suit.

Stretch marks occur in 97 percent of women, and men get them too. They start in the middle elastic layer of your skin, called the dermis. This layer of skin is equipped with collagen fibers, which allow your skin to stretch. When the dermis is stretched for a long period of time, its elasticity breaks down, resulting in stretch marks.

There are a few reasons why stretch marks appear on our bodies. 50-90 percent of all pregnant women are susceptible to stretch marks from dramatic weight gain, which often begins during the fourth month of pregnancy. Heredity also plays a large role in determining if one will develop stretch marks. Some skin is genetically prone to them, so if your mother or grandmother experienced the painless scarring, odds are you will too. Another reason we might see stretch marks on our bodies is because of skin type. Dry skin has less elasticity than oily skin, so oily skin is able to handle stretching with more ease. For young boys and girls, stretch marks are common during the confusing time of puberty when hormone production increases. Growth is at an all-time high, so getting a few inches taller, losing baby fat, or gaining weight in certain areas can all lead to stretch marks. Another group at risk for "stretchies" are bodybuilders. Understandably, with an increase in body size, one's skin is at high risk for stretch marks.

Stretch marks cannot be prevented or removed, so a proactive approach is really the best way one might be able to minimize the appearance of stretch marks. Keeping your skin as healthy as possible is important. Since stretch marks are caused by the tearing of "dehydrated" skin, moisturizing is essential.

For years, women have sworn by cocoa butter and vitamin E oil, religiously massaging it onto their bellies during pregnancy. Here is a recipe that may be helpful for those with stretch marks:

Stretch Mark Oil

Dark glass 50 ml bottle

50 ml of wheat germ oil, or mixture of wheat germ and almond oil

Essential oils of lavender and neroli

Fill the bottle with wheat germ oil, or the mixture of wheat germ and almond oils for a thinner solution.

Add 15 drops of the essential oil of lavender and 10 drops of the essential oil of neroli.

Massage daily after bathing.

Maintaining your skin's moisture from the inside is important, too. Eating lots of fruits and veggies helps keep your skin supple, and drinking plenty of water also nourishes your precious shell.

Some women may proudly refer to their stretch marks as "battle scars" or "badges of honor," but most detest the scars that noticeably cover certain areas of their bodies. It may be hard to believe, but even with recent advancements in laser surgery, nothing has been proven to eliminate stretch marks once they are formed. There are many pricey products and procedures now available that claim to eliminate stretch marks, but in fact, most of these are useless and costly.

If you have stretch marks, you can camouflage them to make them less noticeable.

Over the counter sunless tanning lotions and sprays, and in-salon treatments can help hide stretch marks. Traditional tanning at the beach or bed will not help, but can add to the problem, as scars don't tan and are actually made worse with exposure to the sun. You can even use cover-up products that match the color of your skin, just as long as you aren't soaking yourself in the pool. For women, bathing suit manufacturers make "boy short" bathing suit bottoms and tops with high necks, which are foolproof and stylish ways to cover stretch marks on the thigh, butt, and chest area.

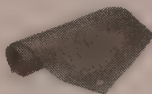

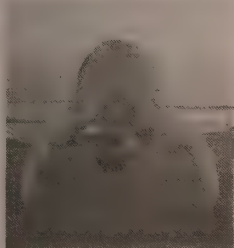

If you are among the many that have stretch marks, get used to them, and accept that they are now a part of your body. My advice to those who stress over stretch marks: don't dwell on them, deal with them!

Cycling Safety

This past weekend I noticed many cyclists cruising up and down our back roads. As nice as it was to see people getting out in the sunny weather, enjoying a ride through the countryside, every time I neared a bike I became nervous. This was especially so around blind curves and bends where there was no shoulder to the road. It was even more nerve-wracking when children were involved. Clearly I didn't want to spend my entire drive stuck behind two people cycling abreast, but the opportunities to pass were few and far between. When I'd pull to my left and begin to accelerate, an oncoming car would almost always appear, and I'd be forced to pull back behind the bikes. The riders didn't acknowledge that anything had happened and after my third attempt failed, I gave a honk and one of the cyclists looked back, then motioned the other to pull over to the side of the road. If only dealing with deer was that easy.

Plain and simple, motorists and cyclists have to share the road. Whether weekend tourists or Tour de France trainees, the rules of the road are the same. Clearly motorists have their part in this equation, but this article predominantly deals with safety precautions for those on two wheels. Cycling is a great way to get exercise while seeing the beautiful sights, but it can turn ugly in an instant. To avoid accidents, there are several things, to take into consideration: Clothing, bicycle maintenance, and dealing with passing cars are just some of them.

Make yourself visible. Bright or neon clothing works great. Avoid wearing baggy pants that can get caught up in the gears and always wear a helmet. As much fun as it may be to ride with headphones on, this can be dangerous. If you can't hear a car approach or its horn, you may be at risk.

Protect your bike from disrepair. Shabby chic doesn't work for bicycles. Replace worn brake pads, tires, and cables. Check bolts and spokes to make sure everything is in top condition; otherwise, you may end up stranded on the side of the road, or worse.

Keep your eyes on the road in front of you. Some cyclists ride with their heads down, gazing only a foot or two in front of the bike. This limits your ability to observe and process what is going on in the distance, such as potential dangers that can be easily avoided.

As a cyclist, you have the right of way. It sounds great, like a get out of jail free card, but try explaining your right of way to the front grill of a two ton SUV. It doesn't work. You may have the right of way, but cars are big and deadly. It's up to you to know when to relinquish your right to save your life, and it is also important to know when to impose your right.

If a car approaches from behind on a long stretch of straight road, the driver should be able to pass you without reasonable difficulty, but along the curvy back streets it's a little more difficult and puts everyone at risk. As a cyclist, you have to acknowledge that the motorist may try to pass you, even around a blind curve. This not only makes things dangerous for you, but also the driver of the car and potentially anyone driving in the opposite direction. If you notice the situation early enough you can prevent it.

First, when approaching the curve, look back over your left shoulder. If there is a car you will see it, and the driver will see that you have acknowledged he is behind you. Next, stick your left arm out at a 45 degree downward angle. This is meant to warn the motorist to stay back. Keep your arm out long enough for the car to see that it is an intended motion. Look back over your left shoulder again to make sure you have time and space, and then move into the center of the lane. Maintain your position, making the driver realize that there is no way for him to pass you. Once you get around the dangerous curve and it is safe, head back to the right side of the road and motion the driver along. It's a simple way of maintaining safety on the road and preventing the automobile driver from risking your life and the lives of others on the road.

There are many other tips and tricks to riding safely on the East End. If motorists and cyclists adhere to the rules and respect each other, this summer should lend itself to some truly beautiful days of biking. We all need to share the road.

The Garden At Rock Cottage by Lance Brilliantine

Fragrant Garden Addition

Unfortunately, many modern garden flowers are not fragrant. What a disappointment to visit a beautiful garden and not be transported by the sweet aroma of flowers! For example, hybridizing has left many of the most beautiful roses, and many other flowers, without fragrance.

I am always on the lookout for fragrant flowers to add to flower beds. The thought of flower fragrances spiraling across a warm summer day is particularly appealing. What would summer be without these smells?

Dianthus is one of those flowers that can add fragrant depth to summer borders. It is a prolific bloomer that, when deadheaded regularly, provides color and fragrance from June through frost. It is an excellent selection for mass plantings, or as an accent.

There are probably 250 species of Dianthus (sometimes referred to as "Pinks"), and an additional hundred or so hybrids. The scientific genus name of the most popular garden variety – Dianthus chinensis – suggest the plant originated from China, though its European foundation is well documented. Dianthus is part of the Caryophyllaceae family of plants. It can be classified in categories of annuals, biennials, and perennials.

Dianthus comes in sizes from two inches high to about three feet tall. Most of the garden varieties rarely exceed 18 inches in height. Plants may be sprawling or compact and typically form flowers that have a flat rosette with serrated petals. The flowers can be single, semi-double, or double. Flowers come in colors from white to pink, to shades of magenta, raspberry, salmon, and lilac. Most produce a wonderful, spicy fragrance that can fill a garden with pleasant aromas.

Dianthus is an easy garden plant to grow and be successful with, provided you locate it in an area that receives a minimum of four or five hours of full sun each day. More sun produces more abundant flowering. The plants thrive in fertile, well-draining soil that is slightly alkaline (this suggests the need for some soil enhancement in most East End gardens).

Prepare the soil by cultivating it to a depth of about one foot. Amend the soil with compost, dehydrated manure, and/or peat; add several handfuls of garden lime. If possible, let the soil sit for a week or so before planting the flowers.

It is easiest to purchase dianthus from the local nurseries on the East End rather than starting from seed – though this is possible. Situate the plants about six inches to eight inches apart, and at a depth that sets the crown of each plant level with the surface of the soil. Unlike many other garden plants, dianthus must not be mulched. The plant requires good air circulation around its stems and must be kept as free from foliage moisture as possible. Water lightly on the first day, just to keep the plants from wilting during their transplanted "shock" period.

Some of the most prolific and fragrant varieties include the following: "Allspice," which produces quantities of single, brightly colored flowers of raspberry with a thin white margin on each petal; "Blue Hills" forms a stunning, dense mat topped by brilliant magenta flowers; "Inchmery" has light pink flowers that are heavily scented; "Lady Granville" has semi-double, white flowers with red centers that are heavily scented; "Mountain Mist" produces beautiful gray-blue foliage and intensely scented white flowers; "Rose du Mai" produces double flowers of lilac-pink that are quite fragrant; and "Mrs. Sinkins" produces double white flowers that are extremely aromatic as well.

To ensure maximum blooms, fertilize the plants every six to eight weeks. I typically use a fish emulsion or general-purpose garden fertilizer. Be careful not to over-water the plants. Over-watering tends to turn the foliage yellow (weekly watering usually suffices). Water in the morning instead of afternoons or evenings, to provide the maximum amount of time for the foliage to dry out.

Dianthus flowers are one of those garden staples that can be relied on for color and fragrance. The spicy fragrance, in particular, adds depth and a special dimension to the summer garden. For a splash of intense color and this spicy fragrance, I cannot recommend a better or easier selection to add to the summer border.

The Players' Room

In a perfect world, there would be no reason to remain indoors for any moment of the summer because the weather would always be perfect. Unfortunately, we all must face reality on several occasions. This includes participating in a couple of indoor recess sessions during the summer when rain, dark clouds and/or extra heavy winds steal the day from your eagerly awaited plans.

If you are a seasoned or smart Islander – and the fact that you are reading Dan's Papers implies that you are – then your basement or another sturdy room in the house is probably equipped with flashlights, a radio, and other supplies that would come in handy if, heaven forbid, a hurricane hits. Similarly, you should prepare for a day or so of playtime confined to indoors. A bunker or bungalow of entertainment is a wise investment that will shelter you from the storms of boredom and isolation.

When creating such an environment in your house, there are many details to which you must pay attention. The location of the room, the items you choose to put in it, the layout of such items and a few other aspects are important to take into consideration. They will reflect who you are, your take on what is fun and entertaining, and what type of people you believe your friends are.

Most people choose the basement as the ideal spot for their playrooms. It makes sense for several reasons. Whether it is mom and dad entertaining friends while the younglings sleep snugly two flights above them, or kid sister and brother playing downstairs as grandma and grandpa read the paper upstairs, noise containment is a big advantage of basements. Still, some prefer having a playroom with a view and choose such locations as the room above the garage.

A pool table, stereo, air hockey table, big screen television, foosball table, DVD player, ping-pong table, and several other classic game sets or entertainment systems always create the right diversion from depressing weather. The higher the quality of the set or system, the better sound and picture, game play, and durability they will produce. You want these items to last, to remain in peak condition in preparation for every day of bad weather that awaits you in the future. Locally, Patio.com and Stevenson's Toys & Games in Southampton, the Game Depot in Riverhead, and even the K-Mart in Bridgehampton Commons are great places to start looking for your playroom items.

A rumpus room can have every entertaining item known to man and still be missing something. Remember, this room represents your idea of fun. Do not leave it undecorated and looking like a warehouse. My father decorated his retro-style, putting up posters and signs of advertisements for such "back in the day" products as Ted William's Creamy Root Beer and the early days of Oreo cookie sandwiches – all it needs now is a funky juke box with neon lights. My cousin the surf nut hangs his collection of boards on the walls, and even uses an altered one as a coffee table. Hanging beads from the doorway, lava lamps, beanbags, sports memorabilia and so many other items can give your playroom the character it needs to enhance the escape.

If the room is not big enough to fit all of the items you want at your disposal, do not push it. It does not have to be like the packed arcade where you bump shoulders with people as you move from one game to the next. Leave plenty of space for mingling and chilling while watching a movie. If you have kids, you do not want tight corners for them to run into and bump their heads or jam their fingers. In addition, the more blankets and pillows you have (preferably gigantic ones), the cozier you can make it for your guests or your kids and their playmates.

When adding that super stereo or high-tech television, remember to give it the appropriate space. Do not spend all of that time and money to get these items if you are not going to use them at their best. Make sure speakers are put at least six inches away from walls behind or to the side of them. Keeping them as far apart from each other as the room allows spreads their sound across the rest of the space. Line the television as symmetrically against the wall as possible for the theater effect.

If you have an extra large item like a pool table or a ping-pong table that does not fold up, either choose a spacious corner for its own special area (a home-made bar is also best placed in a cozy corner), or designate it as the centerpiece of your room. When safely covered, it can be used as a countertop for food, drinks, etc. A solidly stocked store of refreshments and snacks is essential for such countertops. Chips, pretzels, popcorn, cookies, and other foods that last longer than a week before going sour or losing their ripeness are the best choice.

Many of these tips are basic because it is up to you to adjust them to fit your tastes, interests, and personality (probably that of any family and friends you predict will use the room as well). Before taking any major steps, take measurements of the room and get a feel for how the traffic of people will flow through it, as well as where they will most likely congregate. Think about how the space will be used, and have fun.

Lather Up

Nothing makes you love the skin you're in better than today's homemade soaps. These natural soaps, unlike the commercial brands, leave in glycerin, which is a natural moisturizer for the skin. Glycerin is essential because it does not cause the skin to dry, flake or itch. Most commercial soaps contain detergents and preservatives that may cause allergic reactions. Homemade soaps usually do not use animal by-products, preferring high grade vegetable oils and fats (like olive and coconut oil, which are natural moisturizers).

Homemade soaps are made by a process known as saponification. When a mixture of lye and fats and/or oils is dissolved in milk (goat's milk being a natural moisturizer), herbal tea or water, a chemical reaction occurs. (Palm oil quickens this reaction.) The end product of this technique results in the elimination of the lye; usually ensured by superfattening agents, such as vitamin E and wheat germ oil, leaving only the soap and the formation of glycerin.

Once the mixture has thickened into a trace, it is ready to be poured into molds. This is called cold process. It usually remains in the molds for 24 hours prior to removing and then is cured for 2-4 weeks.

Here are some fragranced homemade soaps that not only delight the senses but also have the added benefit of having medicinal characteristics.

Lavender is a very popular ingredient. Because of its relaxing quality, it often induces sleep. It has wound healing properties which relieve anything from muscle pain to the discomfort that may result from an insect bite. It can be applied on all types of skin but is especially effective for acne and sun damaged skin.

Rosemary relaxes you from head to toe. It is a great antidote for daily stress, improves poor circulation, stimulates skin cell production and works as a remedy for dandruff and hair loss. When combined with emu oil (which restores skin), rosemary can aid in treating eczema and psoriasis. This is especially good for oily to normal skin types.

Lemongrass, with its fresh lemony smell, is a great skin toner. It helps with excessive perspiration and acne. Other soap additives that act as deodorants are coffee and grapefruit seed extract. (If you prefer soap with either just a hint of scent or unscented, use pumpkin seed oil.)

Aside from its delicious aroma, peppermint delivers oxygen to the cells, which assists in stimulating circulation. It provides relief for migraines and mental fatigue. In addition, peppermint is excellent for treating respiratory disorders such as bronchitis and asthma and is effective when dealing with a cold or flu.

Patchouli has a deep, earthy scent. It works on all types of skin and is known for handling skin disorders such as cracked skin and wrinkles, acne and fungal infections, athlete's foot and eczema. Patchouli is also an antidepressant and tonic.

Homemade soaps are a highly personal item which not only meet our individual needs but which are also something we can share with others by offering specialty soaps as party favors (especially popular at graduations and weddings).

We want our soap to reflect our lifestyles, and today's homemade soaps are created to do just that.

These soaps can range from extra mild for a baby's tender skin, to an exfoliate for the hard working professional to remove daily grime and dirt. For the athletically inclined, there is a soap to simply freshen up at the end of a game and for that weekend barbecue there's a soap that can keep the bugs away.

With the advent of aroma therapy, we are now able to select and enjoy a wide variety of heavenly fragrances homemade soaps which help us unwind at the end of the day. Moreover, homemade soaps aid in the healing process for our aching muscles and bones, treat respiratory and skin disorders, and serve as antibacterial and antiseptics for wounds and inflammation.

In addition, homemade soaps with their rich moisturizers make our skin feel smooth and soft to the touch so we may look and feel younger.

Soaps have certainly come a long way from the days when soap's sole purpose seemed to be limited to washing our hands before eating and after going to the bathroom.

Today, homemade soaps have become a way for us to express our need for private time when we can wash away our troubles and take the opportunity to recharge our bodies and rejuvenate our spirits.

Gas vs. Charcoal

After receiving dozens of letters asking me to explain whether gas or coal grilling is better and whether hardwood lump coal is better than briquettes (actually one e-mail, from my editor), I am now prepared to offer the definitive answer. And as a bonus for my dear reader, I will also step into the thicket to discuss spice rubs.

First, let me set the stage of the debate. Grilling guru Bobby Flay, in his book Boy Meets Grill, explains that he is devoted to his gas grill and finds the decision of coal versus gas to be strictly personal. He appears to be agnostic over whether hardwood lump coal is better than briquettes. Al Roker, in his Big Bad Book of Barbecue, comes down definitively on the side of charcoal, largely out of enjoyment of the ritual. He is a strong proponent of hardwood lump coal. Flay is known for his grilling skills, and Roker wrote his book before his gastric by-pass surgery, so they each have a great deal of expertise.

Oddly enough, neither Flay nor Roker seems to think there is a taste difference between gas grilling and coal grilling. Flay likes the convenience of gas, Roker likes the ritual of lighting coals. With respect to both of them, they may fail to discern a difference because their recipes call for all sorts of seasonings, sometimes wet, sometimes dry, and always with tons of flavor. To that extent, I agree. If your goal is to grill a Cajun-rub sirloin or a heavily coated barbecue chicken, it is highly unlikely that you will detect differences in flavor caused by gas or coal.

Save the wonderful ritual of lighting coal for a time when it matters, like when you are making hamburgers, hotdogs, a New York strip steak seasoned only with salt and pepper, or chicken marinated in nothing but lemon juice and a bit of olive oil. Now, your meal is about the meat itself, and making sure its natural flavors come out best. Here, there really is no basis for argument: charcoal is superior. Gas grill cooking simply cannot lend the smoky, woody flavor that people crave from coal grilling.

Until it came time to write this article, I had never used hardwood lump coal. The main attraction, we are told, of hardwood lump coal is that it burns cleaner, hotter and faster than briquettes. Let us start with the cleaner part. Just as gas grilling is more enviro-friendly than coal grilling, lump hardwood definitely wins over briquettes. Lump hardwood coal is the result of burning a hardwood (such as oak) in the absence of oxygen. Briquettes are made from hardwood and additives, including petroleum products. While both are less clean than natural gas, at least lump hardwood doesn't have the additives.

But so far, I like grilling with briquettes better. While it is true that they take longer to heat up and do not burn as hot as lump hardwood, I found the lump hardwood to burn so hot that it was difficult to keep the food from charring too much, even when I moved the food to an area with barely any coal. Also, the lump hardwood (which costs more than briquettes) burns through extremely fast. That is fine for hamburgers and hotdogs, but trying to maintain a constant temperature while chicken cooks would be challenging. It may be that I will eventually figure out a cooking style with lump hardwood, but if you do not want to have to re-learn how to grill from scratch, you should stick with briquettes. Because the additives in briquettes burn off before they turn ashy-white, there does not seem to be any flavor difference between briquettes and hardwood.

My preference for charcoal grilling should leave the reader unsurprised with what I have to say about rubs and sauces. If you have a charcoal grill, don't put them on your meat or vegetables.

All winter, we are forced to cook with gas or electric heat. Stuck indoors, we spice up our meats and vegetables in many creative ways. For a brief season in the summer, though, we have the true privilege of improving the innate taste of our food — meat, chicken, fish, fresh summer vegetables like zucchini and Vidalia onions and even fruits like peaches — with a charcoal fire. Don't hide that flavor under spices and rubs. Salt, pepper, some olive oil for very lean meat and vegetables, and perhaps some citrus and fresh herbs are all you need.

What's Cooler than Cool? Ice, Ice Baby!

The Islanders and Rangers usually need it to skate on (hopefully next season, guys), without it our drinks would be warm and flat, and Vanilla Ice would just be singing about water. So what's deliciously cold on a hot summer's day and adds zing to your Long Island tea? You got it "ICE, ICE BABY."

Let's talk ice.....if you say that to a jeweler they are going to think you're talking about diamonds. If you say that to an athlete, they are going to think you're talking about the stuff you skate on. If you say it to a geologist they are going to be talking glaciers. If you are talking to a bartender, they are going to say "on the rocks." Don't ever mention that word to any Titanic survivors! I think we take our friend the ice cube for granted.

Ice is formed when temperatures are below 32 degrees Fahrenheit and is a member of the "hexagonal crystal system." The space group is P63/mmc. It is brittle and has a conchoidal fracture. In snow crystals the habit is stellate with six rays. Pretty cool, huh? Literally... ice needs solid temperatures under the freezing range to stay in its hexagonal shape or it has a meltdown! If we hit a thaw we have to say "Bye Bye Mr. Snowman..." and we get to watch every avid skier out there cry..but Yosemite loves those melt-downs because their natural waterfalls get revived each year.

Now, back to the Hamptons. Ice has an important role in every single party. What is your guest list without Ice Cube? But he has to be dressed to impress. Every ice cube needs to be housed in the perfect ice bucket. Waterford has an array of beautiful ice buckets. If you want to stick to a nautical theme they feature the Waterford Seahorse Ice Bucket, which has an embedded emblem of a seahorse set deep in crystal. If you are into vintage, Waterford features a beautiful silver set complete with decanter and tongs. If your ice prefers Lenox, they can be enriched with a Tuscany experience. These stainless steel canisters feature lots of room to pile the "cube and his relatives" inside.

Unfortunately, everyone is crushed at some point in their life...even ice cubes. In this case, you need to crush with care. Maybe you've got that food coloring and flavor out and you plan to make a snowcone with the kids, or maybe your Piña Colada needs some crushed ice. Whatever the reason, if you want to do it with style, consider investing in the Ice Crusher by Trudeau. It's ideal for Margarita drinkers or for soft drinks too; just lift the stainless steel lid, slip in "ice, ice baby" and grind away (very similar to a coffee grinder).

There a very cute compact crusher available at chefscatalog.com. It produces 13.5 oz of crushed ice per minute...just hide it under the bar and bring it out for the party.

Ice sculptures are a must have for any big event. These beautiful engraved images capture the attention of any party-goer.

Ice sculptures of New York (icesculpturesofny.com) is a professional service that will essentially create a sculpture for any event. Billy Bywater is another sculpture artist who caters to the New York and Long Island area. This award-winning artist's works are geared to the individual needs of the client and it says on his site (billybywater.com) that the sculptures can last up to 4 hours. Both professionals' works are breathtaking.

Sculptors use chainsaws, blow torches and ice picks. So if you follow suit and are a picky person, make sure that you select the right tool for you. You can find a variety of tools at nextag.com offers that would make even the choosiest person happy. The tools come in varieties made of wood or stainless steel. The American Metalcraft variety is six pronged with six stainless steel tips. For the ultra-picky person who doesn't want a heavy hand, then the American Metal lightweight ice pick is for you. This tool features hardened steel points and has solid wood handles. It's thin but tough.

So as your party gets under way this summer and you think you're good to go, make sure that you have all the necessary equipment and tools or you'll be skating on thin ice.

How Much Is That Doggy In The Window?

Every once in a while, it might be fun to say, "Release the hounds." I think that is one of the reasons why people like to purchase guard dogs. There are, of course, other reasons that you would purchase a guard dog. They protect your home, they protect your children, they give you a sense of well-being, and they are really cool. But what kind of guard dog is right for you? Does the size of the dog matter? Are they dangerous to your family?

These are all questions that you have to consider when you make the decision that you want to buy a guard dog.

First off, the most important thing to remember when purchasing a guard dog is to stay away from breeders that breed dogs with a mean temperament. You may think that it is a good idea to get the meanest, most vicious dog around when protecting your property, but this is actually the first thing that you should avoid when purchasing a guard dog. The reason for this is because a dog bred with a mean temperament is a direct liability to you and can very easily attack someone that doesn't deserve to be attacked, such as a mailman. Although it may sound kind of exciting to have a dog that gives the dog equivalent of the middle finger to everyone it meets, it actually will only do more damage to you than good.

So when purchasing a dog, make sure you go to a professional who understands what you are looking for. Speaking of this, it is also important to decide whether or not you want a "watch dog" or a "guard dog." The difference between these two types of working dogs is relatively simple. A watchdog simply barks like a maniac when somebody shows up at your house that you do not know. The idea here is that the dog will scare away an intruder from entering your home. A guard dog, on the other hand, is a dog that is trained to attack and restrain an intruder. Both types of working dogs are effective at preventing intruders from entering your home because intruders are afraid of dogs because they cause a lot of noise and they are also, for the most part, fearless. Studies have shown that an intruder is just as likely to be driven away from a property by a watch dog in comparison to a guard dog.

A lot of people want to buy a guard dog simply for home protection and then have another dog as a family dog. This is also a mistake. Guard dogs, like any other dog, need attention and need to be cared for, otherwise their loyalty and their ability to protect your home will fade. A dog in an unhealthy environment can also become unstable and may not only attack an intruder, but could also attack you. So if you plan on getting a guard dog, do not think that it is going to be a dog that you do not have to spend time with. Any dog, including a guard dog, has to be loved and cared for by its master in order for it to be healthy and loyal.

Any dog with a voice makes a good guard dog if given the proper training, even a poodle. However, there are some dogs that are better-known for their security abilities due to their size, strength and look. A good guard dog is a dog above seventy-five pounds, is agile, intelligent, alert, strong, and has an intimidating bark. Dogs that fit this profile that are commonly used as guard dogs are Doberman Pinschers, German Shepherds, Rottweilers, Pitbulls, and Tibetan Mastiffs. All of these breeds of dogs make for extremely effective guard dogs.

Once you have decided on the breed of dog that is right for you, you can go out and get one. Prices of dogs can range anywhere from nothing to thousands of dollars, depending on the breed and where it comes from. Much of this decision is based on the emotional connection that one feels when meeting a dog. How much you are willing to spend on the animal is another important factor. Once you purchase the dog, finding an effective trainer is extremely important. The best thing to do is to search through word of mouth for a good trainer to train your dog. You can also send your dog to a training school. Although this can cost you, having a well-trained dog to protect your home is far more effective at driving away intruders. It is not recommended that you try to train the dog yourself to attack an intruder. This type of training is highly specialized and requires a professional.

A good guard dog is not only an animal that will watch your home, but will also be a part of the family. A kinship with your guard dog will not only be enjoyable, but will encourage the dog to protect you when it senses something out of the ordinary. Keeping that in mind when purchasing your guard dog will make all the difference in finding one that is right for you.

A Place for Summer Romance

Spring and summer conjure up images of romance. Proms, weddings, long walks along the beach and candlelit dinners under the sunset are just some of the scenes that come to mind. This summer, create your own romance by getting a gazebo for your backyard. Adding this one thing can transform your average yard into a beautiful garden, worthy of even the finest Hamptons estate.

Gazebos are versatile structures. Just last week, my sister had her prom, and she posed for pictures in front of our gazebo. The gazebo provided the perfect backdrop for the photos, effortlessly giving them a romantic feel. Following her departure, the rest of my family sat down to dinner under the shelter of the gazebo. What more could you ask for from an outdoor structure than form and function?

What makes the gazebo seem so romantic anyway? I think it has to do with its unique shape. Nearly all gazebos I have come across have been octagonal, and besides the distinctly unromantic stop sign, I cannot think of anything else having the same shape. The allure of something so different must be what draws us to gazebos. After all, isn't uniqueness a trait we look for when searching for that special someone?

The gazebo has been around longer than you may think, appearing as part of vacation homes along the Mediterranean during the early Roman ages. Even before that, Egyptian monarchs created elaborate sketches of their homes for the afterlife, dwellings which often included a gazebo for the garden. Gazebos became especially popular in France and England during the 18th century, and it was at this time that the word gazebo became part of the vocabulary. An architectural writer named William Halfpenny and his son John coined the term in a 1752 book, "New Designs for Chinese Temples." Although we are sure this was the first time the word appeared, no one is quite sure how the men came up with it.

The shape of gazebos is fairly standard, but that is about the only thing that is. All of the other details can be customized to create the exact gazebo you have been dreaming of. First, choose the type of material you would like the gazebo to be constructed out of. Wood is the most common, but the type of wood can vary. Red cedar and treated pine are two of the most popular options. Many companies also offer gazebos made of vinyl. Although not as traditional, vinyl gazebos have the added benefit of being virtually maintenance free. If you choose a wooden gazebo, you must decide if you would like your gazebo painted or unpainted. Both options are equally desirable, and the final decision will depend on the look you want for your yard. In terms of painted gazebos, white is the dominant color, but there is no reason not to be adventurous and choose a brighter, more daring color to spice up your garden decor.

Speaking of spices, variety is the spice of life, and so there are many different ways to make your gazebo stand out from all the others. The roof can be customized to your liking. You can keep it simple, or you can take it up a notch by getting a two-tier roof. For either choice, you can use cedar shake shingles or asphalt shingles. Some people choose to match the roof of their gazebo to the roof of their house. For the gazebo's panels, you can use lattice or traditional railing. Adding Victorian embellishments is an easy way to create an elegant look. If you want to take your gazebo to a whole other level, consider adding screens, or even make it an all-season gazebo by using Plexiglas. An all-season gazebo can serve as an excellent pool house or a storage space.

Finally, there are nearly unlimited options in terms of the size of your gazebo. Gazebos can range from the very large, such as those often featured in town squares and parks, which can sometimes house an entire band, to the very small, such as those gazebos big enough only for a small bench, perfectly suited for tiny yards. There is of course some medium ground, such as the gazebos which easily fit a picnic table. A gazebo could also be sized around a hot tub or just a few lounge chairs.

Just think about romance when designing your gazebo, and your love life is sure to heat up as summer temperatures rise.

Real Estates by Diane Strecker

On the North Fork, towns like Greenport are getting busier by the day. Each season more people venture onto the quieter of the two forks to sail, frequent the many farm stands, and taste wine. Here it is more about country than nightlife. Although the area has a slower rhythm than the Hamptons, realtors have definitely seen an increase of visitors, summer renters and buyers over the last few years. This has, of course, increased property values through out the region on both the bay and sound sides as well as commercial sites in the villages. There is still plenty of open land for sale, which is going strong.

In the Village of Greenport just about ten years ago, the town and its surrounding historic homes were falling to disrepair. You could pick up one of these old gals for about $100,000 to $200,000 or so, depending on their condition. Today the town is thriving, bustling with all kinds of activity. The waterfront area has been restored, the historic carousel moved to the waterfront, and the tall ships come in for visitors to board. Properties there have literally tripled. Homes in the historic section of the Greenport village are now worth upwards of $600,000. The Grand Victorians can bring closer to a million. Greenport was once an old whaling village and is filled with old captains' homes, some of which have been beautifully restored into private residences or turned B&Bs. Many new restaurants have sprouted up and are keeping busy. The main street buildings have been renovated and new shops line the town. The wineries draw people from everywhere, even the South Fork day-tripper just looking to get out of the crowds for a day. Here you get more of a New England than Hampton feel. It is an easy hop from North Haven across Shelter Island and into Greenport on the ferry. Some of the brokers here say that the area is beginning to appeal to those that are through with the over-crowding of the Hamptons.

Nassau Point, an area in Cutchogue that juts out into the Peconic Bay and has some of the most beautiful beaches on the North Fork, is starting to draw some big numbers as is the sound-front land out as far as East Marion, where you can still buy acreage backed by endless acres of preserved and protected land and wetlands. There are some exceptional pieces of sound front land for sale in the reserve area on Dam Pond for just under $2 million. Grapes are being planted just about everywhere there is room and soil that will accommodate them. And, if it's not a new winery it's a new golf course spreading out onto old farm fields. On the North Fork in fall visitors make their way east for veggies and pumpkins almost with the same zeal as beachgoers on the South Fork do in summer.

For sale on Nassau Point, on a pristine stretch of white sand beach, is a 2500 sq ft 1920s Dutch Colonial on 3 ultimately private acres. The property has spectacular views of the Peconic, its own beach cabana and is part of a private peninsula that forms a protected channel. It is listed for $4,750,000 – a price that would be unheard of here not all that long ago.

In Cutchogue, an 83-acre vineyard is now up for sale at $8,975,000. This vineyard includes two remodeled tasting rooms, two barns and acres of well maintained Chardonnay, Cabernets and Merlots already planted. Listed with Syma Joffe Gerard who specializes in land on the North Fork.

Tucked securely away on Shelter Island is some pretty high-end real estate with some real substantial parcels of land. The island offers some of the most secluded properties on the East End, where resident celebrities such as Billy Joel have owned good-sized spreads. At this time there a few beautiful Grand Victorians for sale on Shelter Island where homes of this type do not come on the market all that often. One of them, known as Mostly Hall, is a stately 7000 sq ft on more than two acres that overlooks Dering Harbor. It is a Queen Victorian with 6 bedrooms and 5.5 baths and has all the details homes built in this era are known for, such as stained glass windows, a carved wood staircase, a grand center hall, high ceilings, a huge wrap-around porch, servants' quarters, built-in bookcases and a stone kitchen floor. There is also a deep-water dock. The property can also include the adjacent guest cottage, bringing the price to $9,500,000.

NO TAX FOR YOU!

How would you like to sell your property and not pay any capital gains tax on the profit? Sounds like a shady deal, but the IRS created a procedure for you to do just that. It's called a "1031 Tax-Deferred Exchange," and many people have never heard of it. But even small investors with just one property can take advantage of its benefits.

In the most basic of terms, a 1031 exchange allows investors to defer their capital gains tax if they exchange for or purchase another "like kind" property within a certain amount of time. The provision for "like kind" real estate is pretty broad, allowing for the exchange of land, rentals, or business properties as investments or rentals.

The lackluster performance of the stock market in recent times has inspired interest in real estate as an asset, so more investors and realty professionals are learning about these 1031s. Taking proceeds from your sale and putting them into something like bonds hits you with taxes that put a big dent in your returns. Putting your money into another property as your investment defers the tax burden.

Of course, any real estate agent assisting with the transaction would also be working with tax advisors, attorneys and intermediaries to guarantee that all the nuances of the tax code are fully complied with, and that you are completely satisfied with your exchange.

If you are thinking about purchasing a property in Palm Beach, use the best! With over 20 years of real estate experience, my personalized service and attention to detail guarantees that you will find the property that precisely fits your needs. ## FILM INFLUENCE

Dear Dan,

It seems the movies make up our lives. When we are young we are impressed by motion pictures and by the time we are old we have lasting impressions of how live should be lived.

You see yourself, as John Wayne so be it, you are John Wayne and your getting ready to round up the rustlers and kill some Indians on the way. After all, weren't the Indians the Bad Guys – The Terrorists? All they did is own the land we threw them off. And today we call the Muslims Terrorists as we try to get their land and oil. So Muslims are terrorists and we are the good guys. After all what are we doing in Muslimland?

If you see yourself as Humphrey Bogart you are in the Casbah. You are smart; you know a lot about this Muslim land. So you are Humphrey Bogart and you get the bad guys – the terrorist's then known as Nazis...think of Nazis Mohammed. A basketball player in the NBA. You are the hated Nazis and a Muslim. What a daily double.

You are Jude Law and you are murdering rich guys on a yacht. Or John Travolta doing that wonderful dance in Saturday Night Fever. Or Fred Astaire twinkling his way through the park with Ginger.

So we get our ideas from movies. How about Gene Kelly's Singin' In The Rain? He is singin in the rain and so are we. You're Clark Gable and are in the south, a mans-man, you stand by while everyone else gets killed, wounded and maimed. You are always safe because you are Clark Gable.

You are Paris Hilton – a modern day Katherine Hepburn without the British accent, always having fun, fun, fun with Cary Grant, suave, debonair, handsome and gay. Ask Randolph Scott his roomie.

You are Brad Pitt and Tom Cruise. You are great. No monster, no nuclear device can beat you. You can escape anything and always with gorgeous ladies, Cameron Diaz, Julia Roberts and the Dixie Chicks.

By the way Cruise and Pitt never age. They are always thirty. And will die at thirty.

You are Will Smith – always bright and fun and always ready just in case...all these image are you or a part of you.

You are George Bush – the only man in the world who failed at failing...you are a giant horses ass.

Does anyone know why we are in Iraq? Getting butchered and butchering. Spending 500 billion trillion dollars? And believe it or not we cannot get out. Look for gas to go through the roof with everything else if you can get it. Operator put Clark Gable on....

STRAIGHTEN UP

Dear Dan,

We've been Dan's fans from back in the day. Crazy surfing days.

Now one of our sons has opened his Chiropractor office in the Hamptons and placed his first ad in Dan's Papers. If you've gotta spine...check him out. He's awesome.

THE DAN'S STORE

Dear Dan,

How can I purchase a copy of the Einstein book?...Hope there are copies available. Enjoyed your recent story in the current issue. Keep up the great work. Dan's is always part of our Long Island summer vacation.

Thanks.

DANGER ON THE ROAD

Dear Dan,

I was in that traffic jam on Route 27 just east of Amagansett on Sunday. I was looking for some information about the accident. I was told there were fatalities. Did you report on this major accident?

Heather Sachs

DANGER ON THE ROAD

Dear Dan,

I'm a summer Amagansett visitor, haven't been out yet this year. Someone told me that there was a very serious accident at Cyril's this past weekend (car driving into the crowd) but I haven't seen any news on it. Do you know anything about this?

Thanks.

DANGER ON THE WATER

Dear Dan,

Thank you very much for your articles on the Broadwater issue, which serve to keep me well, informed on the subject. As an owner of a cottage on the North Fork (Reeves Park, Riverhead) I am deeply disturbed by the prospect of an offshore gas terminal on Long Island Sound.

Thank you again.

Police Blotter

Robber Rolls Away $15,000 Kiosk

A kiosk worth $15,000 holding a computer terminal that connected to the East Hampton and Montauk Chambers of Commerce websites was snaggd out of the Long Island Rail Road station in East Hampton sometime between May 18 and 23. The five foot tall kiosk was securely bolted into the station's waiting room floor, and provided visitors information about restaurants and attractions in the area. There was no sign of a break-in, leading the executive director of the East Hampton Chamber of Commerce, Van Marina, to believe the theft occurred during the day.

Tinkle, Tinkle Behind Bars

A Southampton man that couldn't hold it was apprehended by Southampton Village Police while urinating in a public parking lot at 11:23 p.m. on May 26. After arresting the parking lot pee-er, police found small amounts of cocaine and marijuana in his pockets and subsequently charged him with possession of a controlled substance in the seventh degree, unlawful possession of marijuana and disorderly conduct.

An Ax to Grind

Around 7 p.m. on Sunday, at the intersection of Montauk Highway and West Tiana Road, an ax wielding Southampton resident attacked a man, leaving him with lacerations and loss of hearing in his left ear. The assailant was arrested and charged with assault in the second degree.

The Bare Witch Project

A woman enjoying the afternoon on the front porch of her Peconic Road house in Hampton Bays was so scared she ran inside after a six foot tall naked white male with short brown hair came running out of the woods in her direction. Whether it was out of insanity or exhibitionism is yet to be determined. The startled woman said the nude man was in his thirties and left as quickly as he came.

The Beach Burglar

An unsuspecting woman from Manhattan had her car broken into while she was strolling by the water's edge, enjoying a picturesque sunset at the Atlantic Beach in Amagansett. The sticky fingered thief smashed out the passenger window of her Ford and removed $500 in cash, 2 credit cards and a set of keys to her rented cottage.

Faking It

For reasons unbeknownst to police, an East Hampton man was using a forged New York State Inspection Certificate on his 1984 Chevy Corvette. After scanning the man's computer, the investigating officer found a copy of the car's sticker on the hard drive and feels that the forgery was done on October 22nd, 2004. The high-tech faker was charged with forgery in the second degree.

Blue Dawg Realty is a small "boutique" real estate company with over 10 years experience. As a team, Erik Olsen, Jan Nelson and Gabrielle Portella can help you with all your needs, whether it is selling your home or property, renting for the summer season or year round. We are small enough to give you the "white glove" treatment.

If you are looking to buy we can find that special home for you. Our motto is "if it is out there, we can find it..." Matching people with that special home or property is our first priority. Don't waste another minute working with an agency who cannot meet all your needs, we are only a phone call or email away.

Lower Mortgage Payments by 45%

With Sophisticated Jumbo Loan Program

NY - Mortgages for multi million dollar homes is typically limited to 50% financing, carries a higher rate and requires full income verification.

A scarcely known loan is available for home purchases and refinances that offers up to 90% financing, cuts monthly payments by as much as 45% and requires no income verification. Additionally there are enhanced tax and pre-payment advantages with increased cash flow not available with other mortgages.

Many wonder why they haven't been informed about this unique loan. One reason is this loan does not profit lenders in the same way other loans do so they're not easy to find. The company sponsoring these programs, North Atlantic Mortgage Corp., has made a Free report "Sophisticated Jumbo Financing" available. This report also addresses many other unique types of mortgages, credit issues, and most importantly how to get a great Jumbo loan with no income or asset verification.

If you are self-employed, professional or high-income individual, there are many other savvy "secrets" and various loan options that you probably aren't aware that exist.
